Our 1910 Fall Bulb and Seed Catalogue has been sent to every Florist in America. If you did not get it, a post card will bring another by return mail.

ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON, Seedsman, 342 W. 14th St., New York

WASHINGTON

A true sport from the original Enchantress. Identically the same color as the old favorite variety, Mrs. T. W. Lawson. Blooms at this time the same shade as in the winter.

Orders booked now for January, 1911 delivery.
$10.00 per hundred. $75.00 per thousand.

Chicago Carnation Co., A. T. Pyler, Mgr., Joliet, Ill.

NEW SEEDLING BEGONIA Glory of Cincinnati

A great novelty of decided merit. You cannot afford to be without it. Our best Retail Florists recommend it. It lasts in bloom better than any other Begonia. Read what others say about it.

Colored photograph and price list free on application.

EXPRESS RATES

ORDERED DOWN

THE WEDGE HAS ENTERED.

Illinois Railroad Commission Acts.

Of as great importance to florists as to any other class of business men is the action of the Illinois Railroad Commission in ordering a sharp reduction of the express rates charged within the state. It is the entering wedge. The companies already have announced that they will fight to the last ditch, but there is every prospect that if the courts do not uphold the authority of the commission, the legislature will provide the necessary authority by special legislation. Then other states will follow suit. The cut will mean an annual saving of large sums of money to all florists.

Chairman Berry, after giving out the new schedule of the Illinois commission, which becomes effective October 15, made a statement in which he said:

"Express tariff No. 1, promulgated by the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commission, will establish in the state of Illinois a uniform scale of maximum rates on merchandise per hundred pounds, forwarded by one express company over one ownership, management or control, thus removing the great inequalities in such rates that are now in effect.

"The commission's tariff provides for a maximum rate of 40 cents per hundred pounds on merchandise for distances up to thirty miles, whereas, with a few exceptions, the express companies' minimum rate for short distances on merchandise is 50 cents per hundred pounds. The commission's tariff provides for maximum graduated charges on packages weighing less than 100 pounds moving between points located on the line of one express company, causing considerable reduction in the existing charges of the express companies to be made. The percentage of decrease in charges that is made in the commission's tariff is variable, depending on the weight of the package and on what scale of merchandise the rate applies.

"The table of graduated charges will make a considerable reduction in the charges on small packages under the new tariff even where the merchandise per hundred pound rate between any two points remains unchanged. In numerous cases where the existing high rates on merchandise per hundred pounds is reduced to the new mileage scale basis, the percentage of decrease in the charges on packages weighing less than 100 pounds will range from twenty per cent to fifty per cent, or even higher.

"The commission has given a great deal of attention to the matter of express rates, and so far as I am informed our commission is the first commission to undertake the issue of the express tariff. It has been almost universal, if not entirely so, that commissions have simply entered an order reducing the rate ten, fifteen or twenty per cent, as the case may be, while our tariff rate undertakes not only to reduce the rates throughout the state and put them on an equal basis, but to equalize them as well."

WASHINGTON MUST ACT.

Under the leadership of the Merchants' Association of New York, of which many florists and seedsmen are members, over 100 of the leading commercial organizations of the United States have filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission which will require that all-powerful body to pass upon the whole question of express rates. Not only is it alleged in the complaint that certain rates are excessive, but that express rates as a whole are too high and that they afford a profit out of all proportion to the capital actually employed in the business or the hazard of the undertaking. This is getting right down to the heart of the question. The big shipping interests are back of the complaint, and they have been at work for months getting ready for the actual filing of the complaint, which was done August 27. The best attorneys in the country have been employed and a mass of evidence gathered for the purpose of showing that the express companies are exacting an unjustifiable profit from the people. It will necessarily be a long time before the Interstate Commerce Commission will hand down any ruling in the matter, but it puts the express companies where they must squarely face the main issue.

TAKING GLORIA BUDS.

Will The Review kindly state what is the proper bud to take on Gloria mums? We have a good-sized bed of them this year, but are at a loss to know whether to take crown or terminal buds.

R. P.

The Gloria chrysanthemum will produce a good double flower from any bud, and from August 18 to September 5 is considered the correct time, although for our own stock this year we took the buds August 12, and they certainly appear just right. I consider that any bud is safe from now till September 5, though a crown bud is preferable.

Chas. H. Totty.

SWEET PEAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will you kindly tell me when to plant sweet peas for Christmas, also how to plant and take care of them in a ground bed? Do they need much water when growing?

J. H.

Sow the seeds at once. It is better to start them in flats of light, sandy soil or pure sand and transplant six inches apart, than to sow in rows. The popular blunder of sowing too thickly causes many sweet pea failures. If planted thinly, the result is strong haulm and much finer flowers, on longer stems, than is possible where they are sown thickly and not thinned. Use only such winter blooming varieties as Mont Blanc, Christmas Pink, Watchung, Christmas White, Earliest of All, and others of the early flowering type.

The rows should be not closer than four feet apart. The most successful growers allow five to six feet. The soil should be heavily manured; cow manure is the best. Work it down deeply and be sure the drainage is good. The plants want lots of head room; none should have less than six feet and some will attain nearly double that height by spring, under favorable conditions. During midwinter, water must be carefully applied. In ground beds much less is required than if on benches. Allow them to dry out fairly well between waterings and then soak well. Start the night temperature at 46 degrees in winter and let it run from 46 to 50 degrees. Do not exceed the latter figure.

Toward spring top-dress with fine bone or sheep manure once or twice and, after applying, fork it in lightly. The water supply will need increasing as the days lengthen.

For apais, fumigate with tobacco dust or nicotine fumigating paper. Keep spider down with the hose. Carefully watch dry parts of the house nearest the heating mains. Avoid cold drafts, which will start mildew. Give plenty of fresh air on every possible occasion.

WINTER FLOWERING PEAS.

I want to grow a bench of sweet peas. Will you kindly inform me what temperature is suitable for them, and what varieties will be the best to grow for Christmas flowering? I have a pile of compost which I mixed last spring, consisting of two loads of soil and one load of cow manure. I turned this over twice. Do you think it will be all right for sweet peas? F. D.

Sweet peas for Christmas must be sowed at once. Sow in small pots or flats, in preference to sowing in the rows where they are to flower, later transplanting them and allowing four to six inches between the plants. A night temperature of 46 to 48 degrees suits sweet peas in winter; it should not exceed 50 degrees for the best results. Good winter flowering varieties are Mont Blanc, Watchung and Florence Denzer, fine white; Christmas Pink, pink and white; Mrs. William Sim, salmon pink; Mrs. A. Wallace, lavender. The compost, as prepared, should grow good sweet peas. Be sure you allow them ample head room—not less than six feet, and more if you have it.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

THE STANDING WREATH.

"Human existence, from infancy to the autumn of life," is the idea the Quakertown Plant Co., Quakertown, Pa., sought to typify in the standing wreath shown in the accompanying illustration. The flowers used were lilies, gladioli, roses, sweet peas and asters, with cut fronds of Pierisoni fern and smilax, in addition to smilax for green.

CHARGES FOR STORING PLANTS.

Will someone who is familiar with storing plants please give me a fair idea of what it is worth to care for bay trees, standard plants about eight feet high, with heads two feet in diameter? I had several such to store last winter and have no idea whether I charged enough or too much for storing them; hence I want to know what others ask for this service. I also have some hydrangeas in 24-inch tubs, and I should like to know what others charge for storing them. E. L.

In the first place, do not attempt to store or winter bay trees, hydrangeas or the like unless you have a suitable place for doing so. Storing plants is actually an accommodation; at least, this is the view that most florists take of it. Perhaps you sold the plants that are to be stored, or perhaps the owner of them is a good customer of yours. If you have a small house which can be kept just above the freezing point, then take the plants; otherwise you have a good excuse for refusing to care for them. Plants of this nature would probably live if kept in the shed, but would become covered with dust and dirt and in the spring would be in no condition to return to the owner.

Bay trees and boxwood require but little attention during the winter and plants with 24-inch to 30-inch crowns can be stored for $5 a pair. This, of course, would not be equivalent to the usual way of figuring the value of greenhouse space, as being worth $1 per square foot. Still, bay trees are only stored about eight months at a time, and they require little heat and will stand crowding.

Hydrangeas should bring more money per square foot than bay trees. During the winter they can be kept with the bay trees, but toward spring they must have more room, more water and more attention in general. Plants in 24-inch tubs are easily worth $3 each for winter storage.

The foregoing charges would include calling for and delivering the plants if they are within a reasonable distance. When a special trip has to be made to some country place, then a small extra fee should be charged—perhaps what an expressman would charge, or a little less.

Whoever is sent to call for the plants should be able to tell whether they are in such a condition as to be worth keeping over winter. If they are half dead, then it would be wise to suggest to your customer that it would probably be a waste of money to have the plants stored. H. S.

Anderson, Ind.—Stuart & Haugh have been making extensive alterations and improvements in their greenhouses.

AN UNKIND SUGGESTION.

Mr. Editor: I want to tell you that it is not always advisable to follow your suggestions. I read in your paper a florist should be original and give his customers something new. So the other day, when a gentleman wanted something nice for the funeral of his aunt and left it all to me what to make up, I thought, "Here is my chance to make something tasty and original." I took the finest lily of the valley and Blanche Ferry sweet peas and made a fan for the old lady. It was a beautiful piece, and original, too.

The next day the young fellow came, and, while I was awaiting a few compliments on my work, after first impressing it on my mind what a kind old lady she was, he told me it was a mean suggestion to a kind and good-hearted old soul and he would not pay for it. He struck me almost speechless, so I thought I would put it in writing and send it to you.

ANOTHER NEW IDEA.

The parades of decorated automobiles have become so common that these events now are considered as one of the florists' regular sources of business, as much to be depended on as any other affairs calling for flowers. But motor parades are not the latest; the new novelty, as the supply men sometimes put it, is the motor boat parade—the Venetian night at the summer resort.

At a recent water carnival on Okauchee lake, Wisconsin, numerous prizes were awarded for the best decorated launches, sail and row boats. The accompanying pictures show the first and second prize boats, which were decorated by August F. Kellner, their owner, who is considered one of Milwaukee's most artistic decorators. The boat which captured first honors was decorated with trees at the front, while at the rear were cat-tails, goldenrod, wild daisies and other wild odds and ends. The boat which won second prize was draped with bunting and finished off with garlands formed of oak leaves.

As there were over seventy-five boats in line, the result of the competition is an honor for Mr. Kellner, of which he has a right to feel proud.

GARDENIAS.

Will you kindly inform us as to what treatment should be given cape jasmines, what soil should be used and when they should be lifted? They are now in the ground. I am located in southwestern Michigan. J. W. R.

Gardenias or cape jasmines should be lifted and potted at once. I do not approve of the outdoor-culture of this plant in our northern states. If in pots they will do well, but when planted out they lose a good deal at lifting time. Endeavor to procure all roots intact and a little ball in addition. For compost use two-thirds fibrous loam, with the finer particles shaken out, and one-third lumpy, dried cow manure; the latter must be old and thoroughly decayed. Add to the foregoing some rather coarse sand, a little soot and some broken charcoal. The soil should be of a porous nature, one through which water will pass readily. Pot firmly and stand the plants in a close, moist house where they can be well shaded and freely syringed. As the roots work around the sides of the pots, give the plants more light and air, but avoid any hot sunshine until they are well established.

If you want to grow in benches, plant twenty inches apart each way. Use no more than four inches of soil and let that be of a porous nature. For successful bench culture the best plan is to plant out from pots during June, and from plants lifted now you cannot expect any blooms during midwinter. A night temperature of not less than 60 degrees is necessary for the successful culture of gardenias and 65 degrees is better. Allow the pots or benches to dry out well between waterings, to prevent yellow foliage appearing. Syringe to keep mealy bug in check. Cold water, carefully directed, will take care of this pest.

THE ASTER DISEASE.

Aster growers have had an unfavorable season this year. From the beginning dry weather set in and continued without a break for nearly two months. The root aphid has been in evidence and the beetles have arrived in hordes. But that is not all. The most dreaded so-called "aster disease" is more pronounced than ever. What is it, anyway, and what is the cause?

In my field it is interesting to note how this disease has distributed itself. Eight or ten or more consecutive plants will show the blight; then there is a skip, then more disease and so on.

The present field never had an aster planted on it before, so the germs were not in the soil. The plants were large and thrifty when set out, with not a trace of disease on them.

Actual experiments have shown that seed taken from the worst affected plants have produced healthy plants, without a trace of disease. Does this not upset the theory of plant breeding?

From my own observations, I claim it is not a disease, but I have yet to prove it.

In my field will probably be found an unusual percentage of affected plants. I think I know the reason. Is the soil poor? No—black and rich as fertilizers and manure can make it, but it is acid. This soil, if taken into the greenhouse and planted to roses or used as pot soil for geraniums or almost any other bedding plants, would kill them outright. This experience cost me a great deal of money, till I found out how to prepare my soil. Simple enough—just add lime.

But now to get back to asters. I believe that soil conditions are responsible for the so-called disease. In my opinion asters are particularly susceptible to the action of acid, which the application of lime would counteract. The acidity of the soil may not be uniform, which would account for the diseased patches in my own field.

This argument is but a theory, but next year I shall thoroughly lime my aster field and wait for results.

COREOPSIS AND SHASTA SEED.

In The Review of July 28, 1910, we noticed some notes on Chrysanthemum maximum Edward VII and Coreopsis grandiflora, in the Seasonable Suggestions. We have looked through several catalogues for the purpose of finding advertisements of the seed of these two perennials, but none of the firms seem to carry the seed. Would you please tell us where we could get seed of these two varieties, as we should like to sow some this fall?

J. S.

Coreopsis grandiflora is an improved form of C. lanceolata, listed by nearly all reputable seedsmen and grown considerably for border effects as well as cutting. Chrysanthemum maximum King Edward VII is listed by Henry A. Dreer, of Philadelphia, and others. About all seedsmen carry one or more named forms of the Shasta daisy. In the catalogue of W. W. Rawson & Co., of Boston, Alaska, California and West-Australia, all excellent varieties, are listed.

C. W.

DAHLIA STEMS TOO SHORT.

Is there any way to make dahlia flower stalks grow long and useful?

J. J. H.

There is no way that we know of to make the flower stems of dahlias stronger. The cactus and decorative sections are notoriously short and weak. The pompons are longer and stronger; so are some of the show varieties. Cactus varieties with better stems are now being introduced, but there is still a vast field for improvement. For commercial use, select varieties which have strong stems; the short-stemmed ones, which hide their flowers, are of little value.

C. W.

GREEN CATERPILLARS.

What is the best way to get rid of the green caterpillar, the one which troubles the mignonette so much in the greenhouses and cabbage outdoors?

G. T. S. C.

There is only one way to get rid of the green caterpillars, and that is hand picking. Any spraying solution of a poisonous nature would burn or otherwise disfigure the plants. Hand picking is slow, but it is sure.

On cabbages outdoors, air-slaked lime blown through a powder bellows will kill many of the caterpillars. If the cabbages are not yet heading, it will be safe to spray with Paris green, one ounce to ten gallons of water. Salt scattered where the worms are at work will kill many of them, as will salt and water.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Lilium Candidum.

The bulbs of Lilium candidum usually arrive about the last part of August and should be potted as soon as possible after being received, as both leaf growth and root growth have already begun in many cases while the bulbs are in transit. There are two types of candidums on the market. The best are from the north of France. The bulbs of these are round, the scales thick, the foliage broad, and the flowers broad-petaled and carried eight to fourteen on a stem. The other type, which is mostly in evidence, has broad bulbs, rather hollowed at the center; the scales are much thinner, the foliage narrow, the flower stalks thin, and the blooms are half the size of those of the good type. As a rule, three to eight flowers are produced to the stalk. This type is not worth growing and has discouraged many from growing candidums.

Candidums can be potted singly in 6-inch pots, but do much better if three to five bulbs are used in 8-inch and 10-inch pots. They also succeed well in boxes six inches deep. The bulbs should be covered two inches. Give a good watering, then keep tolerably dry until foliage has appeared. Too much water at first will rot the bulbs. Stand the pots or boxes outdoors on a bed of ashes, and leave them there until frosts come of sufficient severity to firm the soil in the pots, then stand in a cold-frame. For Easter flowering, house early in January and give a temperature of 54 degrees at night. Candidums are ruined by forcing; the flowers are only one-half the size of those grown cooler.

Berried Solanums.

Early in September is a good time to lift and pot berried solanums from the field. These are now bushy and finely berried. The larger plants will require 6-inch pots, the smaller ones 5-inch. Pot firmly, soak well with water, shade for a few days, then give full sun and lots of water. Frequent sprayings overhead after potting will prevent wilting. It is astonishing how quickly the pots are filled with roots when they are kept freely syringed. These outdoor plants are bigger and better in every way than any which have grown during the summer in pots.

Vallota Purpurea.

At present the brilliant Scarborough lily is in full bloom. It is often seen beautifully flowered outside humble cottages, far better than with gardeners and florists. This vallota dislikes frequent pottings and, like nerines and Amaryllis Belladonna, flowers best when well matted with roots. Any commercial grower who can get up a stock of this lily will have no trouble in disposing of it. Five-inch pots carrying three spikes and 6-inch pots carrying five to six spikes are pretty, but it is when in large pots that it is the most telling. A compost of loam, broken sandstone and dry cow manure suits vallotas. In winter, any temperature just clear of freezing will carry them over nicely.

Euphorbia Jacquiniaeflora.

Not so much grown as its value merits, Euphorbia Jacquiniaeflora, the brilliant Christmas plant, makes new friends each year. Whether for selling in pots or pans, or selling in sprays, this is one of the best colored flowers we have for the holidays. To get extra fine sprays, which will bring good money, plant out one or two in boxes and let them run up the roof; or, if you have a bed where they can be allowed to go undisturbed for a couple of years, they will give some grand sprays. In pots or pans six inches in diameter, several plants together, they look well and it is now time to give them their final shift. If desired, put a few small pteris in with them to cover the soil from view. Like the poinsettias, they like a warm house to develop in, but for the next few weeks they will do well outdoors or with the protection of a coldframe. With the arrival of cold nights, place them in warmer quarters, or you may lose a lot of foliage.

Annual Larkspurs.

In winter and early spring there is always too little variety in our cut flowers and anything out of the beaten track is welcome. It is true that it is hard to get some dealers even to try new things, but the progressive men are glad to get anything in the way of a novelty. Annual larkspurs are easy to grow and succeed even better under glass than outdoors. They are graceful, make charming centerpieces, and a large vase arranged with them attracts attention at once. There are some beautiful colors, including pale blue, light pink, deep pink, pure white and dark blue. As a general rule, the white, light pink and lavender shades sell the best. This makes a good crop to follow mums with. Sow the seed now, in a coldframe or in flats. Pot off singly and grow in a frame or cool greenhouse until the benches for them are ready. Place the plants a foot apart in the rows each way. They should not go any closer, as they branch considerably. Pinch out the central spike; then all the side shoots will come strong and uniform.

Geraniums

GERANIUM CUTTINGS.

Early propagation of zonal geraniums often entails a heavy loss in damped-off cuttings. Should extremely hot weather come after the cuttings are placed in the sand, many will probably rot, particularly if they were soft cuttings from outdoor plants. It is well to delay propagation as long as possible, as experience shows that with cuttings put in the sand early in October the loss is not one-tenth that of those inserted four to six weeks earlier. If the stock plants have been grown under glass, the wood will be harder and the liability of damping off greatly decreased. With outdoor cuttings, I like to leave them on a bench twelve to twenty-four hours after making, to dry somewhat, but not in the sun. Such cuttings show a smaller percentage of loss than those inserted as soon as made.

There are various methods of propagation in general use—placing in sand benches, in flats of sand, and singly in small pots. Of these I prefer the flat system. Those started in flats, if well drained and stood on a shelf where they can get the full sun, should show fewer damped-off cuttings than under any other plan. There should be one thorough soaking, then comparative dryness until rooted, and after that merely sufficient moisture to prevent shriveling. These cuttings, shaken out early in the new year, will have a veritable mat of fine roots and will grow fast when potted in light, rich soil.

If placed on regular cutting benches, extreme care in watering is necessary. The sand should be fresh and the drainage abundant. This plan will answer well if the sand is not needed for other cuttings until the mum season closes. In small pots the cuttings usually root well. Space, however, is usually valuable at the time they are put in and pots need a lot more space than flats. Much more time is also consumed in putting them in pots.

Some growers, both in the north and south, but particularly in the south, find that cuttings root much better outdoors than under glass. The trouble with this plan is that drenching rains sometimes saturate the flats and cause a wholesale damping off. Each grower must adopt the plan best adapted for his particular section. All cuttings should be trimmed off closely; no leaves except extremely small ones should be left on. They will root whether cut below a joint or not, but I find the proportion of rotted cuttings is considerably lessened when they are cut directly below a joint.

GERANIUM CUTTINGS IN BENCH.

Would geraniums do satisfactorily if rooted cuttings were planted in the bench about three inches apart and not potted up until spring? F. W. S.

No matter whether kept in sand or loam, the plan you suggest is a poor one and will give unsatisfactory results. It is far too long a period to leave cuttings without potting, and the chances are that many plants would damp off and others grow so robustly that they would lose much of their foliage when lifted. If you want to carry them over until, say, the early part of February, you could do so in flats of sand, keeping them just moist enough to prevent shriveling and giving them a shelf in a sunny house. Pot culture, moving successively to 2-inch, 3-inch and 4-inch pots, may mean some more labor, but it is the plan which will give you far the best plants in the end, and we would advise you to adopt it. C. W.

HALF-MILE FRONTS.

Reproduced on this page are two of the most interesting photographs of greenhouse establishments ever made. The pictures show the two plants of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill. The photographing of a modern range of greenhouses presents many difficulties which may not have occurred to one who has not tried it. In the first place, with hundreds of thousands of feet of glass to be photographed, it is difficult to find a position from which all the glass may be within range of the camera at one time. Then, when such a position is found, either the distance is so great that the details are lost, or else it is found that no lens has a sufficiently wide angle to get the entire establishment within its scope. The photographing of the Poehlmann establishments has presented a peculiarily difficult task because of the great distance to be covered; plant B is nearly half a mile long. Little could be done towards showing all of either of the plants until the revolving camera was used. A great many florists have seen these cameras employed in photographing convention groups. The machine is set pointing at one end of the group, and, when it is started, revolves until it points to the other end of the group, in the meantime automatically exposing different parts of the film as it revolves. This gets a fine picture, but if the line to be photographed is a straight one the camera produces the effect of a reversed curve, those standing nearest appearing the largest in the picture. To escape this distortion the photographer arranges his group of people in a semicircle. Then the picture shows them as standing in a straight line and all the people of size in correct proportion. The revolving camera worked finely on the two Poehlmann plants, but as the greenhouses stand in a straight line, the picture presents the effect of a reversed curve. This result is more apparent in plant B than in plant A. Even with the revolving camera it was not possible to get the entire number of houses in plant B on the film, though the original photographs were in this instance thirty-two inches long. There are some dozen or more houses at the right that do not show. Building is a fairly continuous performance with the Poehlmann Bros. Co.; usually there are houses just being started, others approaching completion, with further additions contracted for. At the time the pictures were taken the establishment was as complete as at any date in recent years. Practically everything which had been started was finished up, but there are thirteen additional houses arranged for, to be ready for early planting for next summer's cut flower production.

CROOKED GLADIOLUS STEMS.

What is the reason for gladiolus flower stalks growing crooked, and is there any way to prevent it except staking them? J. J. H.

Some varieties of gladioli have an inherent weakness and invariably produce crooked flower stems. Few of the really good named kinds have this failing. Grow the bulbs in an open, sunny spot; in shade they are more liable to come weak-stemmed. It is best to discard sorts that persist in coming with crooked stems; it hardly pays to stake gladioli in commercial culture. C. W.

VARIEGATED VINCAS.

Will you kindly tell me how to grow variegated vincas? I have a nice lot of seedlings in the field, but being a beginner in the business I do not know what to do with them now. They are about three inches in height. L. M. S.

Leave the vincas where they are. Keep them well cultivated. Lift and pot them about the end of September. The plants should require 4-inch or 5-inch pots. Stand them along the edges of the benches in any cool greenhouse for the winter. These will make splendid stock for spring and Memorial day sales. To increase stock for another year, root cuttings any time during the winter. Pot off, plant outdoors and treat in the same way as suggested. The cuttings, if soft, root easily, especially the short ones rubbed off with a heel. W. C.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Lilium Candidum.

The bulbs of Lilium candidum usually arrive about the last part of August and should be potted as soon as possible after being received, as both leaf growth and root growth have already begun in many cases while the bulbs are in transit. There are two types of candidums on the market. The best are from the north of France. The bulbs of these are round, the scales thick, the foliage broad, and the flowers broad-petaled and carried eight to fourteen on a stem. The other type, which is mostly in evidence, has broad bulbs, rather hollowed at the center; the scales are much thinner, the foliage narrow, the flower stalks thin, and the blooms are half the size of those of the good type. As a rule, three to eight flowers are produced to the stalk. This type is not worth growing and has discouraged many from growing candidums.

Candidums can be potted singly in 6-inch pots, but do much better if three to five bulbs are used in 8-inch and 10-inch pots. They also succeed well in boxes six inches deep. The bulbs should be covered two inches. Give a good watering, then keep tolerably dry until foliage has appeared. Too much water at first will rot the bulbs. Stand the pots or boxes outdoors on a bed of ashes, and leave them there until frosts come of sufficient severity to firm the soil in the pots, then stand in a cold-frame. For Easter flowering, house early in January and give a temperature of 54 degrees at night. Candidums are ruined by forcing; the flowers are only one half the size of those grown cooler.

Berried Solanums.

Early in September is a good time to lift and pot berried solanums from the field. These are now bushy and finely berried. The larger plants will require 6-inch pots, the smaller ones 5-inch. Pot firmly, soak well with water, shade for a few days, then give full sun and lots of water. Frequent sprayings overhead after potting will prevent wilting. It is astonishing how quickly the pots are filled with roots when they are kept freely syringed. These outdoor plants are bigger and better in every way than any which have grown during the summer in pots.

Vallota Purpurea.

At present the brilliant Scarborough lily is in full bloom. It is often seen beautifully flowered outside humble cottages, far better than with gardeners and florists. This vallota dislikes frequent pottings and, like nerines and Amaryllis Belladonna, flowers best when well matted with roots. Any commercial grower who can get up a stock of this lily will have no trouble in disposing of it. Five-inch pots carrying three spikes and 6-inch pots carrying five to six spikes are pretty, but it is when in large pots that it is the most telling. A compost of loam, broken sandstone and dry cow manure suits vallotas. In winter, any temperature just clear of freezing will carry them over nicely.

Euphorbia Jacquinæflora.

Not so much grown as its value merits, Euphorbia Jacquinæflora, the brilliant Christmas plant, makes new friends each year. Whether for selling in pots or pans, or selling in sprays, this is one of the best colored flowers we have for the holidays. To get extra fine sprays, which will bring good money, plant out one or two in boxes and let them run up the roof; or, if you have a bed where they can be allowed to go undisturbed for a couple of years, they will give some grand sprays. In pots or pans six inches in diameter, several plants together, they look well and it is now time to give them their final shift. If desired, put

Annual Larkspurs.

In winter and early spring there is always too little variety in our cut flowers and anything out of the beaten track is welcome. It is true that it is hard to get some dealers even to try new things, but the progressive men are glad to get anything in the way of a novelty. Annual larkspurs are easy to grow and succeed even better under glass than outdoors. They are graceful, make charming centerpieces, and a large vase arranged with them attracts attention at once. There are some beautiful colors, including pale blue, light pink, deep pink, pure white and dark blue. As a general rule, the white, light pink and lavender shades sell the best. This makes a good crop to follow mums with. Sow the seed now, in a coldframe or in flats. Pot off singly and grow in a frame or cool greenhouse until the benches for them are ready. Place the plants a foot apart in the rows each way. They should not go any closer, as they branch considerably. Pinch out the central spike; then all the side shoots will come strong and uniform.

GERANIUM CUTTINGS.

Early propagation of zonal geraniums often entails a heavy loss in damped-off cuttings. Should extremely hot weather come after the cuttings are placed in the sand, many will probably rot, particularly if they were soft cuttings from outdoor plants. It is well to delay propagation as long as possible, as experience shows that with cuttings put in the sand early in October the loss is not one-tenth that of those inserted four to six weeks earlier. If the stock plants have been grown under glass, the wood will be harder and the liability of damping off greatly decreased. With outdoor cuttings, I like to leave them on a bench twelve to twenty-four hours after making, to dry somewhat, but not in the sun. Such cuttings show a smaller percentage of loss than those inserted as soon as made.

There are various methods of propagation in general use—placing in sand benches, in flats of sand, and singly in small pots. Of these I prefer the flat system. Those started in flats, if well drained and stood on a shelf where they can get the full sun, should show fewer damped-off cuttings than under any other plan. There should be one thorough soaking, then comparative dryness until rooted, and after that merely sufficient moisture to prevent shriveling. These cuttings, shaken out early in the new year, will have a veritable mat of fine roots and will grow fast when potted in light, rich soil.

If placed on regular cutting benches, extreme care in watering is necessary. The sand should be fresh and the drainage abundant. This plan will answer well if the sand is not needed for other cuttings until the mum season closes. In small pots the cuttings usually root well. Space, however, is usually valuable at the time they are put in and pots need a lot more space than flats. Much more time is also consumed in putting them in pots.

Some growers, both in the north and south, but particularly in the south, find that cuttings root much better outdoors than under glass. The trouble with this plan is that drenching rains sometimes saturate the flats and cause a wholesale damping off. Each grower must adopt the plan best adapted for his particular section. All cuttings should be trimmed off closely; no leaves except extremely small ones should be left on. They will root whether cut below a joint or not, but I find the proportion of rotted cuttings is considerably lessened when they are cut directly below a joint.

GERANIUM CUTTINGS IN BENCH.

Would geraniums do satisfactorily if rooted cuttings were planted in the bench about three inches apart and not potted up until spring? F. W. S.

No matter whether kept in sand or loam, the plan you suggest is a poor one and will give unsatisfactory results. It is far too long a period to leave cuttings without potting, and the chances are that many plants would damp off and others grow so robustly that they would lose much of their foliage when lifted. If you want to carry them over until, say, the early part of February, you could do so in flats of sand, keeping them just moist enough to prevent shriveling and giving them a shelf in a sunny house. Pot culture, moving successively to 2-inch, 3-inch and 4-inch pots, may mean some more labor, but it is the plan which will give you far the best plants in the end, and we would advise you to adopt it. HALF-MILE FRONTS.

Reproduced on this page are two of the most interesting photographs of greenhouse establishments ever made. The pictures show the two plants of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill. The photographing of a modern range of greenhouses presents many difficulties which may not have occurred to one who has not tried it. In the first place, with hundreds of thousands of feet of glass to be photographed, it is difficult to find a position from which all the glass may be within range of the camera at one time. Then, when such a position is found, either the distance is so great that the details are lost, or else it is found that no lens has a sufficiently wide angle to get the entire establishment within its scope. The photographing of the Poehlmann establishments has presented a peculiarily difficult task because of the great distance to be covered; plant B is nearly half a mile long. Little could be done towards showing all of either of the plants until the revolving camera was used. A great many florists have seen these cameras employed in photographing convention groups. AN AVERAGE CROP.

How many blooms per season would be considered an average crop from the following carnations: Enchantress, Lawson, Lady Bountiful, Harlowarden, M. A. Patten, Queen Louise and Victory? L. M. B.

If you get your carnations all into crop tolerably early, there will not be a great deal of difference in the number of blooms you will get per plant from each variety. They will likely run about as follows, in point of production: Queen, Mrs. Lawson, Harlowarden, Lady Bountiful, Enchantress, Mrs. M. A. Patten, Victory. An average cut from Queen would be in the neighborhood of twenty blooms per plant, while that from Victory would run somewhere around fourteen, with the other sorts strung along between those two figures. Your cut may vary some from these figures, according to the quality of your treatment and the adaptability of the variety to your climate, etc.

I want to caution you here against being led astray by some of those Baron Munchausen stories which have been printed from time to time about phenomenal cuts of blooms, besides alleged robbing of cuttings beyond the average production of the plants. How any intelligent being can give out such figures as facts, is more than I can understand. Certainly no experienced grower would believe them. I speak of that here, because such tales are sure to cause more or less trouble for growers who are employed by owners of greenhouses who know little of such matters. It leads them to think that they are not getting fair returns from their glass, when perhaps they are getting the best returns. A. F. J. B.

THE NORMAL TEMPERATURE.

Kindly state the lowest temperature in which carnations can be successfully grown in the middle western states; also the highest practicable temperature. G. B.

The average run of carnations seem to do their best in a temperature around 52 degrees. When you go much above that figure, you do it at a sacrifice of quality. The blooms lack substance and size, the stems come weak and the plants lose in vitality generally.

When it comes to lowering the temperature the effect is just the opposite, as long as you keep within reasonable limits. The blooms come larger, with more substance, and the stems are stronger. This, however, will be at the expense of quantity, and the lower you go the more you will cut down the quantity, while the improvement in quality will become slighter the farther you get away from the normal. In fact, after you get below 48 degrees there will be no improvement in quality.

It has been established that the slight improvement in quality will not offset the decrease in quantity resulting from a temperature much below normal, which is 50 to 52 degrees.

LILIES FOR EASTER.

Please tell me the best kind, size and planting time of lilies, to be grown in a temperature of 50 degrees, for Easter. I should like to have from two to five blooms to the plant. A. C.

The most satisfactory lily for you to grow for Easter next year will be L. longiflorum giganteum. Bulbs of these are now said to be on their way from Japan, and, if potted any time before the middle of October, will be in season for Easter, 1911. The size 7 to 9 will give you nice stems and you can plant one each in 6-inch pots. Keep them dark and cool until well rooted and starting to grow, being careful not to give much water until the pots are well filled with roots. If you put your plants in a temperature of 50 degrees at Christmas they will come on in good season. It takes fifty days to bloom them, from the time the buds can be counted, in an average night temperature of 50 degrees. C. W.

POT PLANTS FOR CHRISTMAS.

I wish you would tell me what are the best plants to grow for pot plants, to be in bloom at Christmas. I have primulas, cyclamens and Jerusalem cherries, and also will have hyacinths. When should I pot them and when should I bring them to the light to have them ready for Christmas? Are there any other plants that I could have ready to sell at Christmas? L. H. T.

Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi, potted or placed in pans any time between now and the middle of September, will easily flower for Christmas. The Dutch bulbs, such as narcissi, tulips and hyacinths, are occasionally forced into bloom for Christmas, but are not of really good quality. The Paper Whites can be kept in the light all the time. Stand them under a greenhouse bench or in any shed or cellar. The hyacinths must be kept dark. House them five weeks before you want them and give an average night temperature of 50 degrees, or allow four weeks if kept at 60 degrees.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is a good Christmas plant. Purchase some young plants now and pot them on. Poinsettias are popular at Christmas, owing to the brilliant coloring of their bracts. They need a temperature of not less than 60 degrees to properly develop their bracts, but can be kept in good condition for weeks in a cool house while in flower.

Some of the varieties of Azalea Indica, such as Firefly, Mme. Petrick and Deutsche Perle, force well for Christmas. These arrive usually during October, and after potting they need a warm, moist house and frequent syringings.

Zonal geraniums, both single and double, are fine for Christmas. Keep the flower trusses picked off until the middle of November; then let the plants have a bench where they can get full sun.

Erica melanthera is an easily grown heath, which flowers for Christmas. It needs a cool house. There are some other Christmas plants, but perhaps you may be able to fill your requirements from the foregoing. C. W.

WORMS IN SOIL.

I am annoyed with a black gnat, which makes a tiny white worm in the soil. I have tried kerosene emulsion, also tobacco, but neither has done any good. Can you tell me what to do? C. L. S.

Lime water should clean out the worms in question. Failing this, get a can of carbon bisulphide. A few drops will kill all worms or larvae in a pot six to eight inches in diameter. Simply make a hole with a pointed stick, pour in the carbon and immediately cover it up. The fumes are penetrating. In the benches or open ground, make holes eighteen inches apart each way and six inches deep. Put a teaspoonful in each hole. When the soil is damp, the fumes are most penetrating. Keep naked lights away when using the carbon, as it is liable to explode. The use of it will not injure any plants in the least degree, but it will surely kill anything living in the soil through which the fumes penetrate. C. W.

MISS MARGARET ARMSTRONG.

Miss Margaret Armstrong, of Spokane, Wash., is not only acknowledged to be one of the most successful business women of the city, but she has the further distinction of being the pioneer business woman of Riverside avenue.

Seventeen years ago, when she began selling flowers, her entire stock in trade was displayed on a stand with about as much surface as an ordinary desk. The stand occupied a corner in a store in the Jamieson block, then just completed. Now she rents an entire store at 807 Riverside avenue, where she conducts a business that requires a force of from twelve to fourteen assistants, including two expert decorators. And it is said that she possesses in a rare degree that executive faculty or instinct, quiet but forceful, which enables the head of an establishment to control every detail of a business without being personally conspicuous in the management of it.

At the date when Miss Armstrong entered the florists' field, Spokane was absorbed in recovering from the great fire and had no leisure, apparently, for the proper appreciation of the fragrance and beauty of flowers. But Miss Armstrong, with true courage and foresight, placed her little stand on the brink of the mercantile current. The display of flowers was slim and the choice limited in those days. Nobody thought of growing flowers in or about Spokane then. They had to be shipped from Portland and Chicago. There were other drawbacks, but Miss Armstrong stood by her little stand in the corner.

It wasn't long until the appeal of the flowers prevailed and presently Miss Armstrong was deeply concerned with the problem of how to supply the demand. And this is still her problem, though competition now is keen.

She has never made any attempt to grow her own stock. Her energy has created a branch business at Post Falls, where most of the roses she sells come from. Roses are the most popular flowers in the city, and she has no difficulty in disposing of all she can procure. Carnations are close rivals of the roses, and these come largely from flower farms nearer Spokane. She does not find any great demand, she says, for the rarer varieties for tropical bloom. One reason for this is that the Spokane people who can afford and prefer them usually spend a part of the year in southern climates. When they return they want the hardier flowers they have always been used to.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Seasonable rains and ideal summer weather prevail. The outdoor stock is now reaching the market in superb condition, and in enormous quantities. Asters dominate, with some grand stock among them, vying with the mums in size and beauty. Prices are low indeed for the common varieties and smaller sizes and even the best commands only $2 per hundred.

Carnation shipments are light and of poor quality—hardly worthy a quotation. The few that come up to medium merit are bought before they arrive. The new roses are few and far between. The best of them find a ready demand and prices begin to make the grower hopeful, although there is no general expectation of improvement till after Labor day. Maryland, Killarney and Kaiserin are improving daily.

Lilies advanced suddenly at the beginning of last week to double the quotations of the week end, the best of them bringing 8 cents. They remain firm this week, with the poorest down to 4 cents. The best valley brings $3 per hundred.

The orchid supply and demand run about even. Gladioli are abundant and most of the arrivals sell at 50 cents and under. Only the new and selected stock, including the old standby, America, go above the dollar mark. Hydrangeas are showing color. Tritomas are abundant. With these and the new varieties of ferns, not forgetting an occasional vase of chrysanthemums and carefully selected crotons, the retailers manage to present respectable windows to the passing throng. A few cosmos and dahlias give premonition of a wealth of varied bloom, in time for the school opening and the returning "400."

Various Notes.

C. W. Jacob & Allison have been eighteen years in the importing business in New York. It is said they have for a long time been the largest importers of cape flowers in this country. They are large receivers also of raffia and bark cloth from the producing markets of these commodities. They say sales are large this season and the outlook is satisfactory for a fall revival in business.

Lime water should clean out the worms in question. Failing this, get a can of carbon bisulphide. A few drops will kill all worms or larvae in a pot six to eight inches in diameter. Simply make a hole with a pointed stick, pour in the carbon and immediately cover it up. The fumes are penetrating. In the benches or open ground, make holes eighteen inches apart each way and six inches deep. Put a teaspoonful in each hole. When the soil is damp, the fumes are most penetrating. Keep naked lights away when using the carbon, as it is liable to explode. The use of it will not injure any plants in the least degree, but it will surely kill anything living in the soil through which the fumes penetrate. C. W.

MISS MARGARET ARMSTRONG.

Miss Margaret Armstrong, of Spokane, Wash., is not only acknowledged to be one of the most successful business women of the city, but she has the further distinction of being the pioneer business woman of Riverside avenue.

Seventeen years ago, when she began selling flowers, her entire stock in trade was displayed on a stand with about as much surface as an ordinary desk. The stand occupied a corner in a store in the Jamieson block, then just completed. Now she rents an entire store at 807 Riverside avenue, where she conducts a business that requires a force of from twelve to fourteen assistants, including two expert decorators. And it is said that she possesses in a rare degree that executive faculty or instinct, quiet but forceful, which enables the head of an establishment to control every detail of a business without being personally conspicuous in the management of it.

At the date when Miss Armstrong entered the florists' field, Spokane was absorbed in recovering from the great fire and had no leisure, apparently, for the proper appreciation of the fragrance and beauty of flowers. But Miss Armstrong, with true courage and foresight, placed her little stand on the brink of the mercantile current. The display of flowers was slim and the choice limited in those days. Nobody thought of growing flowers in or about Spokane then. They had to be shipped from Portland and Chicago. There were other drawbacks, but Miss Armstrong stood by her little stand in the corner.

It wasn't long until the appeal of the flowers prevailed and presently Miss Armstrong was deeply concerned with the problem of how to supply the demand. And this is still her problem, though competition now is keen.

She has never made any attempt to grow her own stock. Her energy has created a branch business at Post Falls, where most of the roses she sells come from. Roses are the most popular flowers in the city, and she has no difficulty in disposing of all she can procure. Carnations are close rivals of the roses, and these come largely from flower farms nearer Spokane. She does not find any great demand, she says, for the rarer varieties for tropical bloom. One reason for this is that the Spokane people who can afford and prefer them usually spend a part of the year in southern climates. When they return they want the hardier flowers they have always been used to.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Seasonable rains and ideal summer weather prevail. The outdoor stock is now reaching the market in superb condition, and in enormous quantities. Asters dominate, with some grand stock among them, vying with the mums in size and beauty. Prices are low indeed for the common varieties and smaller sizes and even the best commands only $2 per hundred.

Carnation shipments are light and of poor quality—hardly worthy a quotation. The few that come up to medium merit are bought before they arrive. The new roses are few and far between. The best of them find a ready demand and prices begin to make the grower hopeful, although there is no general expectation of improvement till after Labor day. Maryland, Killarney and Kaiserin are improving daily.

Lilies advanced suddenly at the beginning of last week to double the quotations of the week end, the best of them bringing 8 cents. They remain firm this week, with the poorest down to 4 cents. The best valley brings $3 per hundred.

The orchid supply and demand run about even. Gladioli are abundant and most of the arrivals sell at 50 cents and under. Only the new and selected stock, including the old standby, America, go above the dollar mark. Hydrangeas are showing color. Tritomas are abundant. With these and the new varieties of ferns, not forgetting an occasional vase of chrysanthemums and carefully selected crotons, the retailers manage to present respectable windows to the passing throng. A few cosmos and dahlias give premonition of a wealth of varied bloom, in time for the school opening and the returning "400."

Various Notes.

C. W. Jacob & Allison have been eighteen years in the importing business in New York. It is said they have for a long time been the largest importers of cape flowers in this country. They are large receivers also of raffia and bark cloth from the producing markets of these commodities. They say sales are large this season and the outlook is satisfactory for a fall revival in business.

E. J. Bush, of the Ellenwood Greenhouses, Hatboro, Pa., was in the city last week on his way home from the convention, as the guest of George Saltford, to whom his shipments of cut flowers are made.

W. N. Reed, of Reed & Keller, has returned from Europe in the best of health, after visiting nearly every European country. Mrs. Reed accompanied him. The three months' trip was largely for sightseeing, but he selected many novelties for his American trade and has several inventions he will offer this season.

Some of the new firms contemplating the opening of wholesale cut flower establishments on Twenty eighth street will postpone the commencement of business until October 1. The general verdict is that September this year will be no exception to the rule of comparative dullness.

The New York retail houses with branches at Newport report a satisfactory season.

Among southern visitors last week were Alexander Miller, of Dallas, Tex., and Harry Papworth, of New Orleans.

Frank Duggan, with Rickards Bros., is home from his New England trip, after a two weeks' enjoyable vacation.

Alex. McKenzie, the popular gardener of Glen Cove, is taking his vacation in Scotland.

The Forster Mansfield Co. has just completed a thousand dollar contract for bay tree tubs, lattice work and settees for a large private estate near New York city. This firm will shortly occupy the entire building at 145 West Twenty eighth street.

The Kervan Co. has begun extensive improvements on its new store at 119 West Twenty eighth street, where it will occupy the entire four story building, using its present quarters for storage. This firm is preparing for a big fall and winter business. Mr. Kervan has been enjoying his vacation with the reunion of the old soldiers in the east.

James Slimon, who has been with J. M. Thorburn for over twenty years, has accepted the position as manager of Vaughan's Seed Store, lately occupied by C. W. Scott, who is now manager of the Yokohama Nursery Co.

The veteran auctioneer, D. J. Elliott, announces the opening of the fall season on Friday, September 16.

Mrs. White, bookkeeper for the Growers' Cut Flower Co., is enjoying her holidays in the Catskills.

Carroll Elliott, of W. Elliott & Sons, is away for two weeks on a fishing excursion at Barnegat and Atlantic City. Mr. Peth, of the same firm, has returned with his family from a two weeks' vacation at the seashore.

John P. Cleary, who has been in charge of the plant auction department of the Fruit Auction Co. for some years, severed his connection with this house September 1.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has rented the premises formerly occupied by the Cleary Horticultural Co. on Vesey street.

David Adams, for many years with J. M. Thorburn, has returned from a two weeks' vacation in the Catskills with his family.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. is much pleased with the result of its enterprise at the Rochester convention, and has already declared its intention of making a larger exhibit at Baltimore.

The "Buds" fall catalogue is now being distributed, and Manager Gloeckner's first offering is a neat and attractive production.

Wertheimer Bros. report that business is the largest in their history. They say that their salesmen on the road find the trade in excellent condition throughout the country.

John Michelsen, of E. C. Amling's force, Chicago, is visiting in New York with the object of a conference with the firm's violet growers at Rhinebeck.

Max Schling has opened a new store at 22 West Fifty-ninth street, adjoining the Plaza hotel.

In the report of A. L. Miller, state vice-president of the S. A. F. for New York, was an item showing a tendency of the times that is worthy of special mention. It is to the effect that land in the vicinity of New York city (and other large cities) is so high in price that it makes it impossible for florists to extend any farther without getting beyond wagon reach. This will mean the growing of fewer potted plants, but more cut flowers.

W. A. Sperling, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., has just returned to the city, having visited friends in Cleveland and Pittsburg after the S. A. F. convention.

David Adam, for ten years with J. M. Thorburn & Co., is enjoying a holiday with his family at Ardsley before taking a position with another prominent New York firm in the same line.
J. Austin Shaw.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Cut flowers have been rather more plentiful the last week. Business shows a slow but steady improvement and the markets were fairly well cleaned up each day. Asters are the predominant flower of the day and are much more abundant. As a consequence, prices have dropped sharply and flowers worth $3 per hundred a week ago are now to be had at one-third of this figure. The quality of asters continues uniformly good.

Gladioli are less plentiful than they were. Good Americas readily bring $5 to $6 per hundred, other varieties $3 to $4. The quality is not so good as a few weeks ago. Sweet peas are not plentiful; really good ones are extremely scarce.

Roses are improving a little in quality. Last week's hot wave made them overabundant and hard to dispose of. Carnations of the new crop are as yet only seen in limited numbers. A few of the old crop are still coming in, but cut little figure now. There has been a fair call for longiflorums, but speciosums have not moved so well. Valley is not abundant, but sells quite well.

The advance guard of the mum army, in the form of Golden Glow, is already in evidence. The best make $1.50 per dozen. For candytuft and cosmos the demand is rather poor, nor are dahlias in much request. Tuberoses are seen, but there is no great call for them.

Asparagus and adiantum are of fine quality, but the sales are not yet heavy.

Flower Market Auction.

The annual auction sale of stalls at C Park street, where the new Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., sells its goods, took place August 27, and the results were of a most gratifying nature, higher prices being recorded than ever before in the history of Boston's wholesale flower market, extending over eighteen years, the aggregate premiums totaling $7,000. This is in addition to an annual rental of $25 per stall.

Among some of the higher prices paid for choice of stalls were: Thomas Roland, $130; J. A. Budlong Co., $115, $115, $80; E. Sutermeister Estate, $120, $120; Montrose Greenhouses, $115, $115; Andrew Christensen, $120, $120; Peirce Bros., $130, $100, $100, $100; William Sim, $120, $120; Paine Bros., $100, $100; John J. Fee, $125, $125; A. S. Parker, $95; F. J. Dolansky, $75, $75; Neil Boyle, $115; S. J. Reuter, $115, $115, $115; William Nicholson, $95, $95; Nelson & Johnson, $90, $90; W. C. Ward, $87.50; Kidder Bros., $88, $80; Paul E. Richwagen, $75; Edgar Bros., $75; W. D. Howard, $90; Samuel Wheeler, $90; J. T. Butterworth, $82.50; Mann Bros., $100, $100; Geo. E. Buxton, $100; C. L. Pierce, $95; H. F. Calder, $72.50, $72.50; William Hill Greenhouses, $85; W. C. Stickel, $100; Hanover Greenhouses, $70; S. J. Goddard, $115; William Patterson, $75.

James T. Carroll made, as usual, an efficient auctioneer.

Various Notes.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will hold a midwinter show of plants and flowers, February 24 to 26, 1911, about a month in advance of the National Show.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will resume its regular monthly meetings September 29. There promises to be a large membership accession the coming fall.

Sidney Littlefield, of Littlefield & Wyman, has been spending his vacation at East Stoneham, Me. His firm has had all its carnations housed for some time, and they look remarkably well.

Golden Glow chrysanthemums are already seen in fine quality in the market. Paine Bros., of Randolph, have a fine lot at C Park street, also S. J. Goddard, of Framingham.

B. P. Winch, of Framingham, is among the first of the carnation specialists to bring in good flowers of the new season's crop.

H. F. Calder, of Norwood, who sells at C Park street, and G. L. Le Carpentier, of Lexington, whose stall is at 2 Park street, have the finest sweet peas arriving at present.

Sidney Hoffman, the well-known Massachusetts avenue and Cambridge florist, arrived home August 29, after an enjoyable and profitable trip. Mr. Hoffman visited growers and markets in Germany, France, Belgium, Holland and England. He was chiefly interested in plants, and of these he saw many beautifully grown batches showing great cultural skill. In the way of flowers and floral designs, he does not think Europe can teach us anything. During his entire visit he only experienced one day with rain.

George W. Butterworth, of South Framingham, returned last week from his annual European trip, which took in both Great Britain and the continent, orchids and bulbs being special objects of his visit.

Harry Wildan, a Bostonian, now of Greenwich, Conn., has been spending a few days visiting places of horticultural interest in and around Boston, with his wife and family. He has been enjoying a vacation at Monument Beach.

Thomas Mulligan, one of the oldest and best known of Boston's market gardeners, died at his home in Revere, Mass., August 28, aged 89 years.

Peter M. Miller, of the T. J. Grey Co., is enjoying his vacation mostly at Cotuit, Mass., where fishing is good. J. P. A. Guerinneau, of the same firm, has just returned from a fortnight's vacation.

Alexander P. Dewar, head of the flower seed department of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., is at Showhegan, Me., for a few weeks.

W. P. Collins has purchased the R-E. Lassman greenhouses and good will at Watertown, Mass. He will make many improvements and grow a general line of plants and cut flowers, selling the same at 2 Park street.

Weather conditions continue unfavorable for crops, the drought being only relieved by occasional scattered showers. Boston from July 1 to August 30 has a deficiency of 4.88 inches in rainfall. During August less than an inch fell.

Thomas Pegler is back at his stand at C Park street, well tanned, after a vacation spent in Maine following the S. A. F. convention.

We regret to hear of the serious sickness of F. R. Mathieson, of Clematis Brook. Mr. Mathieson is one of our oldest and most respected florists, and we hope his recovery may be speedy.

W. N. Craig.

ROCHESTER.

The effect of a great convention on the public at large is usually most noticeable in the days immediately following the event, but the local newspaper notices, the entertainments and the excursions during the S. A. F. convention week served to bring the florists' business before the public in a much larger measure than ever before. The amount of space given by the press to the S. A. F. was of almost inestimable advertising value, and the local trade should reap a large share of the benefits derived from such publicity. Since the close of the session much has been published and on Sunday, August 28, one of the local papers gave nearly a page to convention views as a part of its illustrated supplement. With the impetus given by the convention, Rochester florists and growers ought to push Rochester grown flowers and plants into a far wider territory than now covered.

The aster season is here; blooms have been coming in since July 4, but until within the last week or two the supply has been limited. Something like 25,000 a day were received by George Hart last week, and some growers ship to out-of-town dealers direct. The stock is uniformly good—extra good in the majority of cases. Some superior blooms of Violet King, and the Mikado Pink, Rochester, were received last Friday. Dry weather has held back the branching asters, but another week will see thousands of them and from present indications they will be of high quality. Sweet peas are practically gone—only a few to be found in the stores. Some good roses are to be had, but the price is "summer bargain" and the retailer can only get about 45 cents a dozen.

E. F. R.

Hanfield, Ind.—Alfred Hacker is remodeling his greenhouses.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Cool weather prevailed last week, with a lack of sunshine, which retarded the blooming and made stock scarcer than ever. Roses are straggling in in pretty fair quantities. Carnations have not made their appearance as yet. Asters are extremely small, and only those grown under glass are of any account. Gladioli are more or less plentiful and there are quite a few rubrum lilies on the market.

Various Notes.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. has a fine house of smilax ready to cut, and also some good Harrisii coming into bloom.

T. H. Hall has been cutting good rubrums. Mr. and Mrs. Hall and daughter, Edith, took an extensive trip throughout the east, stopping at Niagara Falls, Chicago and Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Hall is still east, but she expected to return in the first part of September.

H. B. Whitted finds business excellent at both stores, but says that stock is scarce.

O. C. Swanson has an assortment of Japanese baskets and vases which are in a class by themselves.

R. A. Latham has had a great deal of funeral work lately, and business is good.

Miss M. A. Scanlan is returning to the Minneapolis Floral Co. as bookkeeper September 1, succeeding Mrs. E. B. Weiss, who left August 31.

M. E. M.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Last week business started slowly and increased in volume each day as the week progressed. In the latter part of the week the wholesalers were kept busy. Practically everything really worth while was cleaned up. The prices were fair.

Late asters are now arriving in quantity, and in stem and bloom are of exceptional quality. They find a ready sale. Roses are in good supply. Beauties easily lead in general excellence and quantity. Fine Taft roses are also coming in good numbers. My Maryland and Rhea Reid, while not so plentiful, are good. Many White Killarneys and Maids from the new stock are offered. The good glads sell readily, while the smaller and poorer ones accumulate in the wholesale houses. Lilies are getting scarce. Dahlias, cosmos and tuberoses are coming in regularly.

The green goods market is good.

Various Notes.

Visitors to the Ohio Valley Exposition on Monday, August 29, the formal opening day, were agreeably surprised at what had been accomplished in the way of decorations with natural plants and bedding. There are flowers wherever one turns and still the effect is pleasing, for they are not overdone; there are just enough. There is a small shifting of plants from time to time as the center of attraction shifts. J. Charles McCullough had charge of the features of trade interest, assisted by B. P. Critchell. Over fifteen carloads of trees and plants were secured and planted under their direction.

The J. M. McCullough's Sons Co. is receiving Taft roses, which are in full crop at the greenhouses of the Hyde Park Rose Co.

P. J. Olinger has a good supply of Beauties.

L. H. Kyrk, who always has novelties in flowers for the various seasons, now has Clematis paniculata. He is also getting his first dahlias and cosmos.

C. E. Critchell is receiving large shipments of late asters from New York state.

E. G. Gillett continues to have a large supply of Beauties.

William Murphy offers tuberoses, dahlias and asters.

William Pfeiffer, of Fort Thomas, besides attending to his flower business, is interested in raising ponies in a commercial way. He entered about twenty of his fine stock in the parade under the auspices of the Ohio Valley Exposition, August 29.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kyrk, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson and Albert Sunderbruch have returned from their trips.

Mrs. P. J. Olinger and family have returned from Chicago, after having spent several weeks there on a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Taylor, of Rome, Ga., stopped in the city on their way home from Chicago. Harry Papworth, of New Orleans, stopped here August 27 on his way home. Mr. Sutterfield, of Winchester, O., and Frank Farney, representing M. Rice & Co., were also recent visitors. The latter reports a brisk business.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gardiner, of Daytona Beach, Fla., are visitors in this city and will attend the exposition. Mr. Gardiner was prominent in the florists' business in this city more than thirty years ago. C. H. H.

ERIE.

The Market.

We have a dry spell at present and rain would be greatly appreciated in this section. Trade conditions are not changing much. Good stock is moving well. Roses are coming in better than heretofore, while carnations are extremely scarce. Adiantums, asparagus and smilax are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Mr. Wise, of the Erie Floral Co., has commenced to stock up the Niemeyer place, which has been vacated by the Baur Floral Co. Mr. Wise will manage the Niemeyer place in connection with the adjacent houses of the Erie Floral Co.

Wm. F. Kasting and family, of Buffalo, N. Y., are spending the summer months in Erie. Mr. Kasting spends part of his time in Buffalo, looking after his business interests there.

The Baur Floral Co. has a fine new automobile delivery wagon.

L. A. Spoden has had fine pansies to cut from all summer.

Theodore Krichels, a florist of Hanover, Ont., stopped in Erie August 24 on his way to Cleveland. From there he will go to New York and will sail for Europe in September, to claim an inheritance of 32,000 marks (about $8,000), left him by the will of his uncle, Ludwig Krichels. The home of the Krichels is in Cologne, on the Rhine.

John Kallenbach has been removed from St. Vincent's hospital to his home on West Twenty-sixth street. He is getting along as well as can be expected, but will be confined to his home for some time.

James F. Smith, representing Wm. J. Boas & Co., of Philadelphia, was in Erie August 25 on business. B. P.

DETROIT.

The Market.

The wedding bells are ringing and the brides are happy; so are the florists. Weddings seem to be the rage this summer in Detroit, creating a big demand for valley and white roses, as well as other stock. For some days there has been a lack of the usual run of funeral work.

Stock is plentiful. Roses are of good quality and prices right. Red roses are especially good. Some of the finest asters seen for some time are available and naturally find a ready sale.

Green is in good demand. Smilax is being used in large quantities.

Various Notes.

Another retail store is soon to be added to the list of flower stores in this city. Considering the sixty-three per cent or more of an increase in the population of Detroit in the last ten years, there is still room for a few more stores. John Kline, who has been in the employ of Breitmeyer's for many years, working in every capacity in the store, will open a store on the corner of Forest avenue and Chene street sometime in September. He is an energetic young man and well liked.

After touring in the east for nearly two weeks in the touring car of Mr. Smith, of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Fetters are again at home. Although Mr. Fetters says he feels as though he should take another week off to get rested up, he has nevertheless put on about seven pounds of weight.

If ever there was a florist heels over head in work, then Robert Watson is that florist. Winter is rapidly coming on and his whole plant is still level with the ground, being remodeled. The new houses will run north and south and will be strictly modern. A Kroeschell boiler is en route from Chicago to take the place of the old steam boiler.

A. B. Lewis, of Pontiac, is doing himself great credit with the asters he is shipping to this market. Another shipper of good quality asters is A. C. Roegner, of Troy, Mich.

R. O. Koehler, of 623 Gratiot avenue, has given up his greenhouse on St. Aubin avenue and will hereafter conduct only the store.

Mrs. Robert Rahaley is still visiting friends at Mackinac Island, and poor "Bob" has to get his own breakfast.

Charles Plumb returned from Europe August 28, having visited many of the principal cities in the old country.

Just before leaving Southampton, England, homeward bound, our ex-president procured a copy of the Weekly Florists' Review, which was devoured with much interest while crossing the Atlantic.

The Detroit visitors to the Rochester convention, singly and collectively, have only words of the highest praise for the hospitality shown them. All unite in pronouncing it "the best convention ever."

Among the recent visitors here were: William Craig, of Philadelphia; J. J. Karins, with H. A. Dreer, and M. Reukauf, with Bayersdorfer & Co.

H. S.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The ordinary midsummer quiet was generally dispelled last week by the unusual demand for funeral pieces. Reports from all of the downtown districts, as well as the outlying stores, showed that all were busy, the work being well distributed. Asters have the center of the stage and are uncommonly good and plentiful. Prices average normal, with considerable range. There are a few carnations, ordinary in character, while roses are a trifle off.

Club Meeting.

The first meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, after the summer vacation, was held at the rooms of the association in this city, on Monday evening, August 15, and was well attended. President Robert Johnston was in the chair.

The following candidates were elected to membership: John Burke, of Johnston; Albert Holscher, of Olneyville; Charles Jackson and H. C. Neubrandt, of this city, and Matthew J. Leach, of Pawtucket. There was a general discussion as to the programs for the meetings during the coming fall and winter.

Various Notes.

Theo. R. Peterson, proprietor of the Hogg Greenhouses, on Benefit street, is making extensive repairs and improvements at his range.

M. Macnair reports an unusual run of business during the last couple of weeks, especially in funeral work.

Louis Clarner has given up market gardening and is to devote one house, 30x100 feet, at once to carnations.

Walter S. Sword, of Valley Falls, has all the work he can attend to spraying shrubs and trees.

J. Kopelman furnished several hundred purple asters for the outing of the Providence Lodge, Order of Elks, August 17.

Max Villier, with Johnston Bros., is on his vacation, which he is spending in canoeing.

Eugene Appleton has been appointed a member of one of the principal committees for the observance of Columbus day by the Knights of Columbus, in October.

Frederick Covill, manager of the flower department of the Shepard Co., is on his vacation.

William Appleton, who has been on the sick list, is able to be out again.

Mr. Miller, who formerly conducted the Rhode Island Greenhouses in this city, but is now in business in the south, was in the city last week, calling on old acquaintances.

John Burke, of the Burke Rose Co., promises an extra heavy cut of roses the coming season.

Alex. Macrae was a recent visitor in Boston.

William Hay has completed another of his houses at Oaklawn.

J. Frank Schellinger has an unusually fine lot of fancy melons in one of his largest houses at Riverside this summer.

Visitors: Mr. Franklin, of Franklin & Crosby, of Danielson, Conn.; Mr. Green, of Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, and a representative of H. M. Robinson & Co., of Boston.

W. H. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is rather quiet here at present, with stock quite scarce. Carnations are just beginning to make their appearance from new stock, and in the next week or so there will be a fair cutting; stems are rather short on the first ones, but are getting better every day. Roses are not plentiful, but quality is good, considering the extremely warm weather we have had lately. There will be some good Killarney in a few days, as the stock looks fine. There is a little white Killarney planted that looks unusually promising.

Asters are almost a total failure here in the late varieties, but there are some few good ones which bring a good price. Some growers have made nothing out of their asters this season. There are a few rubrum lilies and some Harrisii, but demand is light on them. The outlook now indicates a good supply of greens the coming season, as there is considerably more planted than usual. There is not much call for pot plants; ferns have the preference, but demand even for them is light.

Various Notes.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is breaking ground for a dwelling house, also for a greenhouse 25x135 feet and another 15x135 feet, all to be erected at the country plant.

E. Metzmaier reports plenty of work on hand getting things in shape for the coming season.

I. D. Seibert returned from Michigan and reported a fine time, with good fishing.

James McKellar and wife returned August 29 from Greenfield and Chillicothe.

R. A. Currie has returned from his fishing trip along the lake. He reports plenty of bites, but not from the fish.

The street car strike is still on here, with no signs of a settlement in sight, but the state fair will be held, regardless.

OBITUARY.

Peter Casey.

Peter Casey, for over half a century a resident of Pawtucket, R. I., died August 26, aged 75 years. Mr. Casey was a native of Ireland, and came to this country, settling at Pawtucket, fifty-one years ago. He held various gardening positions, but had been in the employ of the city of Pawtucket for the last twelve years. He was a member of the common council of Pawtucket in 1896-97. He leaves a widow and seven children.

John W. Young.

John W. Young, one of the oldest and best known citizens of Fall River, Mass., died rather unexpectedly, August 26, after being ill only a couple of days. He was 69 years old. The deceased was an expert landscape gardener and for many years had employed a gang of men caring for grounds and gardens in the residential section of the city. He leaves three daughters.

Edward F. O'Hara.

Edward F. O'Hara died at his home in Newport, R. I., August 19, after an illness of several weeks. For more than twenty years he had been the head gardener in charge of the estate of George H. Norman, in Newport. He was born in Lancashire, England, and came to this country about twenty-seven years ago, and soon afterwards settled in Newport. He made a specialty of landscape work and was successful in the transplanting of large trees. The handsome beeches at Belair are monuments to his skill. His widow, two daughters and one son survive him, another son having died about two years ago.

William B. Whittier.

William Benjamin Whittier, the well-known and popular proprietor of the Framingham Nurseries, Framingham, Mass., died August 28, after a short illness. Mr. Whittier was a native of Nova Scotia. He had built up one of the finest nursery businesses in the east, his nurseries being the most extensive in Massachusetts, stock being shipped to all parts of the United States, as well as abroad. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston a year ago spent a most enjoyable field day at his nurseries and was well entertained. Funeral services were held at his late residence, Lawrence avenue, Framingham, August 30, when many in the trade attended, and the wealth of floral tributes attested the great esteem in which he was held.

E. C. Lufkin.

Everett C. Lufkin, for twenty years a florist on Lexington street, Lynn, Mass., died suddenly at his home, 10 Lexington street, August 22, of acute heart disease. The deceased was born in Lynn sixty-four years ago, and had always resided there. He was a member of the Maple Street M. E. church, and had a large circle of friends. He is survived by a widow, Abbie M. Lufkin, one son, William E., and one stepdaughter, Miss Netta M. Barker. One sister, Mrs. Robert Leslie, of Swampscott, and two brothers, William and Sylvester, both of Lynn, also survive.

W. G. Gano.

W. G. Gano, a well-known Missouri horticulturist, died at his home in Parkville, Mo., July 20, at the age of 71 years. He was widely known as the man for whom the Gano apple was named, and because of his connection with organized horticulture in the Missouri valley. He was for twenty years a member of the Missouri State Horticultural Society, having served several terms as its treasurer. He was also active in the Missouri Valley Horticultural Society, and was one of the original owners of the Olden Fruit Farm, in Howell county.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Joseph Tosini, who for many years was located at 215 South Phillips avenue, has removed to 202 North Phillips avenue. He has thoroughly renovated the store and is equipped for doing a much larger business than formerly.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

Somerville, Mass.—Frank J. Reynolds has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $2,145; assets, $300.

South Sudbury, Mass.—Solomon H. Anderson has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $2,001.44; assets, $40.85.

River Forest, Ill.—Ernest Oechslin says business is now picking up, although he has no complaints to make regarding summer trade.

Lockport, N. Y.—Charles Mansfield dropped in at the convention, fresh from a trip to England, his first trip of the kind in forty years.

Sioux City, Ia.—The contract for the erection of the greenhouse at the Main street pumping station has been awarded to the King Construction Co.

Colorado City, Colo.—The annual flower show was held in Mack's hall, August 24 and 25, under the auspices of the Improvement Society, of which John B. Stephen is president.

Green Bay, Wis.—Carl Meier & Co. have completed the erection of two additional houses of iron-frame construction, covering a space 42x80 feet. They have also installed a new boiler.

Hammond, Ind.—H. F. Erlebach, the plant tub manufacturer, has found it necessary to increase the factory capacity by an addition, 50x100 feet. He has also been making other improvements to the buildings.

Fairmount, Ind.—The greenhouses owned by the Misses Addie Dare and Mary Pearson, on South Mill street, will be doubled in size at once. It is expected that the new houses will be completed in time for the winter season.

Corning, N. Y.—A. H. Woeppel says the trip to the Rochester convention did him a world of good. He is now busy planting a grand lot of carnations. He demonstrates home decoration with several handsome flower beds, facing the entrance to his snug plant.

Maywood, Ill.—Ernst Rober, who is growing poinsettias for shipping, recently discovered a variegated strain among the young stock. This new plant shows great promise, and he has isolated it so as to watch the development closely. Mr. Rober hopes to get an entirely new variety from it.

Calgary, Alberta.—The same week the S. A. F. was in session at Rochester the farthest north flower show was in progress at Calgary. It crowded the Art building at Victoria park. The exhibits were of great variety, but largely amateur, but Calgary's half-dozen florists did their share. The public interest was large.

Ogden, Utah.—B. Van Der Schuit is building another greenhouse, 17x80, with brick walls.

Newton, Mass.—The Boston Gardening Co. has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $50,000, by Fitz-Henry Smith, Jr., and Donald M. Hill.

Iowa City, Ia.—A. G. Prince has bought the Ranney greenhouse and is removing it to his establishment on Summit street, where it will be used as a palm and display house.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—It is reported that Frank Gompf, who is connected with the greenhouses of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, has invented a soil carrier, but that the machine is not yet quite ready to be placed on the market.

Thompsonville, Conn.—The cut flower establishment of D. Wm. Brainard, which was located on Pease street for many years, has now been transferred to the site of the Brainard Floral & Nursery Co., on Springfield street, for the purpose of concentrating the two departments.

Lancaster, N. Y.—William J. Palmer, of W. J. Palmer & Son, the Buffalo firm whose greenhouses are located here, has purchased the Hummell property on Central avenue, near the Erie railroad. This will make a most desirable addition to Mr. Palmer's large interests here.

Roswell, N. M.—The Alameda Greenhouses, which are owned by Mrs. J. P. Church, have been leased for the last five years to F. O. Santheson, on account of the feeble condition of Mrs. Church's health. She has now fully recovered, however, and will resume the management of the place January 1, 1911.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The Pikes Peak Floral Co. has announced that it will open a store in the downtown district this fall. The exhibit of this firm at the annual flower show of the El Paso County Horticultural Society, in the Temple theater, occupied the entire theater stage and was one of the most tasteful displays ever seen here. C. E. Mealy, the designer, received many compliments on his work.

Washington, Ia.—A hail storm in this vicinity, August 20, did great damage to greenhouses and to outdoor stock. Two hundred lights of glass were broken at the greenhouses of Jos. P. Malinskey and one of the houses was flooded, as there was also a heavy fall of rain. Mr. Malinskey's range now consists of four houses—a rose house 30x75, a mum house 23x100, a carnation house 23x100, and a smilax house 16x50—and he intends to build another house, for lettuce.

Missoula, Mont.—Charles F. Dallman has just completed the erection of greenhouses which will about double his glass area. The addition includes a large rose house.

Sedalia, Mo.—The Archias Floral Co., which purchased the greenhouses of Gelven & Son last spring, will build two more houses this fall, in order to meet the rapidly increasing demand.

New Haven, Conn.—L. Wolf has removed from 180 to 158 Meadow street. In spite of a recent accident which resulted in breaking his arm, he has given regular attention to business at the store.

Columbus, O.—H. W. Kropp has leased the establishment known as the Cottage Rose Garden, conducted for many years by the late G. Drobisch, and will carry on the business in the future.

Rutland, Vt.—The Perry Seed House, florists and seedsmen, on Park street, will tear down two old greenhouses and erect in their place one modern house, 40x100. This will provide a space 28x40 feet larger than at present.

Norwich, Conn.—Charles T. Beasley, gardener for Mrs. William C. Lanman, at Ghlanbouer, is experimenting with a new white chrysanthemum which gives promise of being quite valuable, if he succeeds in perpetuating it. It is a sport from a standard yellow variety.

Minneapolis, Minn.—L. S. Donaldson, proprietor of the department store that does one of the largest florists' businesses in the Twin Cities, is one of the board of managers of the National Conservation Congress, which meets at St. Paul, September 5 to 9, and to which the Society of American Florists has accredited five delegates.

Lockport, N. Y.—A feature of the recent Old Home week was a parade of decorated vehicles. While the float of Charles L. Dole was not the largest or most elaborate, he received many compliments on it as the most artistic in the line. A floral harp stood in the center of the platform. It was five feet high, made of Lilium rubrum with a base of pink gladioli. Doves on the corner posts of the float held garlands of Asparagus plumosus and silver tinsel, which was brilliant in the sunshine. The garlands of smilax were caught up with a bunch of Harrisii and a large bow and streamers of pink tarlatan, chiffon being too delicate for outdoor effect. The driver wore a blue uniform with white cap and gloves. Mr. Dole says the expense and work involved were well repaid by the favorable impression made on the public, and its advertising power has been far-reaching and beneficial.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, M. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show
Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.PECKY cypress, the best bench lumber, still stands at the old price, but the finer grades of cypress are steadily climbing.If The Review does not already carry in its Classified Department all the heads you would like to use, the ones you want will be put in for you.ONE of the best as well as the pleasantest indications of prosperity in our trade is the absence of important failures among florists during the summer now drawing to a close.THE Want Ad department of the REVIEW has grown till two pages will no longer carry it. Every advertisement in the department represents the actual need of some subscriber, and it pays to watch and use these pages.THE committee in charge of the S. A.
F. souvenir album has about a hundred copies on hand. A copy will be sent to any one, while they last, who will send twenty-five cents to E. F. Rowe, 53 Audubon street, Rochester, N. Y.E. E. STEWART, Rives Junction, Mich., sends The Review a fine bunch of Gladiolus Golden Queen, the variety with which he won the Arthur T. Boddington trophy for best yellow exhibited at the Rochester show of the American Gladiolus Society.THE one disappointing feature of the S. A. F. convention, so far as the Rochester florists are concerned, is said to be the meager attendance of gunners. The committee is said to feel that the participation of only eight gunners does not justify the work and expense incident to holding the shoot on the scale of this year.THE thirty-one reports of state vice-presidents of the S. A. F., presented at Rochester, almost invariably started off with the statement that 1910 has thus far proved the banner year for all departments of the florists' business. Many of the reports also spoke of greater rapidity of increase in the call for the better grade of stock.

INDEXING THE REVIEW.

I send herewith $1 for another year of The Review. It is a splendid paper, but I believe it could be bettered in one respect. In the back of the paper every six months, or once a year, an index to all the articles would be a great help. We often wish to refer back to some article and are unable to find it. I dislike to cut articles out of The Review because it spoils it as a magazine.
C. S. S.The publication of a complete index,
(and one incomplete would be valueless) to the 2,460 pages that comprised the last semiannual volume, would entail an expense which seems out of proportion to its usefulness, since each number contains a table of the contents ofthat edition. A large percentage of subscribers file their copies of The Review. One way to make articles of special interest readily available is to pencil on the upper front cover of each issue a word or two indicating the subject of such article. Then a glance through the pile of copies serves to locate the article wanted.

A FLORAL TRIBUTE.

A young English girl, who visited Boston, sent the following to friends in that city on her return home:"If strict ideas ever come true,
A Boston lady had 'em;
She did not say 'Chrysanthemum';
She said 'Chrysanthemadam.'" —Boston Herald.

RESULTS ARE COUNTING.

It is an old saying that "kissing goes by favor," and a good many factors have influenced the placing of advertising orders; but men in this trade are coming more and more to buying advertising on the same basis they buy other necessities—on the basis of value for their money:Hereafter when I have any stock for sale I'll advertise it in The Review for two weeks and I'll get orders for two months; and not in the _____, where you advertise two months and not get a single reply or inquiry. I received orders for months after I stopped my ad in The Review in May. That's where advertising pays.—Wm. J. Ehmann, Jr., Corfu, N. Y.,

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Last week the weather was perhaps the most important factor in the market. Early in the week it hurt, but later it helped. Excessive heat and humidity caused the demand to run down hill until Thursday, August 25, which many houses report to have been not only the duller day of the week, but of the month, while some say it was the duller day of the summer.
However dull it was, there was a prompt recovery as soon as the cool wave struck, and by Sunday noon the rather alarming accumulations of stock had been cleaned up. It was warmer again at the opening of the current week, but Monday showed a really first-class demand, calling principally for asters and roses, and the following days have seen a fair measure of activity. Everyone feels that the corner has been turned and that business will increase steadily during the next three months.The supply of Beauties has increased slightly since last report. Most of the crop is of medium length, coming from young stock, but there is enough of the longer stemmed flowers so that buyers of hundred lots who are not too particular as to quality have been able to negotiate some concessions in price.
Of other roses there has been some decrease in supply, the first crop from the early planted houses having passed off and the cut from the rested plants and the later planted houses being still in prospect with many growers. The best roses come from houses grown specially for a summer crop, but all roses are realizing prices that compare favorably with the value of the same grade of goods at other seasons. Bride is beginning to be something of a factor again.

Asters are in large supply and there

DON'T GO WITHOUT GOOD BEAUTIES YOU CAN GET THEM HERE

There are no better Beauties than those we are shipping, and the cut is not only large but steadily increasing—mostly medium stems, the length most in demand at this season. We invite all buyers in search of a dependable supply of thoroughly satisfactory Beauties to send their orders to us.

Pink—KILLARNEY—White

Our Pink Killarneys are known far and wide as the finest roses that come into the Chicago market. The White Killarneys are from the same growers, and have the same quality. We never had nicer, cleaner Killarneys than this year. Try them and see for yourself. Send an order today.

ASTERS

We want to hear from all the Aster buyers. Our supply is large and the quality is A No. 1. We can take good care of all orders, no matter what grade of stock is wanted—the finest, large, long-stemmed, "special" flowers in all colors can be had here in quantity, or we can supply the "select" grade if a good grade is wanted at a moderate price, with plenty of short-stemmed stock for work at $5.00 to $7.50 per 1000. Order of us and get just the grade you need and at the right price.

Gladioli

Mrs. Francis King is the variety everybody wants; it's the best red and no other sort will take its place with buyers who know "glads." We can supply it in quantity, fine stock, at $5.00 to $6.00 per 100. Also a large crop of America, the one best light pink, and Augusta, white. We are headquarters for good glads. Order of us.

Fine Easter Lilies

We can furnish fancy Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. The supply is large at present. $15.00 per 100.

Summer Stock

We can supply any flower in season. Order of us.

Greens

is some splendid stock about. So large a part of the retail business is funeral work that there have been afternoons when cheap white was not to be had, although fancy, long-stemmed white were available in fair quantity and there were uncounted—and unsalable—thousands of asters of undesirable colors and undesirable quality. The sale for pink asters is limited, and especially so in the poor grade, while for the dark colors the call is only a fraction of the call for white.

Last week's storm did considerable damage to gladioli and for two or three days sales were difficult because of the condition of the stock. It is better now. The supply is on the down grade, several large growers having sent advice of cutting the last of this season's crop, but there still are plenty, with some to spare. Next year America, King and Augusta will be grown more extensively and the mixtures hardly at all for this market. There are a few dahlias, as an indication of the approach of the close of summer.

As a summer flower Chrysanthemum Golden Glow has proven a distinct failure; it is not wanted. There have been more or less of it in the market for almost the whole of the summer and now the quantity is considerable. Where the first early yellow mums brought $3 to $4 per dozen, these sold from $2.50 down to $1.50, and some houses say there has been no demand that would take up all the receipts until the cheap-sales stores were brought into the deal by offering them the mums at whatever price they would give for the day old or older stock. These mums may have paid some growers, but if so they certainly are the exception.

There are plenty of lilies and valley, but carnations are about at the low ebb. Cattleyas also are in light supply, but also in slight request.

Asparagus is selling well. There is a good supply of all other greens.

The wholesale houses will now keep open until 6 p. m.

Don't forget that Monday, September 5, is a holiday, that there will be only one delivery of mail and that the wholesale houses will close at noon. Orders should be wired early.

August Business.

Summer business is increasing each year. Not so long ago the wholesale stores only were kept open in August as a matter of form, just so there would be someone to extend the glad hand to a customer who might drop in for a social call. But now August turns a profit for a good many people in the flower business and it pays to keep up the regular business gait. The month just closed was certainly the best August in the history of the market. It afforded a quite respectable volume of business, with a promise of much better things to come.

Various Notes.

Louis Wittbold, of the George Wittbold Co., is suffering from his annual attack of hay fever. He reports that business has been better all summer than it was a year ago. This company is building a number of cement hotbeds at the Edgebrook plant.

The possibility of a reduction of express rates affords much joy. The rates have gone up so steadily, and are now so high that growers, wholesalers and buyers will welcome a turn in the other direction.

John Zech and Allie Zech were struck by an automobile as they were crossing Dearborn street on Randolph on their way home Saturday afternoon, August 27. Mr. Zech was knocked down and a wheel passed over both feet, inflicting a painful but not necessarily dangerous injury. In addition he suffered bruises on the hip and hand. Allie got off with a couple of cuts and the ruin of a pair of trousers.

The A. L. Randall Co. is preparing to move the office to the third floor, thereby gaining considerable needed additional room for the cut flower department. Carl Thomas is expected home from his summer vacation in Pennsylvania about September 15. Frank Johnson is visiting Colorado customers. Jos. Straus has returned from his vacation.

Since returning from his fishing trip with N. J. Wieter, John Sinner has had his coat off and his sleeves rolled up, helping out with the work at the Sinner greenhouses, while Mr. Wieter has been at work on the arrangements for the Luxembourg schaubermess, where a flower show always is a feature, to be

The Market.

The long run of dry weather was broken by light rains last week, but things have not been much better since. Conditions have been so bad that watering would not help outdoor stock much. The growers all report failures of dahlias, and the asters are poor. Earlier in the summer there were some exceptionally fine gladioli, but they are weakening now.

The writer nosed into one or two of the stores, and found business "about the same, thank you." However, good stock is so hard to secure that no one seems to care much if things are not crowding them. All indications point to a record-breaking business for the coming fall and winter season. The exceptional number of weddings listed for autumn is causing universal comment.

Various Notes.

The dry weather caused the carnation plants to stand still in the field for so long a time that they are quite small for this season of the year. Chas. P. Mueller has all of his carnations benched and is in the market for more. W. H. Culp & Co. have one house planted, and will probably fill the other this week. The plants at both places seem willing to take hold at once and make up for lost time. These two establishments have some exceptionally good houses of benched chrysanthemum plants, which will certainly attract attention when the blooms begin to show up.

The writer inspected the report of the Hail Association for the last year, and it helped him to realize what a clean-up the storm of May 1 in this city amounted to. The pessimist said that that storm represented one-half of the hail losses paid in the whole United States for that year, and he didn't think this was any state to have a greenhouse in, but the optimist said that it had never acted so badly before and wouldn't again until the comet came back.

Chas. P. Mueller is building a 2-story extension of cement blocks, which will increase his coal facilities and give room for another boiler. There will also be a carpenter shop upstairs, to help the night fireman keep awake with the damaged flats and boxes.

N. Dugan, recently of Dugan & Cane, is now in charge of the Bixby greenhouses.

Walter Davidson has given up his position at the Mueller greenhouses and is now with the Hydro-Carbon Light Co., of this city.

F. Kuechenmeister has returned from his vacation at the lakes and is superintending the construction of a $5,000 residence.

William Shick has removed his Lula avenue establishment and is erecting it to operate in connection with the Kellogg street plant. Among other improvements is a new Kewanee firebox boiler. R. C.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The close of August finds little change in the cut flower market, save for the unmistakable evidence that the tide of supply is rising. This is not shown by the asters or by the gladioli, which have reached their height, but by the first shipments of indoor carnations and by the arrival of the dahlia. Expert judges of the market believe that the second Monday in September is early enough to commence heavy cutting in the dahlia fields, but there are always a few to be had before that time, and some fair flowers in all colors have arrived. The first carnations are nice stock for the season, insufficient in quantity to have much effect on the market.

Asters are still the leading flowers. They are obtainable in all grades and in all colors. The demand for them is fair; it may be called excellent in the better grades. Gladioli are more abundant than a week ago. The temporary shortage in the supply has disappeared. They are selling fairly well.

Beauties are in excess of the demand. Valley is selling well. There are hardly enough good roses in the smaller varieties, but poor stock is overabundant. Cattleyas are scarce. A few gardenias can be had. The Easter lily continues an important flower. Outdoor flowers have been curtailed and are now improved by the wet weather.

Taken all in all, the market is fair for August, better in many cases than in previous years.

Andalusia.

The noon accommodation for Bristol carried a party of five over the Pennsylvania railroad to Andalusia. There was Henry F. Michell, looking as fresh as though he had never known a care; his secretary of state, the brilliant Paul F. Richter; Thomas Brown, who presides over domains of dual magnitude, and C. F. Schermerhorn, exponent of the Baker-Vawter system of keeping 'counts from kinking.

The visit was to inspect the new trial grounds of the Henry F. Michell Co. The grounds comprise a little under twenty acres, most conveniently situated adjoining the station of Andalusia, stretching for 700 feet along the railroad on the southeast and 1,300 feet back to the trolley on the northwest.

A hedge of California privet has been planted around the entire field, as a more suitable setting for such a place than the fence that formerly existed. The railroad front of the lot appealed to the advertising sense of Henry F. Michell. "We are great advertisers," he said, "and can show the people our grass seeds; 250 trains pass here daily." Something has been done already in grass seed, for there were trials of two or three dozen different sorts carefully labeled side by side. Drainage is receiving careful attention; an expert from Harrisburg has laid out the lines that should be followed to secure perfect drainage and it is planned to use 5,000 drain tiles this fall. When the purchase was made the ground was practically clear, barring weeds—not a house or tree anywhere. Now there is a comfortable dwelling for the manager, Manson Roberts; a stable with horses, wagons and cart; a windmill and elevated tank covering a well of pure artesian water, drilled ninety-four feet in depth, and a greenhouse with potting and boiler shed; here Frank Michell was hard at work potting Ampelopsis Veitchii.

The objects of this Andalusia trial ground are twofold: First, to produce stock required in the store, chiefly vegetable plants, flowering plants and roots difficult to procure; second, to test the character and quality of the seeds. It may be further said that reciprocity, the old policy of the house, will be maintained. It is more than likely the real mission of the place will eventually become the production of perennials, with the other two as side issues. The belief is firm that there is a great future in hardy perennials and that the house must have them at some day not far distant.

The grounds were filled with good stock. There were California privet from spring cuttings, asparagus of the edible kind; tomatoes, Comet and Lorillard; cabbage, carrots and a host of others. Then there were cannas, especially desired for their showy decorativeness and because cannas confidently catalogued are, alas, often difficult to obtain. There were hardy chrysanthemums, too, in some fifty varieties, and from them cuttings have been rooted. This is enough to give a faint idea of the rows and rows, distanced for horse cultivation, now growing here.

The greenhouse is interesting, with its sowings of myosotis, bellis and pansies. Just think of the joy of having a particularly fine batch of Michell's Giant Exhibition pointed out by Henry F. Michell himself! All were coming up well.

Another greenhouse and a few more rows of frames are planned for this fall. The place makes an excellent showing for its first year, and will undoubtedly become one of the show places.

Various Notes.

William Berger is erecting five greenhouses in the rear of his new Germantown avenue store, which is progressing rapidly. Mr. Berger has moved several of the houses from his Queen street

The Sensation of the Year

Our Display Scored the Greatest Triumph Over All

We are receiving congratulations from every section of the country on our exhibit at the Rochester Convention. People are talking about it everywhere; they say that the greatest convention of the S. A. F. O. H. was held at Rochester last month; they say that the feature of that convention was our exhibit; nothing like it has ever been seen in this country or anywhere else before.

Our friends are enthusiastic over it. Our supporters are increasing in numbers. The reason is plain: Our exhibit was the largest; every article in our comprehensive exhibit was patiently selected by us.

The experience of years enables us to know a good thing when we see it; when we don't see it we make it.

The American florists appreciate this and are coming to us more and more for what they need.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

There is hardly anything new to report about the market last week, but a few cool days toned up things a little and made it look as though fall had set in, as a number of the florists were quite busy all week. With the opening of the schools and return of summer tourists, September should start business going well.

At the wholesale houses, stock is beginning to look better, especially roses and carnations, which have been poor all summer. The only flowers that are plentiful at present are tuberose, gladioli and asters, and these have been having a good demand. Asters, as a rule, sell clean, as also do the glads in the light shades. There is a good run on asparagus, smilax and other greens.

Various Notes.

Frank Fillmore is cutting some nice asters from under glass. Alterations, repainting and other improvements are nearly completed for the winter.

The early closing schedule has been completed and from now on the regular closing hours will prevail.

The second Sunday opening of the year at Shaw's garden will take place September 4. Superintendent H. C. Irish has everything in fine shape to receive the large crowds that always attend these Sunday openings.

Wm. Winter, one of the largest growers in Kirkwood, visited Chicago last week for a business trip. Mr. Winter's stock of carnations, violets and sweet peas is always among the best on the market.

Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, got quite a bit of free advertising out of write-ups resulting from an advertisement in a daily paper for an ugly cashier. He says the handsome ones all get married, so he will try an ugly one.

Eugene H. Michel, formerly head of the Michel Plant & Bulb Co., is now in the employ of Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia. Mr. Davidson, also formerly with Michel's here, has been employed at Dreer's for several years.

Mrs. Buechel, of the Riessen Floral Co., says the firm has had quite a good run of work all summer. An attractive window display helped greatly.

All of our Kirkwood growers have almost completed their new additions and are beginning to house their carnations and violets. The majority of them have added some glass, and it looks as though a great cut of carnations, violets and sweet peas will be consigned to this market from them this winter.

Andy Hoffmann and Dave Bauzhof, George Waldbart's able assistants, are getting things in shape for the fall and winter season. At present the inside of the store is getting a new coat of white paint.

Oscar Kuehn, with his family, got back from his vacation trip last week, which was spent in Milwaukee, Detroit and Chicago.

Walter Weber, head of the growing department of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., has the houses in fine shape for the coming season and expects to have a big crop of roses and carnations.

A. J. Bentzen, of the Bentzen Floral Co., reports that fire destroyed its two-story stable on Marcus street last week, causing a damage of $500.

Ed Kelley and Mrs. Kelley, of the Kelley Floral Co., have taken a trip to Chicago and other northern points.

E. L. Loyet, florist on Kingshighway, reports that he will retire from the flower business and go into the automobile business.

C. Young & Sons Co. has issued its fall catalogue. With the improvements at the store and greenhouses completed, this company is ready for the fall season to open. W. C. Young, who has charge of the greenhouses, says they will have plenty of everything this year.

Nursery, Thursday afternoon, September 8. J. J. B.

ALLEGANY, N. Y.

The first summer flower show, held in the town hall August 21 and 22, was a splendid success. Great credit for this is due to Mrs. Alfred Keyes, of Gowanda, who has had considerable experience in superintending similar exhibitions, which are becoming very popular throughout the Empire State.

George P. Graham and John Leipold, both craftsmen from Bradford, Pa., were judges in the plant sections. Dana R. Herron, of Olean, and Walter Mott, of Newburgh, were the judges of cut flowers, and agreed that the exhibit of sweet peas was the best seen this season.
Mr. Herron offered several prizes to be competed for. Two entries of native wild flowers, gathered and arranged by two schoolgirls, Misses Rose Wheeler and Ethel Horton, showed great skill. M.

man can say what they are; rates are fixed only in accordance with the buyer's exigencies or the seller's opportunities. Before another four months are gone, famine prices are likely to prevail."

Mr. Deal's words are entitled to more than the usual consideration, for the reason that in its issue for September 16, 1909, The Review published an interview, which was subsequently copied by papers in England, France, Germany, Italy, Australia and even in Russia, in which Mr. Deal gave a long range view of the future, and which proved marvelously accurate in so far as a single year could confirm the prescient story of a decade.

"A study of the years goes to show that a season of marked character, as hot and dry, is followed by others of similar nature and progressive intensity. Those who can look back thirty years in the seed growing business, as I do, will find they can confirm this. For instance, this is the third wet year for the seed growers of England and France, and, in fact, all of Europe. This year is worse than the last, which was itself worse than the first; whether or not we have passed the worst, no man may say. For my part, I should not be surprised if next year proves for us in England practically sunless, and in any event I do not look for a return all in one year to what we would call an average good growing season.

"The effect of the unfavorable conditions of the last two seasons is too well known to call for extensive comment, except that it may be said that latest advices from practically all important growing districts indicate the necessity of a reduction from previous estimates, none of which were sanguine. For instance, our brassicas are now reported to me to be turning out only one-half to five-eighths the yield we figured on when I left home six weeks ago.

"My advice to anyone who holds seeds is to 'sit on 'em,' as we say.

"Not only is the time of high prices here, but the day of low prices for seeds is gone, I think, forever. Seed prices this season, and undoubtedly next season, will be higher than ever before in the memory of this generation. The shortage this year, following on last year's shortage, is so acute that it will take at least two and probably three consecutive years of good yields to get back a comfortable warehouse supply. I do not believe that the next five years will see any surplus of seeds; that is to say, conditions of growing and increase in demand are such that a return to a normal business basis cannot be had much under five years. I do not expect that we ever shall get back to the low prices of a few years ago; the day has forever gone for buying turnip seed in England at 6 cents per pound.

"There are a number of reasons why seeds never again will be cheap. In the first place, so rapid is the increase in the world's population, and so still more rapid is the increase of wealth and the rise in the standard of living, that before long there either will be twice as many seedsmen as now, or the present number will be selling twice as many seeds as now. Where are they to come from?

"It is a fact known to all seedsmen who deal in a large way that, the world over, there are not now as many acres under seed crops as there were five years ago; the decrease has been particularly sharp in the last two years, and the only thing that can prevent a still greater reduction in acreage next year is an increase in the price paid to growers sufficient to make seed crops at least as profitable to them as are the general agricultural crops. It must not be forgotten that the farm values of all crops have risen sharply the world over the last few years, and no one will expect the farmer to perform the extra work required on seed crops unless he can make more money than he can from corn or wheat or potatoes. There are not now so many farmers growing seeds as there were ten years ago. You can't prevail on some of them to plant the crops at any prices within reason. It becomes more difficult each year, and the results this year will add still further to the difficulty. For our 1911 mangel we give the farmers 2 shillings per hundredweight advance over the 1910 contract price; on turnip, 1 to 2 shillings advance; on beet, 3 to 4 shillings advance; and it's hard to get the contracts placed, at that.

"This leads up to another tendency in the seed growing business fostered by the present conditions. In France, generally speaking, the small farmers are no longer willing to take contracts to grow seeds at fixed prices; they want the market value at date of delivery. For years the farmers have seen their crops worth on the open market at date of delivery a considerable advance over the contract price; in fact, frequently several times as much as they had agreed to grow the crop for. Now, the French farmer is a frugal person; he believes in the old adage, "Watch the pennies and the pounds will take care of themselves"; he is able to finance himself, and he won't grow seeds for one except on his own terms, except one he blessed with extraordinary powers of persuasion.

"Some of the continental houses countenance the practice of growing crops at open prices, and make a contract with the farmer whereby they agree to take his crop and pay for it a fixed percentage, varying from seventy-five to eighty per cent, of the price printed in the buyers' wholesale catalogue.

"Such a custom does not meet with universal approval. Whatever may be said in its favor, it opens the way for unscrupulous dealing, several instances of which already might be cited, and it certainly discourages foresight, the seedsmen's faculty heretofore of greatest value; it reduces the seedsmen to the position of a mere broker, the salesman of the grower paid a commission for his service.

"Then, to go back to the outlook for the immediate future, there is the matter of stock seeds. Warehouses are bare; supplies are, one would say, down to the irreducible minimum; but the fact is, they can and will go still lower. Take peas, for instance; with the world's crop this year turning out only twofold, and with peas on hand worth $7, $8 or probably $10 a bushel in hard cash, who is going to risk them in the ground for seed growing? Of course, stock seed is going to be scarcer than ever it was.

"In the matter of peas and as showing the shortage, before I left home I notified each of our American customers that I was coming to visit them, and asked any who wished to communicate with me to do so at Hotel Imperial, New York. When I reached there I found fourteen letters from American seedsmen, and of the fourteen, eleven asked quotations on peas."

The point will be apparent, as peas are imported only when extremely

"QUALITY" CHRISTMAS SWEET PEAS

At the Exhibition and Convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, July 12th and 13th, 1910, we again won the C. C. Morse & Co.'s Silver Cup for the finest and best collection of Sweet Peas open to the trade only.

The right time to sow Sweet Peas for Christmas flowering is in Aug. and Sept.

All our Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas are true to name and grown from originator's stock (secured by us) by one of the most reliable seed growers and Sweet Pea specialists in California, and we can make immediate delivery. Our output last year was nearly 6000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt, the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year, name on application. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the winter months. Oz. 10 cts., ¼ lb. 40 cts., ½ lb. 60 cts., lb. $1.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.50, lb. $2.50.

Christmas Meteor. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Christmas Captain. Blue and purple. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

scarce in this country, and principally as stock seed.

"To summarize," concluded Mr. Deal, "this is the shortest crop within the memory of the present generation of seedsmen; famine prices will prevail before the end of the season, and the next year or two will present very great difficulties in supplying the demand."

Mr. Deal left England in July, landed at New York, August 5, and is now on a tour of all the principal cities of the States, working northward towards Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and back east via the southern route. He starts for home from New York, October 19.

"American seedsmen are a most businesslike set of men; they give one a hospitable welcome, but are far too busy to fritter away time on trivialities; they want to do business and do it quickly. They appreciate that many seeds will be unobtainable before many weeks, and the trade visitor is not looked upon as a salesman, but as a possible source of supply on some scarce article—the buyers proceed to go through him without a moment's delay. As to contracts for 1911 crops, there is an eagerness to place contracts that amounts almost to a scramble.

"One thing this season will prove," concluded Mr. Deal, "and that is to the advantage of the really dependable seedsmen and the damnation of the one who cannot resist the temptation of a quick profit, forgetting that his misdeeds are sure to come home to roost within the twelvemonth. No matter how scarce the seeds, you can't give a customer 'something just as good'

Giant PANSY Seed

must not be compared with the flimsy Trimar-deau; it is much larger and of good substance. The immense flowers of 3½ to 4 inches are of perfect form; every tint and shade is produced in striking combinations and endless variations of beautiful colors and markings; it is the result of years of selections. The stock plants are selected from many thousands of plants grown for market. It is rich with shades of brown, bronze, red, mahogany and numerous others. 1910 seed now ready, light, medium or dark mixture, 2000 seeds, 50c; 5000, $1.00; ¼ oz. $1.25; 1 oz., $5.00; 1 lb., $50.00.

Also the following colors of the KENILWORTH STRAIN: Yellow; Yellow, dark eye; Lord Beaconsfield, Mme. Perret; White, dark eye; Purple, Masterpiece, Red, Bronze, and Light Blue Shades. Trade pkt., 25c; any 5 for $1.00.

RAINBOW is a blend of over 50 of the latest introductions of giant pansies of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy Seed I will send free 1000 seeds of Rainbow; and with other amounts in like proportion.

the officers of the companies for the outing and the "one square meal" of the season.

West Lake park is one of the most beautiful resorts in the district and every member of the party enjoyed the outing to the fullest. There were boat riding, swimming, shooting and sports of various kinds. Some members of the party added much to the general amusement by acting the parts of characters that are well known to readers of the comic sections of the newspapers, such as Buster Brown, Happy Hooligan, Foxy Grandpa, etc.

One of the attendants at the barbecue was Dan Eyre, who used the occasion as a means of celebrating his seventy-eighth birthday. Mr. Eyre is employed by H. W. Luther, at Ensley, Ala., and is probably the oldest practical florist in this vicinity. He was born in Germany and began his career in the trade under his father's instructions, at the early age of 9 years. He conducted a business of his own, as a florist and nurseryman, for thirty-four years in Jeffersonville, Ind. He is still in good health and attends to his work regularly.

The picnic party returned to Birmingham at 8 p. m., feeling sure that the day's recreation had been the best they had enjoyed in years.

PACIFIC COAST.

CORVALLIS, ORE.

Prof. A. L. Peck, who has been assistant professor of landscape gardening and floriculture at the Oregon Agricultural College, has resigned to go into commercial work at Portland, and Prof. C. I. Lewis, who has charge of the department, has an opening for a young man qualified to carry on this work and take charge of the range of greenhouses recently erected. Prof. Peck will continue to give a part of his time to instruction work at the college, but the assistant to be engaged will be called on to do some of the instruction in floriculture.

Extensive changes in the campus are in contemplation. The area now is about fifty acres, although it is being steadily enlarged. It is planned to spend $20,000 in landscape work within the next two years, along lines mapped out by Olmsted, of Boston, who recently looked over the ground.

SEATTLE.

The Market.

With the much-needed rains and cooler weather of last week, the outlook for select stock is much better.

Sweet peas are again to be had with 12-inch to 15-inch stems. The second crop of Brunner roses is on now. This crop is always better than the first, as the flowers are larger and it is not unusual to get quantities of them with stems from three to five feet long. Asters are making their appearance now and are of good quality. Some of the new varieties are to be had, but not in great quantities.

There has been some talk of starting a commission house here. Such a venture would be profitable if in the right hands, as there are several cities around Seattle that depend on getting a good part of their stock from here. There is always plenty of stock the year around, and the growers would be only too glad to be relieved of the "peddling" part of their business. This proposition should appeal to some thrifty, experienced commission man in the east.

With a slight increase in business, all of the florists are beginning to get ready for the fall trade, and this season will see Seattle florists on even terms with their eastern brothers in the way of fine stores, equipment and up-to-date supplies and novelties.

Various Notes.

The Hollywood Gardens have announced the opening date of their new store as September 1, in the new Haight building, at the corner of Second avenue and Pine street, which is in the midst of the shopping district.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Watson, formerly of this city, opened a flower stand in the Public Market at Tacoma about two months ago, and on a recent visit here they stated that they expected to open a store in the near future. Mr. Watson has leased a range of glass and twenty acres of cleared ground about five miles south of Tacoma, which will be stocked immediately to supply the demands of the store.

The five acres of ground upon which the plant of the Auburn Greenhouse Co., at Auburn, Wash., is located, have been sold to the Chicago & Milwaukee Railroad Co. The railroad company is now negotiating with C. H. The Market.

The weather continues pleasant and everything favors an early resumption of good business. Although there is no particular stir in any branch of the trade, there is demand enough to use all the good stock that is brought into town. There is a scarcity of roses and first-class carnations. Everyone is changing the houses at present, and all that remains to be cut from is such stock as is not to be shifted until another season.

Mums are coming in rather slowly, and the aster crop holds on longer than usual. The weather has been favorable for this flower and we have never had better stock to choose from than that produced this year.

Lilium album, L. longiflorum and L. rubrum are in good supply, but do not sell so well as they formerly did. There is considerable second-class stock of these flowers brought to town, and it is hard to dispose of at any price. In the bulbous stock, amaryllis makes the largest showing, but the public does not take kindly to it. In gladioli, such sorts as America and some of the lighter colors are all that are in demand. Extra fancy dahlias move well, but purchasers are particular, and anything that does not suit the popular fancy usually goes begging.

Maidenhair fern and asparagus are plentiful and cheap. Other green goods are about as usual.

NURSERY NEWS.AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

Now for the digging and shipping of peony roots.

THE death of Wm. B. Whittier, proprietor of the Framingham Nursery, Framingham, Mass., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

THE growing season has not been all that the majority of nurserymen could ask, but in some sections there has been plenty of rain.

CHAS. J. BOYD, of the Brown County Nursery Co., at Ainsworth, Neb., is building a warehouse, 64x64 feet, two stories high and solidly constructed of cement blocks.

THE Hancock Nursery Co., of Angleton, Tex., has the contract to plant fifty-six acres of oranges and eight acres of figs near that town, on land owned by E. B. Keeling, of Dallas, Tex.

SIMPSON & SONS, of Vincennes, Ind., have received an order from Dr. George Knapp, of that city, for a shipment of several thousand trees, to be sent to Dr. Knapp's 700-acre ranch in Colorado.

THE Lilly Orchard Fruit Co. has been incorporated at Bloomington, Ill., with a capital of $30,000, for the purpose of carrying on a general nursery business. The incorporators are C. M. Noble, L. B. Merwin, C. J. Northrup, L. M. Graham and C. C. Marquis.

NURSEYMEN will be interested in the announcement of a new corporation with a capital of $15,000 that was recently organized at Ontonagon, Mich., to grow nursery stock. The officers are: President and manager, Charles F. Nehmer; vice-president, Daniel Nehmer; secretary and treasurer, Henry D. Nehmer.

SOUTHERN NURSEYMEN MEET.

The Southern Nurserymen's Association held its twelfth annual convention at Knoxville, Tenn., August 24 to 26, with an attendance of some half hundred members. The sessions were held at Morrill hall on the campus of the University of Tennessee, where there were excellent facilities for the meeting. It is characteristic of this association to have a long program of short talks. By assigning a topic to practically everyone present a general interchange of ideas is obtained.

During the convention a visit of inspection was paid to the Peter nursery, where the photograph was made for reproduction for the accompanying illustration.

EVILS OF THE REPLACE POLICY.

[A paper read by J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, Tex., before the American Association of Nurserymen at the Denver convention, continued from The Review of August 18.]

After reviewing the reason for taking up the question of policy in replacing stock at less than full price, and its effect on the customer, the salesman, and also on deferred payments, Mr. Mayhew continued:

The United States Nursery Co.

Mental Effect on the Nurseryman.

Finally, brethren, what influence has the policy on our own minds? Do we not know, of a truth, that the cost per tree is as much on replace orders, for which we get one-half price or nothing, as on that class of orders for which we get full price? Do we not realize that requisition for replace trees and plants, in a large majority of instances, comes from a patronage we could wisely refuse to deal with? Have you ever figured who received at least seventy-five per cent of the replace reward or graft? It is the fellow who refuses to respond to your notice of delivery date, who forces your collector to deliver the bill of stock in a special way and at tremendous expense, and who pays you in a worthless "B. P." one year after date, without interest. This is the character of patronage that the replace policy develops.

Southern Nurserymen's Association at Peter's Nursery, Knoxville, Tenn., August 25, 1910

It is an undisputed fact that it costs as much per tree to grow, sell, pack and deliver replace orders as it does those we receive full value on. Are we making more profit in our business than we justly deserve? All these questions are of vital concern to each of us and have a direct bearing on the subject under discussion. If we are honest with ourselves, will we not agree that the policy is a shyster one and is unworthy of us? We are striving for lofty ideals in our chosen vocation, and I am proud to say the tendency is upward. Can we afford, aside from our financial interests, which are directly affected, to set such a standard of values before our salesmen and customers? Can we, as captains of the guard, allow the policy to make us skeptical concerning the worth of our own product? If the mind of the captain is clouded, if he who is most interested is continually laboring under the impression that the goods he produces and offers for sale are of questionable value, how can the best be accomplished? Is it not time for us to cut loose from entangling policies that hinder us and take our place beside other business enterprises that are moving forward?

If in the past we considered this policy of business a shrewd way to outwit our competitor, let us in this enlightened age recognize that our competitor is our friend and brother, and together adopt policies that will rebound to our common good. The salvation of the nursery interests today is through coöperation, and no reform will accomplish the end striven for otherwise. A policy that is good for you people of New York is equally good for us of Texas, for, though a thousand miles separate us, our success or failure is closely allied.

Bound to One Another.

In conversation with a friend some time since, I was pleading for coöperation on this very question, but he remarked that it was a question of individual adjustment, and suggested that the interests of all could be as well served by each individual following his own trend. But is it true? Somehow or other we are bound to one another, whether we will or not. It is my particular business to interest myself in your success, to endeavor, with every faculty God has given me, not only to make my own business a success, but to assist every other one in life to succeed. If there be influences that retard our usefulness to ourselves or to each other, it should be the business of each of us to see that such influences are destroyed.

It has been a pride with me to point to the splendid and loyal spirit of the men making up our associations. I believe with all my heart a more splendid citizenship could not be found among the walks of men, but in one way I would have the nurseryman different. I would like to see him receive in dollars and cents the profit earned on his labor. There are men before me who, if they had received just compensation for their labors, would be rich, when the facts are that they are poor. Why, out of over 300 nurserymen in my state, only half a dozen could afford a trip to the meeting of their national association. My friends, this is one of the resultant evils of the replace policy. We have been profligate where we should have been provident; we have wasted our substance, not in riotous living, but in following policies the result of which is failure rather than success.

May the day soon come when, through sane methods, our business will be made to yield a revenue in keeping with the service we render. To accomplish this many reforms are needed, and not least of these is the elimination of this objectionable policy of replace.

TOLEDO, O.

Club Meeting.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club, August 23, the following officers were elected: President, Otto Krueger; vice-president, W. T. Phillips; secretary and treasurer, Frank Wirz.

The motion under consideration, of inviting the Detroit club to visit us, was laid on the table for the present, because the gladiolus and dahlia fields of the Cushman Gladiolus Co., in Sylvania, are not up to their usual fine standard, on account of the drought this summer.

Florists' Outing.

The annual picnic of the Toledo Florists' Club was held at G. N. Keller's place, on the bay shore, August 21. While the attendance was not large, those present had a most pleasant time. Mr. Keller met the members and their families at the end of the Ironville car line with a couple of wagons, and took out to his place all those who had no automobiles to travel in.

The company was, as always, most kindly received by the members of Mr. Keller's family. After resting on the shady lawn, most of the party went down to the beach, where everybody had a very comfortable time, especially the children, as they had sense enough to go in bathing. Supper was served on the lawn, and certainly there was no chance to complain of the quality or quantity of the good things provided.

An interesting talk was given by Mr. Morgan, a friend of Mr. Keller. Being, like Mr. Keller himself, a veteran of the Civil war, he gave a graphic description of the Sultana disaster on the Mississippi, of which he is a survivor.

A visit to Mr. Keller's place at this time of the year is quite interesting, as the onion harvesting season is on just now and the two eldest sons are heavy growers of sets and pickling onions. Help is extremely scarce and they have to figure out new schemes, tools and machinery for the harvesting of the crops. They have equipped a machine shop on the place, where they do their experimenting and repairing, obtaining their power from gasoline engines.

Various Notes.

Most growers about here have finished carnation planting. Mums are looking well everywhere.

At Suder's they are busy rebuilding

IS OUR SPECIALTY

We have over 50 acres of 1, 2 and 3-year-old plants. Our 3-year-old Privet is the finest we ever had; they have been transplanted once and cut back twice, and have from 10 to 20 branches each, making a close hedge at once. We will fill any order for these plants at the following prices: $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. Cash with order; packing free.

Our 2-year-old plants are very fine, running from 2½ to 3 feet, 8 to 12 branches, and were cut back last fall. We have about 12 acres of this grade growing on leased land; we have been notified to move it off this fall, therefore it must be sold. These 2-year-old plants we will sell for $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000. Packing free. Strictly cash with order to persons unknown to us. Samples sent on request. All shipments are made in close cases and all orders, large or small, get the very best attention.

Our 1-year-old plants are very fine and will run over 18 inches, well branched. We will sell this grade for $1.50 per 100; $12.00 per 1000; 500 at above rates. Packing free; cash with order.

We can supply Privet cuttings in any quantity from 2-year-old plants, 7 to 8 inches, at $1.00 per 1000. Packing free; cash with order.

We have a large number of trimmed specimens on hand in all shapes and sizes. Very handsome; some measure 4 feet in diameter and stand 3 to 4 feet high, and are clipped monthly. These plants have been transplanted several times and have enormous bunches of fibrous roots. Prices on application.

Our stock is all inspected and shipped under certificate granted by the State Board of Agriculture.

The Florists' Manual

A Business Book for Business Men

Second Edition

Thoroughly Revised and Brought up to Date

No dry-as-dust botanical classifications, but tells you just how to produce marketable plants and cut flowers in the best and cheapest way.

Treats of over 200 subjects and is freely illustrated with fine half-tone engravings.

Price, $5.00, prepaid by express or mail.

FLORISTS' PUBLISHING CO., Caxton Building, 324 Dearborn St., CHICAGO

PITTSBURG, PA.

The Market.

Trade continues about the same as at last reports, funeral work being the only thing of any importance. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, especially gladioli and asters, with good lilies and about enough roses to go around.

The retailers are buying but little, and their fall improvements are not yet under way.

Various Notes.

W. H. Rosenbauer, of Sewickley, Pa., has sold his store to Mr. Burns, who was formerly with the Valley Greenhouse Co. Mr. Rosenbauer will continue running his greenhouses.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCallum, of the McCallum Co., have gone to Maple Springs, on Chautauqua lake, to spend a couple of weeks canoeing.

Visitors last week were Arthur Langhans, Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. M. Criswell, Vandergrift, Pa.; Miss Margaret Schneider, Johnstown, Pa., and Harry Papworth, New Orleans, La.

Hoo-Hoo.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Trade remains about the same as usual. Flowers are quite plentiful. Asters are the main thing to be depended on just now. Prices are about the same as usual. Asters retail at 35 cents per dozen, roses at $1 and $1.50 per dozen, gladioli at $1 per dozen, sweet peas at 50 cents per hundred blooms. The sweet peas are getting poor in quality. There are lots of outdoor flowers for making bouquets, etc.

Nearly all of the growers are planting their young carnation stock in the houses. They are fairly good plants.

Asters of the late crop are now coming in, mostly Vick's Branching.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Chamberlain are back again after a pleasant two weeks in the White mountains.

Geo. N. Borden has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent at Lake Winnepesaukee, in New Hampshire.

William Livesey has built a pump house of concrete blocks and installed a two horse-power Economy gasoline engine. W. L.

Keokuk, Ia.—A hail storm that swept over this vicinity August 20 did considerable damage to the greenhouses of Wm. C. Laisle and R. G. Schlotter. Mr. Laisle estimated his loss at $200.

MANCHESTER, MASS.

The annual exhibition of fruits, flowers and vegetables of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held August 24 and 25, in a large tent on the Essex County Club grounds at Manchester, and proved, in spite of droughty weather conditions, to be one of the finest yet held. The attendance of prominent cottagers was, as usual, large.

Much interest centered in the dinner table decorations, which were quite numerous. The silver cup finally went to Magnuson & Hylen, Mrs. James McMillan being second and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy third. Mrs. Lester Leland won the gold medal offered for the best table of flowers arranged by ladies only. The Cedar Acres cup, offered by B. Hammond Tracy, and to be won twice, for the best collection of named gladioli, also went to Mrs. Lester Leland, Eric Wetterlow, gardener.

The best collection of annuals brought out a fine competition, the G. R. White silver cup going to Mrs. James McMillan, who also took second for the best dahlia display, Mrs. G. M. Lane being in the lead in the latter class.

Mrs. E. C. Swift had the best collection of perennial phloxes. Miss A. G. Thayer, J. McGregor, gardener, led for the largest collection of hardy perennials, Miss Helen Hooper, William Swan, gardener, being a good second. Mrs. W. S. Green, A. E. Parsons, gardener, won the Fiske prize for twelve varieties of asters, also taking no less than nine other first prizes for asters.

B. Hammond Tracy and I. Jefferson Coolidge had the best sweet peas. Mrs. W. H. Moore, Alexander Shaw, gardener, had the winning montbretias, marigolds, antirrhinums and hardy hydrangeas.

In the plant classes Mrs. Lester Leland took first prizes for six nephrolepis, six ferns in variety, specimen fern, specimen hydrangea, two dracaenas and specimen dracaena.

William Swan, gardener to Miss Helen Hooper, had the best collection of fruit. It included fine grapes in three varieties, seven varieties of melons, nectarines, peaches, etc. The Farquhar silver cup for twenty varieties of vegetables was taken by Mrs. Lester Leland, who also won the Schlegel & Fottler Co.'s prize for the best collection of peppers.

B. Hammond Tracy had a fine collection of gladioli, winning the silver gilt medal of the society. R. & J. Farquhar & Co., in their display, had a fine vase of Gilia coronopifolia. Other prominent prize winners included Geo. R. White; Mrs. Philip Dexter, James Salter, gardener; Miss Helen Fitch, Mrs. S. P. Brema, Mrs. George Wigglesworth, Mrs. H. W. Mason, Miss Pauline Croll, Mrs. Robert Baker and John F. Wonson. W. N. Craig.

WE TAKE THE LEAD!

IN WHAT?

WHAT A FOOLISH QUESTION!

Don't you know, haven't you heard of GODFREY ASCHMANN, the great importer and Philadelphia grower and shipper of this well-known ever-lasting green decorative plant, the Araucaria Excelsa Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca? We began 25 years ago with only 100 plants. Our 1910 importation is—

and more will be coming this fall, after I make my selection of the choicest on my trip to Belgium, the growing district of the world for ARAUCARIAS, AZALEAS, PALMS, ETC.

WELL INFORMED. It is well known by the trade that for many years past I have gone personally to Belgium to select for our customers the best of Araucarias, Azaleas, Palms, etc. What bargains can be picked up there for cash!

EMPTY HOUSES WON'T PAY.

Now is your time to fill your empty houses with something that will grow into money for you while you sleep. Araucarias will do it. Please look at our special low prices for superior stock.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings). 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 12, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

SEEDS.

Steele's Mastodon pansies, all colors and many entirely new shades, represent seventeen years of evolution. Our ambition was and is to outclass any other strain. In 100 cities and towns west of the Rockies our plants in bloom average double price of others. Mastodons sold this spring up to $1.75 per doz. in Portland. Ordinary "giant" pansies sold for 25c a doz. There is money in Mastodon pansies IN BLOOM. We sow and sell from same sack. 1/12 oz., $1.00. Cash.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

SLOW-BLOOMING GLADIOLI.

Why do some glads only open two or three flowers at a time, and can they be improved in some way? J. J. H.

Some of the larger flowered varieties of gladioli, especially the princeps section, only carry two or three flowers before those first open fade. The princeps varieties are big and handsome, but they never carry so many open blooms as the older and smaller flowered sorts, like Brenchleyensis, May, Augusta, or even that beautiful sort, America. C. W.

SIDING AND SHEATHING.

Which, in your judgment, would be the better method of constructing greenhouse walls—nailing the siding tight to the sheathing, with paper between, or putting a lath between the siding and sheathing, making an air space? C. B.

The usual method of affixing the siding to the sheathing is to put the paper on the sheathing and then nail on the siding. The more modern method, however, is to use laths to fasten the paper and then nail on the siding over the laths, thus leaving an air space of one-half or one-quarter of an inch. This I consider the better system. Ribes.

PINCHING COSMOS.

I should like to have some information in regard to topping cosmos for commercial use. E. W. P.

Cosmos can be made more bushy by judicious pinching. It is now, however, too late to do this. That fine variety, Lady Lenox, which is a late bloomer, makes a beautiful specimen in a tub or large pot when pinched twice or thrice during the season. The first pinching should be done while the plants are no

Foster Pressure Regulator

With this simple device attached to your steam main just inside the greenhouse the pressure on the heating coils will be absolutely constant, anywhere from 1 to 15 pounds (whatever the grower sets the Regulator at), no matter how the pressure on the boilers runs up and down. If the weather changes, or the sun heat varies, instead of turning on more pipes, just turn a nut on the Regulator, and get more steam, or less steam, at once. Made in sizes from 3/4-inch to 10-inch just for this work.

Greenhouse Heating.

A THERMOSTAT is so inexpensive that hardly any greenhouse owner can afford to be without one.

It is September 1 and those who have not already looked to their season's supply of coal are beginning to "sit up and take notice."

COAL has been boosted another 10 cents per ton. It is reported that a number of the Illinois operators have capitulated to the miners' demands and that work is being resumed. This is apparently substantiated by the fact that there are fewer idle coal cars than at any time since spring. The indications point to a car shortage that will far surpass that of last winter and it behooves the florists, who do not want a freeze-up this winter, to buy now.

HEAT FOR RESIDENCE.

We want to heat our residence from our greenhouse boiler, and should like to know what size of flow and return will be necessary, using water under generator pressure. The dwelling, which is 100 feet from the boiler, contains four rooms fifteen feet square and two rooms 6x15 feet. How should the flow and return be protected in the ground, in this Indiana climate? What size of radiator is necessary to heat a room fifteen feet square to 70 degrees in zero weather? The house is of frame construction and nearly new, with building paper under the drop siding and a solid concrete foundation.

M. A. B.

The amount of radiation would vary considerably with the height of the room and the amount of exposed glass. An average for the larger rooms described would be about sixty square feet of radiation. A simple way of determining the amount required in a dwelling, with hot water heat, is to take one square foot of radiation for each square foot of glass, one square foot of radiation for every ten square feet of exposed (outside) wall surface, and one square foot of radiation for every 100 cubic feet of contents of each room. The smaller rooms would perhaps require thirty square feet of radiation each. Use 2½-inch pipe for the main flow and return and 1¼-inch for each radiator.

To prevent loss of heat from the main flow and return, after covering the pipes with asbestos pipe covering, enclose them in 8-inch sewer pipe.

FOR EITHER STEAM OR WATER.

We have four connected houses, each 20x85, together with some lean-to houses. The houses measure about eleven feet to the ridges. We heat with hot water, using 2-inch returns. Could we heat economically with steam by taking out some of the return pipes in each house, and leaving 2-inch pipes for the steam? We are using 2-inch flows, two to each house. How many of the 2-inch returns should be left in each house, in order to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather, using steam?

Is there a feasible combination system of hot water and low pressure steam, and if so, please give us complete information concerning it.

Our boiler is of ample capacity for our plant and for proposed additions, and is an ordinary steam boiler. We propose to build an addition 25x200 feet, which will be practically a detached house. We have plenty of 2-inch pipe on hand. Would you advise using this? The boiler is located near the middle. How would you advise piping this house for steam? We are located in northern Colorado. E. & W.

In a general way, about one-half as much radiation is required for steam as for hot water. To heat a house 20x85 feet with steam would require, for 50 degrees, about six 2-inch pipes.

To put in a combination plant, it is first desirable to have the flow and return connections large enough for hot water. Then provide an expansion tank, with a shut-off valve, for hot water, and steam fittings for steam. The piping should all run downhill and air valves will be needed for steam, as well as globe valves at the ends of about one-half of the returns, to reduce the radiation when using steam.

STEAM BOILER FOR HOT WATER.

We have a steam boiler, internal fired, of ten horse-power, and should like to know if it would heat 6,000 square feet of glass to a temperature of 50 degrees at night in zero weather, using hot water instead of steam. I am located in central Illinois. The boiler is seven and one-half feet long and twenty-six inches in diameter. It contains twenty-eight 2-inch flues and three 4-inch return flues. There is a water space at the front, sides, back and bottom of the firebox. There is one 4-inch outlet and one 4-inch opening for a return. Are these sufficient? We can have a water pressure of about twelve pounds.

W. B. & S.

Although there will be no surplus capacity, a boiler such as described should heat the greenhouse to 50 degrees. This will require about 1,500 feet of radiation for hot water. For this there should be two 4-inch flows and the same number of returns.

BOILER AND RADIATION.

I am planning a change in our heating system and should like to get your opinion. We have a steam boiler, three feet in diameter and ten feet long, with twenty-six 3-inch flues. It is called a twenty horse-power boiler and that is what I figure it. It has nine or ten square feet of grate and a 16-inch smokestack, which I figure is ample for the boiler. Since we burn fine slack coal, we need a large grate area.

We use this boiler for hot water and are enlarging the openings. Am I right in planning that in the future this heater will carry 3,000 square feet of radiating surface and 12,000 square feet of glass, with the house at 50 degrees and with a possible outside temperature of 20 or 23 degrees below zero? Will one run of 2½-inch pipe with five 2-inch returns, and two runs of 2-inch pipe with four 2-inch returns, be sufficient to heat a house with thirty-six feet of sashbars in the roof, a south gable, and a space 2x60 feet exposed on one side? The house is 100 feet long and thirteen feet to the ridge. The north end and the other sides are protected by adjoining houses and a shed.

Am I using large enough flows? Will a 6-inch main be large enough to carry all the heater will ever handle? I cannot well fit a larger one on the steam dome, but could connect another flow on top of the boiler later, if necessary.

What is the Most Vital Point in Grate Construction?

Grate makers and users agree that the most important point is to keep the air spaces open as long as possible under all conditions.

We guarantee to keep the air spaces of the Martin Anti-Friction Rocking Grate open longer under any conditions than can be done by any other grate in existence.

The hottest fire you can build will not warp a "Martin," and it can be installed without disturbing the brick work.

We refer to Peter Reinberg, Emil Buettner, Bassett & Washburn, Wietor Bros., Adam Zender, Sinner Bros., Albert Dickinson Co., and many others.

Is this type of boiler considered economical for hot water heating? Will it make any difference whether the return is connected to the lower part of the end of the boiler, or underneath? I think we can connect with less work, and of course save one elbow, if we connect onto the end. There is already a small return on the front end.

Our tables say a 2-inch pipe will carry 400 square feet of radiating surface, and a 6-inch pipe 3,600 square feet of radiating surface. If they will do so, our flows should be large enough.

Any suggestion will be gratefully received. We are located in northern Colorado. L. J. R.

The calculation for the boiler is correct and the stack will answer if forty feet high.

While 3,000 square feet of radiation will carry 12,000 feet of glass at 50 degrees in zero weather, it will require careful firing to do it at 20 to 23 degrees below zero. To heat a house such as described, it will be best to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. A 6-inch main will be large enough for the heater. The boiler described should give good results with hot water and there will be no objection to connecting the returns at the ends, as proposed.

I do not care to carry more than 200-foot radiation with 2-inch pipe in greenhouses.

SAULT STE. MARIE, MICH.

This locality was recently visited by a hail storm of unusual severity, and the amount of broken glass might have reached rather startling figures if it were not for the fact that the total area of greenhouse glass in this city is comparatively small. The fall of hail was unequaled in the records of the city weather bureau, which extend back twenty-two years. A new record was established in two respects, in the size of the hailstones and in the duration of the storm, which appeared to be confined chiefly to the Soo.

At the greenhouses of Philip Rawlinson about 400 square feet of glass were broken. William E. F. Weber, of the Soo Greenhouses, lost about seventy-five square feet. Mr. Weber's place was not in the thickest of the storm, and he was also so fortunate as to have his glass insured, which was not the case with any of his neighbors.

Otto H. Weber, in the Canadian Soo—Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—lost about 100 square feet of glass at his new place, where only one of his three houses had as yet been glazed. The old houses had been torn down some time before, thus preventing what might have been a much heavier loss. The damage to stock was not as serious as might have been expected.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Christian Young, who has had an experience of forty years as a market gardener, says he has never before passed through so dry a season as the present one, and the drought has been especially disastrous for people in his line of business.

The A. F. Amling Co. has just completed its new water reservoir, which will catch all condensation and rain from the greenhouse roofs. It is built entirely of concrete and is 130 feet long, thirty feet wide and fourteen feet deep. Two triplex pumps, with a pumping capacity of 250 gallons per minute, are now being installed. They will be operated by electricity under automatic control, so as to maintain a constant pressure of eighty pounds. These are connected to a steel tank, 8x28 feet. The entire machinery is furnished by the Kewanee Water Supply Co.

On September 14 will occur the wedding of Ernst C. Amling, son of A. F. Amling, and Miss Lydia Hinz, of Sheboygan, Wis. The Amling family will make the trip per automobile.

A fine crop of Crego asters, greenhouse grown, is coming along at the Amling place. Some have stems three feet long, with flowers as large as mums. About half of the place is this year given to Beauties, the first cut of which is just coming in. Half of the Beauty plants are 2-year-old transplanted stock, the balance young stock, but all look the picture of health.

Carnations in the field were looking well. There were splendid batches of all the best asters, dahlias, geraniums, sweet peas, ten weeks' stocks and a variety of other flowers for cutting. Vegetables are also grown to some extent. There are several greenhouses, which are devoted to carnations, chrysanthemums, tomatoes, smilax, asparagus, etc.

Something of surprise was afforded us when we came across a batch of some 300 pieces of newly imported Mexican orchids, including Lælia autumnalis, oncidiums, odontoglossums, etc., all starting nicely. We were pleased to see a lady conducting this business so successfully. Miss Clark has grit as well as excellent business sense and a good knowledge of floriculture.

Our Curved Eave And Its Construction

Just the thing for florists' show houses.

You can readily see that some kind of metal reinforcement should of necessity be used at the curve of the eave, else the joining of the curved and straight portions of the glazing bars could never be accomplished so as to be either enduring or free from glass breakage.

Our construction department has worked out a combination clamp-joint-binder-reinforcement of cast iron, that makes an eave of absolute rigidity and with joints sealed from the weather. It is light in effect and at once appeals to one as a common sense sort of construction.

So much for the eave; then comes the sill and gutter; we cast them together in one piece, making a decidedly neater job and structurally better in every way.

Aside from these structural points, our Curved Eave Houses are built with the same framing used in our Standard Sectional Iron Frame Houses. One thing is certain; when you buy our Curved Eave House there need not be the least doubt in your mind as to its practicalness or durability.

Send for the Advance Sheets from our new catalogue; they contain a color illustration of a Curved Eave subject and some mighty interesting reading.

YELLOW CUCUMBER FOLIAGE.

What causes cucumber vines outdoors to turn yellow, and how can it be prevented?
J. J. H.

Melons and cucumbers growing outdoors have of late years been killed in immense numbers by a blight which causes the leaves to turn light colored and finally brown, the discoloration running from the center of the hills toward the growing tips. This disease usually appears with the first cold nights in August. The cause we do not know; remedies also are of no great avail. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture at intervals during the growing season has only partially checked the spread of this scourge and many growers have become discouraged and dropped outdoor cucumber culture. If seed is sown quite early, a crop may be secured, but later sowings are invariably attacked and a real remedy is still lacking.

RHUBARB UNDER BENCHES.

Can rhubarb be grown successfully under the benches of a carnation house, a chrysanthemum house or a lettuce house without detriment to the crops on the benches? Could the rhubarb roots be placed under the benches for forcing immediately after the crop of mums had been cut, and would it in any way interfere with a crop of Grand Rapids lettuce grown upon the benches, following the chrysanthemums?

W. W. F. C.

While rhubarb could be grown under any of the benches named, and without interfering particularly with any of the crops you refer to, it will not do satisfactorily in so low a temperature as obtains where lettuce, mums and carnations are grown. To grow rhubarb successfully, a warm and dark location is desirable. When grown in the dark, the stalks come a rich red color and draw up to good length. In the light and a cooler temperature, rhubarb is slow in starting and the stalks are green as compared with those grown in the dark.

A cellar which will grow good mushrooms is an ideal place for rhubarb. The temperature for its successful winter culture should not be less than 60 degrees, and bottom heat is a decided benefit. Some growers utilize coldframes of considerable depth, putting in a bed of cattle manure for bottom heat. The glass is kept darkened with mats. Any shed, pit, cellar or frame which can be given a minimum of 60 degrees will grow excellent rhubarb.

SKINNER SYSTEM

OF IRRIGATION

Send Postal for our 6 Free Booklets on Irrigation.

The water from the special nozzles comes from overhead in a mist—sprays the plants like a gentle rainfall—that will not injure the most delicate leaves and blossoms.

The ground does not cake and crack, but keeps soft and porous, letting in the air necessary to the rapid growth of plants. The labor saved in one year will pay for the entire cost of the System.

How to Save Money

No. 4

TAKE advice where it is good. The makers of greenhouse material are designing houses every day for all kinds of stock and purposes and they know what the growers in various parts of the country are doing. Everything new in construction and every advantage in building comes to their notice. You can many times save much money by asking for this advice before building. Your houses may not be operating as economically as they should and you may not get all the stock you should from your benches. Before you put up that new house write us for some information about construction.

THE TIE.

The Last Artistic Touch.

The attainment of both elegance and simple daintiness, which is far removed from fussiness, is the ideal to be kept in mind in floral designing. The choice of flowers, the manner of their coming together, the added foliage, and the material and style of the tie all contribute to the character of the piece.

It is possible, but scarcely probable, that a well designed piece may be spoiled by poor taste in the tie. The art of floral designing and the art of fabric drapery seem to be very closely connected. Floral arrangement often springs into a new dignity with just the right drapery addition, or it may become a sodden mass smothered by a heavy color and excessive quantity of even so light a material as chiffon. The tie, properly selected and happily placed, belongs as truly to the floral design as the foliage on the stem; or, if awkwardly added, it may be a color blot or deformity.

When Not to Use Ties.

With a little serious study, it will not be difficult to formulate a few principles which will be found useful in everyday work. In the first place, it is important to know at a glance whether to use any tie or drapery. There are many times when a collection of flowers appears to better advantage without a tie. To illustrate: Where considerable variety of color is used in one spray, the tie may be dispensed with; where a great number of sprays and pieces are sent to the same funeral, a good proportion of them should be planned and finished without ribbon or chiffon; where the style of arrangement does not require a tie, do not add one just for the sake of habit; a tie must have the appearance of a binding together, else it is superfluous; it is seldom needed on a solid piece, unless a spray is added; it should not be used where a color is not at hand which will harmonize with the flowers to be used; it would be well for the patrons of some flower shops to pay the artists (?) to keep ribbon and chiffon off their work; it is a false notion that white can be used with any color—as a rule it can be, but there are exceptions; where the setting or receptacle is decidedly rustic, use no ribbon or chiffon. In the form of bows or streamers, ribbon and chiffon do not properly belong with a vase of flowers.

Should Seem to Be Useful.

How conspicuously may a tie be placed? Let it stop on the modest side of the conspicuous. It is the punctuation of the sentence, the binding cord to the sheaf. It must occupy the position of a serviceable addition in the design, which does not bar it from being artistic and graceful in color and form. The setting which holds the gem must be in proportion to its rarity and value. The tie must be of a worth which measures the beauty of the flowers it holds.

In colored work let the tie be of a harmonious but lighter tint than that of the flowers. With white a delicate Nile green or violet is preferred, or either of these colors with white itself. With a handsome, large piece of all white, if a tie is required, all three of these colors in one tie would lend a touch of life so often lacking in white.

Good Color Combinations.

the lighter colors might be planned like these: Yellow chiffon with gray for white carnations; orange with white for Paper White narcissi; Nile green with violet for Easter lilies; orange and moss green for Golden Glow and the deeper yellow chrysanthemums; light yellow and moss green for the lighter corn colored varieties.

With a lavender spray of mums or asters, try a rainbow tie of dotted chiffons, using lavender, yellow, pink and red. They should be laid one over the other and be tied without separating the colors. It is the effect through the different layers that will give the desired touch. It is like the mixing of paints; what would not be harmonious as the colors would lie side by side, would make a wonderful color mixed. In this case make a tie of all bows, so as to keep the coloring under cover, for if they were allowed to fly in streamers the coloring would be too apparent.

Chiffon and Veiling.

Chiffon as a veil can be worked in with beautiful effect now and then. Over a large spray or casket cover of a rich, dark color throw two or three flower or among the foliage, and let the ends fly out freely.

A veil over a solid piece is a good color help if correctly used. In the case of a pillow this might be extended over the completed design and allowed to remain from four to six inches longer and wider than the pillow. Under this as a border, set in a fringe of adiantums. Over the center of the piece lay a loose spray without a tie, or scatter a few roses promiscuously over the surface of the pillow, over the veil. Something new?

For a child's funeral spray a large, loose rosette of baby ribbon in the center of a chiffon tie gives just the simple touch wanted. According to the flowers used, this may be either pink or blue. With all white flowers the blue seems preferable.

For the Sake of Variety.

Have you tied sprays with square bows, or short bows with long ties, until you fear the public will tire of the same old style? Then tie one more with generous loops and extra long ends for a double spray. Catch the ends of the long ties with baby ribbon and attach each end toward an end of Embroidered chiffon over ribbon is a good addition to an otherwise plain, rich piece. It must be remembered, however, that this kind of a combination changes the color of the ribbon, and while the ribbon might be a good blend with the flowers by itself, it might not be so good when dulled somewhat by the veil of chiffon placed over it. The veil lightens and dulls a brilliant color and sometimes entirely changes its tone. Here is a place where the critical eye must not grow sleepy. But this rule works both ways, and while the veiling with chiffon may dull a brilliant color too much, it may subdue an overbrilliant color to just the proper softness of tone, and thus relieve us of some ribbon stock which has been otherwise difficult to find a legitimate use for.

Dotted and embroidered chiffons are especially good with garden heliotrope, gypsophila, stevia and other fine, showery flowers.

Drapery for Window Decorations.

Window decorations of the conventional type often lack a finish and completeness which only a soft drapery can give. Several lengths of wide chiffon, caught in light festoons over the top of a mirror, or a few strokes of silk drapery, or a velvet background, give a character of distinction which nothing else can supply. A light cluster of long bows from the high handle of a basket gives a delicate cast over the flowers and is the nearest approach to an atmosphere which can be created in fabrics.

It has become quite a practice to use chiffon among green garlands in wedding decorations. In such a case quantities of wide chiffon should be used, to avoid a stringy appearance, particularly if the room is large. The softer greens, like greenhouse smilax and asparagus, are to be preferred to the woodier kinds, like wild smilax, huckleberry, etc. The use of chiffon and veiling in decorative work of this kind is really very helpful, both as to its artistic value and its cheapness.

Wedding Bells.

Bell frames are hard to sell and expensive to fill with flowers, but they will always be wanted in wedding decorations, on account of their beautiful sentiment; then why not experiment upon other material than flowers for filling and decorating them? Leaving out of consideration a reasonably, but only reasonably satisfactory covering of green, why not cover them first with cheesecloth inside and out, of the proper color, and then add another covering of chiffon of the same color?

So far, neither so bad nor so good. But cut enough long streamers of wide chiffon of the same color as the covering to make a generous shower, like a lot of bridal veils hanging suspended from one point on the top of the bell. Toward the lower ends of the streamers put on a few bows, loops and chiffon butterflies. One large bell or a group of different sizes may be treated the same way. When suspended over the bridal altar, catch up some of the streamers with strings of smilax which have proceeded from the same point as the chiffon streamers on the top of the bell, and after a while you can look up into a soft, cloudy canopy of bells long ends of wide chiffon or veiling of a light, contrasting tint; as, with Richmond roses use Nile green; with purple asters use light yellow or white chiffon. Catch these long ends in place with a tie of baby ribbon under a and all that. There are but few schemes to equal this in fine effect, and all for a moderate outlay of time and money. Electric lights and flowers may be added to any extent desired. A whole room could be canopied in the same manner.

Chiffon and veiling should never be self-tied. Catch in loops and ends together in the fingers, tie with baby ribbon and attach with the same ribbon ends.

NEW AZALEAS.

Some of the American florists who visited Belgium this summer admired a new pink azalea grown by the Haerens Co., of Somergem, which was exhibited in bloom. This variety is similar to Mme. Vander Cruyssen in color, but can be forced much earlier. There are other new varieties of azaleas grown by this firm, including a double early white and semidouble red, all of which attracted much attention last February when exhibited in bloom before the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

CROTONS FOR POT CULTURE.

Kindly give a list of the best crotons for pot culture, particularly in the red varieties.
S. F. C.

The list of varieties is being constantly added to by such well-known specialists as the Robert Craig Co., of Philadelphia, who exhibited over eighty varieties at the late S. A. F. convention in Rochester, N. Y. The following are excellent, reliable sorts:

Queen Victoria, yellow, blotched, ribs magenta; Sunbeam, rich blood-red when matured; Triumphans, green and crimson, changing to bronze green and crimson; Majesticum, long, narrow leaves, green and yellow, shaded with crimson; Baron Rothschild, green and yellow, crimson when old; Hawkeri, broad leaves, light yellow, green edge; Andreanum, broad foliage, dark green, with crimson and yellow veins; Challenger, long leaves, midribs deep carmine when mature; Disraeli, dark green, yellow veins, turning to crimson later; Musaicum, creamy when young, crimson when matured; Beauty, green, variegated golden yellow, changing to bronze and rosy crimson; Nestor, green, variegated yellow and white, midrib crimson.

THE ASTER DISEASE.

I read J. L. Johnson's article on aster disease, on page 9 of The Review of September 1, with a great deal of interest. I have worked on this trouble for years and have long felt convinced that it was not a disease. If a disease, it must have either got better or worse as the years passed. It was always worse in wet seasons, and sour soil is always more acid in wet seasons.

I have used lime and recommended it to my seed customers for the last three years, and while it doesn't effect a radical cure, it certainly helps. One block near my home, containing about 5,000 plants, is on soil that has carried asters for the last five years, and I have less yellows this season than ever before, possibly three per cent in all. I applied lime at the rate of three tons per acre five years ago and one ton each year since. This coming spring I shall leave it off, as the soil shows signs of getting pasty. The ideal treatment would be a good dose of tile along with the lime.

Experimenting in 1908 in connection with George D. Williams, the Nitrate Agencies' expert for this section, I found that yellows seldom appeared in soil that was not sour. Mr. Williams is a great believer in lime, not only for asters but for most grain and root crops. From the results he obtains, going so far as to apply ten tons per acre for potatoes, I think we'll have to agree with him.

The Technical World Magazine for December, 1909, contained an article on toxic poisons from roots of plants, dealing with acids left in the soil by certain crops. It is well worth reading by those who are interested along these lines.

PLANTS FOR OFFICE WINDOWS.

I have a customer who wishes me to supply him with varieties of plants that will do well in the window of a factory office during the winter months. The plants will have plenty of light, but not much sunshine. What would you recommend?
L. F. M.

Foliage plants generally do much more satisfactorily in windows than flowering subjects, especially where the plants get considerable shade. All the nephrolepis are suitable. Nothing does much better than the old Boston, but Whitmani, elegantissima and others are also good. Cyrtomium falcatum and Pteris Cretica cristata are other reliable ferns. In the way of palms you could use Kentia Belmoreana, Phoenix rupicola or Canariensis and Latania Borbonica. Aspidistra lurida is probably the best and most enduring of all foliage plants for house or factory. There is also a variegated form that is equally hardy. Ficus elastica, the common rubber plant, succeeds with almost everyone. Rex begonias and quite a number of the fibrous-rooted flowering varieties of robust habit will do well.

If the minimum temperature does not fall below 50 degrees, Pandanus Veitchii and utilis will thrive well. Some other easily grown and reliable plants are: Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus nanus, variegated vinca, Curculigo recurvata and Dracæna indivisa. In addition to fibrous rooted begonias, you could use such varieties as rubra, nitida alba, Haageana, Scharffiana and Erfordii. The zonal geraniums will flower well where the night temperature does not exceed 50 degrees; also petunias and impatiens. As a general rule, however, foliage plants prove the most satisfactory.

WHITE INSECTS ON COLEUS.

What will keep white spider from coleus and other plants? What will exterminate them without injuring the foliage?
S. F. C.

I do not recognize an insect called "white spider," but possibly it may be mealy bug on the coleus, and in that case you might try one of the nicotine liquids advertised in The Review, used according to directions.

The Ribbon Was the Needed Touch on This Basket.

the lighter colors might be planned like these: Yellow chiffon with gray for white carnations; orange with white for Paper White narcissi; Nile green with violet for Easter lilies; orange and moss green for Golden Glow and the deeper yellow chrysanthemums; light yellow and moss green for the lighter corn colored varieties.

With a lavender spray of mums or asters, try a rainbow tie of dotted chiffons, using lavender, yellow, pink and red. They should be laid one over the other and be tied without separating the colors. It is the effect through the different layers that will give the desired touch. It is like the mixing of paints; what would not be harmonious as the colors would lie side by side, would make a wonderful color mixed. In this case make a tie of all bows, so as to keep the coloring under cover, for if they were allowed to fly in streamers the coloring would be too apparent.

Chiffon and Veiling.

Chiffon as a veil can be worked in with beautiful effect now and then. Over a large spray or casket cover of a rich, dark color throw two or three flower or among the foliage, and let the ends fly out freely.

A veil over a solid piece is a good color help if correctly used. In the case of a pillow this might be extended over the completed design and allowed to remain from four to six inches longer and wider than the pillow. Under this as a border, set in a fringe of adiantums. Over the center of the piece lay a loose spray without a tie, or scatter a few roses promiscuously over the surface of the pillow, over the veil. Something new?

For a child's funeral spray a large, loose rosette of baby ribbon in the center of a chiffon tie gives just the simple touch wanted. According to the flowers used, this may be either pink or blue. With all white flowers the blue seems preferable.

For the Sake of Variety.

Have you tied sprays with square bows, or short bows with long ties, until you fear the public will tire of the same old style? Then tie one more with generous loops and extra long ends for a double spray. Catch the ends of the long ties with baby ribbon and attach each end toward an end of Embroidered chiffon over ribbon is a good addition to an otherwise plain, rich piece. It must be remembered, however, that this kind of a combination changes the color of the ribbon, and while the ribbon might be a good blend with the flowers by itself, it might not be so good when dulled somewhat by the veil of chiffon placed over it. The veil lightens and dulls a brilliant color and sometimes entirely changes its tone. Here is a place where the critical eye must not grow sleepy. But this rule works both ways, and while the veiling with chiffon may dull a brilliant color too much, it may subdue an overbrilliant color to just the proper softness of tone, and thus relieve us of some ribbon stock which has been otherwise difficult to find a legitimate use for.

Dotted and embroidered chiffons are especially good with garden heliotrope, gypsophila, stevia and other fine, showery flowers.

Drapery for Window Decorations.

Window decorations of the conventional type often lack a finish and completeness which only a soft drapery can give. Several lengths of wide chiffon, caught in light festoons over the top of a mirror, or a few strokes of silk drapery, or a velvet background, give a character of distinction which nothing else can supply. A light cluster of long bows from the high handle of a basket gives a delicate cast over the flowers and is the nearest approach to an atmosphere which can be created in fabrics.

It has become quite a practice to use chiffon among green garlands in wedding decorations. In such a case quantities of wide chiffon should be used, to avoid a stringy appearance, particularly if the room is large. The softer greens, like greenhouse smilax and asparagus, are to be preferred to the woodier kinds, like wild smilax, huckleberry, etc. The use of chiffon and veiling in decorative work of this kind is really very helpful, both as to its artistic value and its cheapness.

Wedding Bells.

Bell frames are hard to sell and expensive to fill with flowers, but they will always be wanted in wedding decorations, on account of their beautiful sentiment; then why not experiment upon other material than flowers for filling and decorating them? Leaving out of consideration a reasonably, but only reasonably satisfactory covering of green, why not cover them first with cheesecloth inside and out, of the proper color, and then add another covering of chiffon of the same color?

So far, neither so bad nor so good. But cut enough long streamers of wide chiffon of the same color as the covering to make a generous shower, like a lot of bridal veils hanging suspended from one point on the top of the bell. Toward the lower ends of the streamers put on a few bows, loops and chiffon butterflies. One large bell or a group of different sizes may be treated the same way. When suspended over the bridal altar, catch up some of the streamers with strings of smilax which have proceeded from the same point as the chiffon streamers on the top of the bell, and after a while you can look up into a soft, cloudy canopy of bells long ends of wide chiffon or veiling of a light, contrasting tint; as, with Richmond roses use Nile green; with purple asters use light yellow or white chiffon. Catch these long ends in place with a tie of baby ribbon under a and all that. There are but few schemes to equal this in fine effect, and all for a moderate outlay of time and money. Electric lights and flowers may be added to any extent desired. A whole room could be canopied in the same manner.

Chiffon and veiling should never be self-tied. Catch in loops and ends together in the fingers, tie with baby ribbon and attach with the same ribbon ends.

SEASONABLE

Gardenias.

This is the season of rapid growth with the gardenias. Plants growing in benches since May should by this time have quadrupled in size, and be quite shapely if the necessary pinching has been attended to. It is easy to have a crop of flowers through the summer. Gardenias are almost perpetual blooming, but, unless you are located where wealthy residents want the flowers and are willing to pay a fair price for them, it is better to keep the buds picked off until the arrival of colder weather. If syringing has been properly done, there should be no mealy bug on the plants. There is absolutely no excuse for this where there is an adequate water supply. Use a spray nozzle and direct the force from below the foliage. A minimum night temperature of 65 to 70 degrees should be maintained. As the benches will now be filling up with roots, water can be supplied more freely. If your drainage is good and the soil sufficiently porous, there will be little danger of stagnation and consequent yellowing of the foliage. Scratch the surface over occasionally and avoid watering any wet places in the benches until they dry out well. Anything approaching sourness will cause yellow leaves and falling buds.

Plants in pots, if well rooted, will be benefited by an occasional dose of weak liquid manure. Clay's fertilizer has been found excellent to apply as a top-dressing. It helps to keep the foliage that dark green, glossy hue which one delights to see. It hardly pays to carry plants after a second year, as they invariably go off with canker near the surface soil. Late rooted stock should be given its final shift. If they can be plunged in a close frame, or on a bench in a small span house, they will quickly fill the pots with roots. Gardenias like bottom heat, and if more of it were used we should have fewer complaints of yellow foliage and dropping buds.

Hollyhocks.

In order to get strong hollyhock plants, the seedlings, instead of being allowed to crowd one another in the nursery rows, should be transplanted, always, of course, selecting showery weather for the work. Hollyhocks are among the most popular of hardy plants. While usually treated as biennials, they are really perennials and in good soil will live several years. It is not too late now to make a sowing for next season. Possibly you may have seeds on some of your own plants, which, if collected and sown, will germinate quickly, giving just as fine plants and as good a strain as any you could buy. Do not be afraid to grow a good stock of hollyhocks and all other biennials and perennials. The call for them is continually on the increase. They need no greenhouse to winter them and thousands of people prefer them to tender bedding plants.

Transplanting Evergreens.

The last half of August and first half of September is perhaps the best in the whole year for the successful transplanting of evergreens of all kinds. The ideal planting weather is, of course, when the ground is moist and the sky overcast. These conditions, unfortunately, do not prevail to any great extent until later. Still, where this work requires to be done, the present month, when other duties are less numerous and strenuous, is the best in the year. Nurseries can now dig, burlap and ship plants more expeditiously and carefully than in spring, when they are swamped with orders, and the growers of nursery stock should encourage late summer planting more.

All holes should be carefully prepared, and when the tree or shrub is in position and has had some soil filled in about its roots, let it have a thorough soaking of water. Allow an hour or two to elapse before filling up the hole. Be sure that the soil is worked in among all the roots and remember that you cannot firm the soil too much. Mulch after the planting is done and, if you have a hose within reach, give the plants a wetting over each evening for a few days. Use no manure about the roots, as it will do more harm than good.

Rhododendrons, kalmias, andromedas, coniferous evergreens of all kinds, Euonymus radicans and, in fact, everything of an evergreen nature will move well now, if care is taken that they have a nice ball, that the roots are not exposed to sun and drying winds and that they are well watered when planted.

INSECTS ON ALTERNANTHERAS.

An insect ate all the leaves of our Alternanthera brilliantissima. I noticed on the plants a small fly, not like any fly I have ever seen before; also a small worm, and a small, long, dark bug. We send a sample of the eaten leaves. S. F. C.

Try dusting the alternantheras with Slug Shot, and if this does not prove effective, then I would try spraying with a solution of Paris green; but the latter must not be used too strong, else it may burn the foliage. W. H. T.

HOME-MADE SWEET PEA SEED.

Please let me know whether I am likely to get good results from my own home-grown sweet pea seed. I have heard that they do not do well here, in southern Oklahoma. S. F. C.

You will have much better results with seed raised in a cooler climate, where large quantities of the various kinds are grown and where roguing is carefully done. If you grow a number of varieties in a limited space, it is about impossible to save seed from them and have them come true to name. In addition, plants in your climate are entirely lacking in vitality as compared with those grown in the states where the weather conditions are better for sweet pea culture and seed saving. I would most certainly advise against home-saved seed. C. W.

WINTER CARE OF SWEET PEAS.

There have been several articles in The Review lately about the culture of winter flowering sweet peas, giving directions about planting, etc., but none of the articles dwelt much on the care of the peas after they are nearing the flowering stage. I am at a loss to know just how closely the peas should be kept suckered—that is, how many shoots should be left to come on each individual plant. My aim is to have peas for Christmas and then on, as long as they can be kept in flower. What is the best temperature for night and day, and should they be well aired?

S. F. C.

Sweet peas do not require any suckering at all. All shoots which appear should be left; the removal of any would only mean a reduction in your cut of flowers. If your plants are set out four to six inches apart in rows, they will be sufficiently thick. There are good growers who allow them double that space. It is a common error to sow or plant too thickly, but it never pays in the long run. A minimum temperature of 46 to 50 degrees in winter will suit sweet peas; hold it as near 48 degrees as possible and try not to go beyond 50 degrees. The plants like all the fresh air you can give them. Of course, avoid cold drafts, which might cause mildew to break out. If the latter should appear, dust with flowers of sulphur at once.

Red spider may appear near the heating mains, but not if the spray nozzle is used judiciously. Aphis must be kept in check by weekly fumigations with tobacco dust, tobacco stems or nicotine extract. A mild dose once a week will keep the house clean. I like nicotine extract, as it does not leave any disagreeable odor on the flowers, as the stems do.

On dull days in winter keep the temperature 55 to 58 degrees. On bright days it can run from 60 to 65 degrees, with ventilation. Do not grow the rows too close together; the farther apart they are, the better will the plants sucker out from near the base.

C. W.

MUM COMMITTEES GET BUSY.

Although President Elmer D. Smith, of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, has not yet appointed the city committees to judge the season's novelties in mums, he has set some work for them to do and is putting it up to the last year's committees. Before the Cincinnati committee August 27 his firm, E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., exhibited Smith's Advance, an extremely early white, Japanese reflex, which was scored as follows:

Color	18	Foliage	10
Form	12	Substance	13
Fullness	10	Size	8

SMITH'S NEW WHITE MUM.

At the S. A. F. convention at Rochester, August 16 to 19, one of the smaller exhibits, but one which nevertheless attracted much attention, was a vase of the white chrysanthemum shown in the accompanying illustration. It is Smith's Advance. The color is white and the variety is in this class what Golden Glow is among yellows. For those who have use for early chrysanthemums, it brings the opening of the season for whites several weeks ahead of the previous date.

Since the convention the variety has

dwelling is much drier than that of a greenhouse, and consequently the plants are likely to require water more frequently. There is also more or less dust in the atmosphere, and as this settles on the plants it closes the pores of the leaves, making it necessary to give the plants either a sponging or a good dipping in a tub of water about once a week, or sometimes oftener.

Potbound palms and Boston ferns may be fed once in two weeks with manure water or solution of dried blood, the latter being used in the proportion of one ounce to two gallons of water, but either of these fertilizers has an objectionable odor, so that it is not well to use them in the house. A weak solution of sulphate of ammonia may also be used for this purpose, at the rate of an ounce of the sulphate to three gallons of water, and this preparation has little or no odor.

W. H. T.

TO PREVENT REVERSION.

What can be done to prevent Nephrolepis Whitmani and like varieties of ferns from returning to the Boston?

F. S.

From the fact that Nephrolepis Whitmani and several other varieties are simply sports or variations from the Boston fern, there is always some risk of reversion, and little can be done to prevent this, except to select carefully when propagating and then to keep the stock growing freely.

W. H. T.

SCALE ON FERNS.

We are sending you a fern leaf which has some small, white object on the under side of it. Please tell us what it is and a remedy for it.

S. F. C.

The insect on the fern leaf is one of the scale insects, which do much injury to ferns and are not easy to dispose of. The white dots are the young insects, and as they mature they turn to flat scales of a light brown color.

It would be best to cut off all leaves that are as badly infested as the specimen forwarded, and then to dip the plants in a solution of Rose Leaf Extract of tobacco, using the solution in the proportion of one part of the extract to fifty parts of water, and repeating the dipping after a week has passed. This dip may injure the tips of the young leaves slightly, but a weaker solution would not do much good.

W. H. T.

CARE OF HOUSE FERNS.

We should like to know about the care of ferns, ordinary varieties, in a store or house. What food would you recommend for ferns, palms, etc.?

F. S.

The chief point in the care of ferns in a store or house is to see that they are kept moist, taking into consideration the fact that the atmosphere of a

A minimum temperature of 46 to 50 degrees in winter will suit sweet peas; hold it as near 48 degrees as possible and try not to go beyond 50 degrees. The plants like all the fresh air you can give them. Of course, avoid cold drafts, which might cause mildew to break out. If the latter should appear, dust with flowers of sulphur at once.

Red spider may appear near the heating mains, but not if the spray nozzle is used judiciously. Aphis must be kept in check by weekly fumigations with tobacco dust, tobacco stems or nicotine extract. A mild dose once a week will keep the house clean. I like nicotine extract, as it does not leave any disagreeable odor on the flowers, as the stems do.

On dull days in winter keep the temperature 55 to 58 degrees. On bright days it can run from 60 to 65 degrees, with ventilation. Do not grow the rows too close together; the farther apart they are, the better will the plants sucker out from near the base.

MUM COMMITTEES GET BUSY.

Although President Elmer D. Smith, of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, has not yet appointed the city committees to judge the season's novelties in mums, he has set some work for them to do and is putting it up to the last year's committees. Before the Cincinnati committee August 27 his firm, E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., exhibited Smith's Advance, an extremely early white, Japanese reflex, which was scored as follows:

SMITH'S NEW WHITE MUM.

At the S. A. F. convention at Rochester, August 16 to 19, one of the smaller exhibits, but one which nevertheless attracted much attention, was a vase of the white chrysanthemum shown in the accompanying illustration. It is Smith's Advance. The color is white and the variety is in this class what Golden Glow is among yellows. For those who have use for early chrysanthemums, it brings the opening of the season for whites several weeks ahead of the previous date.

Since the convention the variety has

dwelling is much drier than that of a greenhouse, and consequently the plants are likely to require water more frequently. There is also more or less dust in the atmosphere, and as this settles on the plants it closes the pores of the leaves, making it necessary to give the plants either a sponging or a good dipping in a tub of water about once a week, or sometimes oftener.

Pothound palms and Boston ferns may be fed once in two weeks with manure water or solution of dried blood, the latter being used in the proportion of one ounce to two gallons of water, but either of these fertilizers has an objectionable odor, so that it is not well to use them in the house. A weak solution of sulphate of ammonia may also be used for this purpose, at the rate of an ounce of the sublate to three gallons of water, and this preparation has little or no odor.

W. H. T.

TO PREVENT REVERSION.

What can be done to prevent Nephrolepis Whitmani and like varieties of ferns from returning to the Boston?

F. S.

From the fact that Nephrolepis Whitmani and several other varieties are simply sports or variations from the Boston fern, there is always some risk of reversion, and little can be done to prevent this, except to select carefully when propagating and then to keep the stock growing freely.

W. H. T.

SCALE ON FERNS.

We are sending you a fern leaf which has some small, white object on the under side of it. Please tell us what it is and a remedy for it.

S. F. C.

The insect on the fern leaf is one of the scale insects, which do much injury to ferns and are not easy to dispose of. The white dots are the young insects, and as they mature they turn to flat scales of a light brown color.

It would be best to cut off all leaves that are as badly infested as the specimen forwarded, and then to dip the plants in a solution of Rose Leaf Extract of tobacco, using the solution in the proportion of one part of the extract to fifty parts of water, and repeating the dipping after a week has passed. This dip may injure the tips of the young leaves slightly, but a weaker solution would not do much good.

CARE OF HOUSE FERNS.

We should like to know about the care of ferns, ordinary varieties, in a store or house. What food would you recommend for ferns, palms, etc.?

F. S.

The chief point in the care of ferns in a store or house is to see that they are kept moist, taking into consideration the fact that the atmosphere of a

LA FRANCE NOT BLOOMING.

Please tell me what to do to make a La France rose bloom. I have a good many rose bushes and all the others seem to grow and bloom nicely, but the La France beats me. It is a strong grower; it has eight or ten canes, four to five feet high, at the present time. It dies back about halfway during the winter months. Any information you may give me will be much appreciated.

R. G.

La France is one of the hybrid tea roses. These require less severe pruning than the hybrid perpetual class, such as General Jacqueminot, Frau Karl Druschki, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Mrs. Sharman Crawford and Clio. Cut out, at pruning time, all dead and weak wood, and, instead of heading back to three or four eyes, as in the case of hybrid perpetuals, leave about half of the wood of the preceding year's growth. If yours kill back halfway, cut a few inches beyond that, so that the wood is fresh and green.

Are you perfectly sure that you are not nursing Manetti stock in lieu of La France itself? Many growers fail to cut out this stock, and as a consequence it soon kills out the rose and usurps its place. Manettis are easily detected. The thorns are more thickly placed than on the average rose. They come reddish in color and the leaves carry seven petioles, while the majority of hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses carry but five.

STORING ROSE PLANTS.

Can you tell us how to store roses, such as Brides, Richmonds, Chateaux and Maids, for spring sales? They usually winter-kill. If you know of any way to protect them in the field, here in western Colorado, we would rather leave them there. How much frost should they have before digging? What temperature is suitable in the cellar, and how much moisture.

J. T.

To store roses in a cellar, they should not be lifted from the soil before the wood is thoroughly ripe, a condition which is indicated by the leaves becoming detached—that is, when the older leaves commence to fall. The temperature in the cellar should be from 32 to 38 degrees.

To preserve them in the field, they should be laid down after the ground freezes hard for the first time, and covered with some dry litter, such as leaves, with some branches laid on top to keep the covering from blowing away. If the plants can be kept in a frozen state all winter and are never exposed to the sun, they have a good chance to survive the winter.

ROSE PLANTS DYING.

You will find under separate cover a rose plant that has not done well. It has been dying gradually for the last two weeks. It turned yellow and then dried up. The soil is new pasture sod, which was piled up last fall and chopped this spring, when about one-fourth of cow manure was also mixed with it. I have been spraying the plants from three to five times daily. Please explain the trouble.

C. E.

The specimen received was entirely dead at the root and must have been so when planted in the bench. It also was planted too deep. The soil is excellent and the compost perfect.

Spraying twice a day is sufficient, even during the hottest weather. Where you find any plants behaving as described in your letter, pull them out and replace with strong, healthy stock.

A WELL KEPT PLACE.

You can tell from the looks of a place what sort of a man keeps it, what kind of a grower he is, and what measure of success he is making in his business. Did you ever see unkempt grounds about a really progressive establishment? Some people may tell you that they "can't afford to keep the place up the way Tom Smith does," but they have the cart before the horse. It isn't because Smith has made money that he keeps his place in apple-pie order, but because he has kept all things right up to the handle that he has made money.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a snapshot of the greenhouses, residence and grounds of T. M. Fitzgerald at Beaver, Pa., where there is a place for everything and everything is in its place.

SPOT ON CYCLAMEN LEAVES.

I am sending under separate cover a few cyclamen leaves that are affected with a leaf-spot of some kind. It seems to spread to plants nearby. The plants are now in a well ventilated house and the glass is shaded with white-wash. They are vigorous and strong, and are making as good growth as any cyclamens I ever had. I should like to know a remedy for this leaf disease.

C. A. M.

The foliage shows that your plants are vigorous, the leaves being as fine as anyone could wish to see. This spot is not uncommon. It attacks other plants in much the same way. In the case of cyclamens it may be due to keeping the plants too much shaded and feeding them too heavily. One or both of these causes would make the foliage rather soft and an easier prey to bacterial diseases than if they were exposed to stronger light and had been fed but little.

I would advise destroying the badly affected plants, isolating the others and spraying them with Bordeaux mixture. Let the plants have more light, especially now that the sun's rays are decreasing in intensity. Give an abundance of air night and day; never close the house, except before fumigating. The cooler they are grown the sturdier they will be. Never mind if the temperature falls as low as 40 degrees at night. Let the foliage be as dry as possible at nightfall and let the atmosphere also be dry.

PROTECTION FOR PANSIES.

Please tell me what winter protection pansies need here, in eastern Nebraska. Our minimum temperature is 20 degrees below zero. Would an enclosure of 10-inch boards, set on edge along the edge of the beds and filled with straw, be sufficient? I also wish to grow some plants for winter blooming. Would plants raised now bloom in any quantity by the new year? I wish to grow them with sweet peas in a temperature of 48 degrees. Should they have a freeze before benching?

Establishment of T. M. Fitzgerald, Beaver, Pa.

F. W.

Pansies do not require a heavy winter mulch. Boards such as you suggest, set on edge along the beds, would answer well, and the plants should not be mulched until the ground is firmly frozen. Straw, hay, leaves and pine needles are all suitable for covering. Use just sufficient mulch to cover the plants. A heavy coating would keep the plants too warm and, in the case of open spells of weather, would probably cause damping off. The covering is given not so much as a winter protection as to prevent the heaving of the ground during late winter and early spring.

Pansies sown early in August will bloom moderately by January. A temperature of 48 degrees is rather too high for them. A violet house kept at 40 to 45 degrees would suit them much better. It will be a benefit to have them frozen before housing, as in the case of single violets.

C. W.

AN UNHEATED HOUSE.

I should like to know about how cold it would have to be outside to produce a freezing temperature in a glass apartment which will be built along the south side of a dwelling and will have no fire heat. There will be two thicknesses of glass in the walls, with a 2-inch air space between. The glass will consist of large panes, well puttied in. Is not this the best plan for building a place in which to keep flowers during the winter? I have been using a pit with glass over the top. I am located in southern Delaware.

C. E. B.

Fully as much will depend upon the duration of the cold snap as upon the intensity of the cold. If the adjoining room is warmed, the temperature might drop to zero outside for a short time without getting below freezing in the apartment a foot or so back from the glass. This is supposing that there is a tight floor and that the glass is confined to the side walls. On the other hand, if the cold spell lasts several days and the thermometer outside does not get above the freezing point during the day, there would be danger of frost in the glass apartment if there is fifteen or even ten degrees of frost outside, unless it will be possible to permit some heat to enter the apartment from the adjoining room.

If the apartment is not too large, it should be possible in the climate of Delaware to keep out frost if there is a connecting door, or even a window through which warm air could be allowed to pass into the apartment.

DREER'S NEW PLANT.

The contract has now been awarded for the new plant of Henry A. Dreer, Riverton, N. J., described at some length in The Review of July 28. The plant will be built in blocks, the first block to be erected this season. This first block will be built with a service building in the center, the service building being 34x203 feet. On each side of the service building will be one lean-to 203 feet long and from each lean-to will be built a range of ten greenhouses, each 21x203 feet, making a total of twenty greenhouses and two lean-tos. A cross passageway will be run through the whole block of greenhouses from side to side, this passageway being three feet wide and there being 100 feet of greenhouse on each side of the passageway. The service building will be of iron frame construction and practically fireproof, and the roof will be built with a clear span, so that the interior will be free of posts. Ten of the greenhouses will be open under the gutters and will contain no benches. These ten greenhouses are to be run at a low temperature. The other ten houses will be divided by glass partitions under the gutters and will have three benches in each house. These houses are to be run at a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees.

For the heating plant a fireproof iron frame and concrete boiler house will be erected. There will be four 75 horsepower return tube boilers for heating. There is also to be one boiler for steam power. The boilers will burn a low grade of coal and to enable this to be done a system of forced draft is to be installed. The heating will be by hot water, using 2-inch pipes for the radiating surface. The boilers will be set on the level and the water will be circulated through the houses with centrifugal pumps. The pumping plant will be in duplicate, so that in case of damage to one plant the other will be ready for operation.

The cost of the buildings and equipment will be about $70,000. The contract for the work has gone to the King Construction Co.

AS IT IS IN KANSAS.

The accompanying illustrations show the character of establishment that is springing up all over the great west far faster than anyone can keep track of them—except that the first thing they all do on starting is to send a dollar for The Review; they find us rather than we them.

The place illustrated is that of C. D. Martindale, at Caney, Kan.—there's nothing "the matter with Kansas" any more. Caney is away down almost to the Indian Territory, just where the Osages and the Cherokees join up, and trade conditions and problems there are not exactly like those on Fifth avenue—of course, there's only one!—but there is enough business in Caney to support more than one florist—they both get The Review—and they both keep nice, neat, well-ordered places. Their business will be better and better as years go on, and after a while people who don't go there will come to appreciate how fast the great west is growing and how wonderfully prosperous its people are as compared with a few years ago.

Baraboo, Wis.—William Toole & Sons are building an addition which will enable them to double their output.

GEORGE T. BOUCHER.

Among the younger retail florists of Rochester none is more aggressive or more of a hustler for business than George T. Boucher. Beginning about seven years ago with only counter space in a retail seed store, Mr. Boucher's practical knowledge of growing flowers, as well as the art of selling, increased his business so rapidly that more room was necessary, and a small store at 343 Main street was secured. Here the business was carried on under difficulties until this year brought an opportunity to secure additional room by removing a dividing wall, and a splendid store, with entrances on East Main street and East avenue, was opened.

Mr. Boucher has been connected with the florists' trade in Rochester for over twenty years, and has many friends among the dealers and growers as well as among citizens generally.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

The Mount Desert Nurseries, where William Miller is the efficient manager, have just completed an extensive installation of the Skinner watering system, both at the main nursery and at the branch nursery at Northeast Harbor, and it gives great satisfaction. A pressure of forty-five pounds to the square foot gives the best results. The water is turned on in the evening and shut off early the following morning, in order that nothing may be lost by condensation. Other growers on the

and many other annuals, were very attractive at the time of our visit.

In the greenhouses were noted large batches of gloxinias, tuberous begonias, achimenes, fuchsias, hydrangeas, geraniums, streptocarpus, gardenias and other summer blooming plants. One house was devoted to the charming new Nephrolepis Milleri. Propagation of geraniums was under way; over 10,000 of these are sold annually to the wealthy summer residents. The nurseries devoted to trees and shrubs are constantly being increased in area, specimen conifers being a feature.

The store in Bar Harbor, for the sale of plants and cut flowers, is large and attractive. Probably nowhere else in America are such beautiful displays of perennials and annuals to be seen. Other choice flowers, such as Beauty roses, valley, orchids, gardenias, etc., are also included.

F. H. Moses has a fine store on Main street, near the store of the Mount Desert Nurseries. Mr. Moses had just recovered from two weeks' sickness when we called. He keeps an up-to-date and attractive store and reports business as good. All visitors to Bar Harbor may be sure of a genial welcome from Mr. Moses.

Joseph Pulitzer, the proprietor of the New York World, has a stately residence at Bar Harbor. A. W. Eckstrom presides over the horticultural department and grows things well. We were particularly struck by the many fine specimen hydrangeas on the lawns, naturally grown, which hung down and peror William and swainsonas bloomed remarkably well. In the greenhouses were noted some fine specimen gardenias, allamandas and fuchsias.

At Blair Eyrie, the romantically situated mansion of D. C. Blair, there is a charming little Italian garden, in which pentstemons, antirrhinums, Galtonia candicans, salpiglossis, cannas, swainsonas and beds of the best named gladioli were finely flowered. Another formal garden is devoted to hybrid tea and hybrid perpetual roses, which here do unusually well. Dahlias were blooming with great freedom, and sweet peas were extra good. Lilium auratum, eight to nine feet high, comes up vigorously year after year, as do the varieties speciosum and Henryi. Aconitums in the garden, used for cutting, were of great vigor. In the grape house Muscats and Black Hambros were carrying excellent crops. One house was devoted to melons. Eugene Mitchell has charge of this beautiful estate.

MILWAUKEE.The Market.

To judge by the way stock at the wholesale houses is being cleaned up, one would naturally conclude that business is good; that is, all first-class receipts are entirely disposed of by closing time. The main item of late has been gladioli, and these, in the lighter shades, sell readily. A few growers have commenced to send in carnations; they are as yet short stemmed and small, and there are not enough to cut any figure. There are plenty of roses to go around; some nice hardy phlox is also offered by the wholesalers. The asters in this vicinity are not up to the standard; the cause given by most growers is the unfavorable weather conditions.

Club Meeting.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, held September 1, not much of importance was accomplished, owing to the light attendance. Hans Schultz and Otto Grade, both members of the Fox Point Floral Co., were elected to membership.

The executive committee of the coming fall flower show reported that preliminary prize lists will be mailed in a week or ten days; also that this year's show will surpass the one held in 1909 in all classes, owing to the experience gained last year.

While the picnic of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, September 4, was a success, it would have been more so had weather conditions been more favorable. Prizes were donated by the following: Chas. Menger, Emil Weihe, Alex. Klokner, C. Dallwig, C. C. Pollworth Co., Wm. Zimmermann, Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., Holton & Hunkel Co., Nic. Zweifel, Robt. Zepnick, Aug. F. island are so enthusiastic over the success of the system that they are planning to adopt it. Various Notes.

With the opening of the schools, September 6, a large number of the summer resorters returned, and we now look for the opening of the 1910-1911 season.

While business for the month of July was about the same as last year, the Wisconsin Floral Co. reports an increase for the month of August over last season; all in all, trade during the summer was quite satisfactory.

In having a balcony put in at his store, Wm. Zimmermann not only gains considerably more room, but gives the establishment a neater appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leidiger, of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., who have been spending the last ten days visiting relatives at Athens, N. Y., and taking in other points of interest in the east, are expected home the latter part of this week. This firm reports an unusual amount of wedding work for this week.

The young son of Chas. Menger, who some time ago broke his arm and was convalescing nicely, had the misfortune to fall and break the same arm again.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. expects the arrival of three carloads of Holland bulbs the latter part of this week.

Jim Spence, who for years was employed by Currie Bros., but of late was with the Nebraska Seed Co., is renewing acquaintances in our city.

G. H. Hunkel, of G. H. Hunkel Co., reports E. J. Deal, representative of W. W. Johnson & Son, Boston, England, as a visitor.

Gust Pohl, who had his asters where he could water them during the dry spell, is being well rewarded for his labors, for his stock is fine, and the Holton & Hunkel Co. find no trouble in disposing of them at good prices.

Miss A. Zender, of Rogers Park, Ill., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Holton since August 30, returned to her home the middle part of this week; she attended the florists' picnic and reported having a fine time.

Other visitors were: Geo. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Eric Johnson and a friend, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Adolph Poehlmann, Morton Grove, Ill.; Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; Art. Craig, of Robt. Craig Co., Philadelphia; E. Haentze, of Fond du Lac, Wis.; P. Sylvester, Oconomowoc, Wis., and Robt. Mueller, Racine, Wis.

Alex. Klokner, of Wauwatosa, left a fortnight ago on a business and pleasure trip to the old country. He expects to return by the middle of November.

HAIL AT CEDAR RAPIDS.

On Saturday, August 20, we had the most severe hail storm ever known in this section of Iowa, most of the hail coming down in the form of irregular chunks of ice one and one-half inches to two and one-half inches in diameter. We had about 165 boxes of glass broken. We are mailing you under separate cover a photograph of part of our houses. This shows the north side of our houses, where most of the damage was done, though considerable glass was broken on the south side, as can be seen on the small house in the photograph. The glass still left on the houses, as shown in the photograph, is nearly all cracked and broken, and that which was knocked out was hammered in small pieces, looking as though it had gone through a mill. Palms, rubbers, roses, carnations and stock of every description were badly damaged. Outdoor stock was cut to pieces. Dahlia stalks an inch or more in diameter were cut off, and vegetables pounded to a jelly. Great damage was done to churches, schoolhouses and also to farm crops.

IOWA FLORISTS MEET.

State Fair and Convention.

Floriculture in Iowa received a big boost last week, when the State Fair was held at Des Moines, with the best display by florists yet seen within the state, and the Society of Iowa Florists held its eighth annual meeting at the state house Wednesday evening, August 31. The following was the program:

President's Address, G. D. Black, Independence.
"Our Method of Keeping Carnations from Cropping and also for Preventing Stems from Rotting," Otto Hansen, Fort Dodge.
"Epiphyllums for Christmas Plants," F. J. Olsan, Ames.
"Color Effects with Bedding Plants," Geo. S. Balthis, Des Moines.
"Artistic Possibilities in Floral Work," Elmer E. Nordwall, Fort Dodge.
"Decorating the Home Grounds," Walter H. Grosvenor, Des Moines.
"Civic Improvement and the Florist," G. A. Heyne, Dubuque.
"The 1910 Freeze in Iowa," L. H. Pammel, Ames.
Report of delegates to the S. A. F. Convention, J. S. Wilson and J. T. D. Fulmer.

New officers were elected as follows:

President—J. S. Wilson, Des Moines.
Vice-president—J. T. D. Fulmer, Des Moines.

Treasurer—John T. Temple, Davenport.

Secretary—Wesley Greene, Davenport.

Directors—G. A. Heyne, Dubuque; William Trillow, Des Moines; F. J. Olsan, Ames; Elmer E. Nordwall, Fort Dodge.

Westbrook, Me.—N. W. Hannaford, recently proprietor of two flower stores here, has accepted a position as manager of a big store in Alton, Ill.

Mount Kisco, N. Y.—The Northern Westchester County Horticultural and Agricultural Society has issued the premium list for its eighth annual exhibition, to be held here November 4 to 6, 1910. A local florist, Herbert A. Spavins, is manager of the exhibition.

GEORGE T. BOUCHER.

Among the younger retail florists of Rochester none is more aggressive or more of a hustler for business than George T. Boucher. Beginning about seven years ago with only counter space in a retail seed store, Mr. Boucher's practical knowledge of growing flowers, as well as the art of selling, increased his business so rapidly that more room was necessary, and a small store at 343 Main street was secured. Here the business was carried on under difficulties until this year brought an opportunity to secure additional room by removing a dividing wall, and a splendid store, with entrances on East Main street and East avenue, was opened.

Mr. Boucher has been connected with the florists' trade in Rochester for over twenty years, and has many friends among the dealers and growers as well as among citizens generally.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

The Mount Desert Nurseries, where William Miller is the efficient manager, have just completed an extensive installation of the Skinner watering system, both at the main nursery and at the branch nursery at Northeast Harbor, and it gives great satisfaction. A pressure of forty five pounds to the square foot gives the best results. The water is turned on in the evening and shut off early the following morning, in order that nothing may be lost by condensation. Other growers on the

and many other annuals, were very attractive at the time of our visit.

In the greenhouses were noted large batches of gloxinias, tuberous begonias, achimenes, fuchsias, hydrangeas, geraniums, streptocarpus, gardenias and other summer blooming plants. One house was devoted to the charming new Nephrolepis Milleri. Propagation of geraniums was under way; over 10,000 of these are sold annually to the wealthy summer residents. The nurseries devoted to trees and shrubs are constantly being increased in area, specimen conifers being a feature.

The store in Bar Harbor, for the sale of plants and cut flowers, is large and attractive. Probably nowhere else in America are such beautiful displays of perennials and annuals to be seen. Other choice flowers, such as Beauty roses, valley, orchids, gardenias, etc., are also included.

F. H. Moses has a fine store on Main street, near the store of the Mount Desert Nurseries. Mr. Moses had just recovered from two weeks' sickness when we called. He keeps an up-to-date and attractive store and reports business as good. All visitors to Bar Harbor may be sure of a genial welcome from Mr. Moses.

Joseph Pulitzer, the proprietor of the New York World, has a stately residence at Bar Harbor. A. W. Eckstrom presides over the horticultural department and grows things well. We were particularly struck by the many fine specimen hydrangeas on the lawns, naturally grown, which hung down and peror William and swainsonas bloomed remarkably well. In the greenhouses were noted some fine specimen gardenias, allamandas and fuchsias.

At Blair Eyrie, the romantically situated mansion of D. C. Blair, there is a charming little Italian garden, in which pentstemons, antirrhinums, Galtonia candicans, salpiglossis, cannas, swainsonas and beds of the best named gladioli were finely flowered. Another formal garden is devoted to hybrid tea and hybrid perpetual roses, which here do unusually well. Dahlias were blooming with great freedom, and sweet peas were extra good. Lilium auratum, eight to nine feet high, comes up vigorously year after year, as do the varieties speciosum and Henryi. Aconitums in the garden, used for cutting, were of great vigor. In the grape house Muscats and Black Hambros were carrying excellent crops. One house was devoted to melons. Eugene Mitchell has charge of this beautiful estate.

MILWAUKEE.The Market.

To judge by the way stock at the wholesale houses is being cleaned up, one would naturally conclude that business is good; that is, all first-class receipts are entirely disposed of by closing time. The main item of late has been gladioli, and these, in the lighter shades, sell readily. A few growers have commenced to send in carnations; they are as yet short stemmed and small, and there are not enough to cut any figure. There are plenty of roses to go around; some nice hardy phlox is also offered by the wholesalers. The asters in this vicinity are not up to the standard; the cause given by most growers is the unfavorable weather conditions.

Club Meeting.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, held September 1, not much of importance was accomplished, owing to the light attendance. Hans Schultz and Otto Grade, both members of the Fox Point Floral Co., were elected to membership.

The executive committee of the coming fall flower show reported that preliminary prize lists will be mailed in a week or ten days; also that this year's show will surpass the one held in 1909 in all classes, owing to the experience gained last year.

While the picnic of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, September 4, was a success, it would have been more so had weather conditions been more favorable. Prizes were donated by the following: Chas. Menger, Emil Weike, Alex. Klokner, C. Dallwig, C. C. Pollworth Co., Wm. Zimmermann, Edlefsen, Leidiger Co., Holton & Hunkel Co., Nie, Zweifel, Robt. Zepnick, Aug. F. Kellner Co., Mueller & Schroeder Co., Hummel & Downing Co., Heitman & Baerman, and Rudolph Preuss. The prize winners were:

Sack race for men, C. Gorg, first; A. R. Thurston, second.

Ladies' potato race, Gertrude Sommers, first; Norma Young, second.

Girls' potato race, C. Halliday, first; Alice Griebler, second.

Men's nail driving contest, Gustav Rusch, first.

Ladies' nail driving contest, Gertrude Sommers, first; Ella Voelcke, second.

Bag race, Frank Clear, first; Rud. Haasch, second.

Men's race, Peter Nohoss, first; Fred W. Holton, second.

island are so enthusiastic over the success of the system that they are planning to adopt it. The large stretches of perennial phloxes, aconitums, lilioms, monbretias, physostegias and other perennials, as well as quantities of finely grown sweet peas, salpiglossis, lupines, Shirley poppies, pentstemons hid the tubs from view. Window boxes are extensively used here. Geraniums, petunias, white marguerites, begonias and Lobelia gracilis were noteworthy among the flowering plants used. Begonia Duke Zeppelin was largely used in the flower beds, while zonal geraniums, Begonia Erfordii, Lobelia Em

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—J. Diefenbacher has sold his business at 284 Graham avenue to Augustus Osier, formerly of Binghamton, N. Y.

Sycamore, Ill.—Fred R. Kramer, formerly of Aurora, Ill., is now employed at the greenhouses of Wm. Swinbank, in this city.

Marion, Ind.—F. W. Herleman has discontinued business at Twenty-ninth and Boots streets and expects to locate elsewhere in the near future.

Baker City, Ore.—W. A. Sisson & Co. are now proprietors of the Center Street Greenhouses, formerly owned by Ira B. Sturges and located at 2432 Center street.

Bessemer, Ala.—Mrs. W. D. Brown says trade is good and there is a fine lot of mums coming on for fall blooms. She says asters were good during August.

Logansport, Ind.—Mrs. O. G. McCormick, whose greenhouses are at 700 Helm street, now maintains a downtown office in Tritt's drug store, 311 Fourth street.

Ansonia, Conn.—At a recent meeting of the Intertown Dahlia Association, it was decided to hold a dahlia exhibition in the assembly room at the city hall, September 17.

Du Bois, Pa.—The firm of Hayward & Jones has been dissolved by mutual consent. Wm. G. Jones is continuing the business. C. P. Hayward, the other partner, is at present at Parker, Colo.

Hillsboro, Ore.—W. H. Morton, of the Hillsboro Plant & Flower Gardens, recently was laid up with a broken foot, but says it is now much better. Business was good with this firm all last season.

Seattle, Wash.—Geo. F. Buchanan has six acres near here devoted to garden truck, fruit and flowers. He has a Marechal Niel rose bush, planted twelve years ago, that now stands thirteen feet high. The main stalk is two and one-half inches in diameter.

Greene, R. I.—John R. Perkins has just returned from a two weeks' trip to Milwaukee, Wis., where he attended the encampment of the Knights of Pythias. On his way home he visited some of the trade in the vicinity of Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo and Montreal.

Topeka, Kan.—Edward G. Bass, owner of the Highland Park Conservatory, reports that excavating is now in progress for a large range on South Fifteenth street, to be ready for planting July 1, 1911. It is said that, when completed, these will be the largest and best equipped greenhouses for wholesale and retail trade in Kansas.

Sewickley, Pa.—Wm. H. Rosenbauer, who owned the greenhouses at 404 Beaver street, has discontinued business.

York Village, Me.—W. G. Moulton & Son are building a 90-foot addition to their greenhouses, with concrete foundations.

San Antonio, Tex.—Mr. Heller, formerly of Stevens & Heller, Alvin, Tex., is now a member of the firm of Heller & Lomavity, in this city.

Stoneham, Mass.—E. K. Farr is erecting a King iron frame greenhouse at 5 North street and will grow carnations for the Boston market.

Denver, Colo.—Daniels & Fisher, the department store which does a large cut flower business here, is establishing agents in the smaller towns through the state where there are no regular florists.

Lawrence, Mass.—Thornton Bros. recently held an aster prize contest for blooms raised from seed purchased in their store. Silver loving cups were won by the three best displays, not more than twenty-five blooms being allowed in one bunch.

Indianapolis, Ind.—L. F. Benson furnished a large number of bay trees to be used in decorating the dining hall at the county fair, held in Wonderland park. The trees were conveyed to the park in a 10-ton motor truck, which bore a huge sign inscribed with Mr. Benson's name.

Highland, Ill.—Maurice F. Widmer has built an addition, 20x50, for smilax. His greenhouses now comprise about 10,000 square feet of glass and are stocked with carnations, roses, mums, smilax and a general line of pot plants. The houses and their contents are all in excellent condition.

Atlantic, Ia.—A foreclosure suit against the property of the Atlantic Greenhouse Co. has been filed by Mrs. Mary M. Nichols. She sues on four mortgages, aggregating $1,110.65, which she alleges were given to Charlotte Scott, who, she says, has assigned her rights to her. The suit is set for the September term.

Pittsfield, Mass.—Hon. Philip Breitmeyer, the florist-mayor of Detroit, was a recent visitor in this city. He was accompanied by Mrs. Breitmeyer and Mr. and Mrs. John Gillispie. Mr. Gillispie is the Detroit agent of the Thomas automobile, and the motor trip is being made in a fine 1911 ninety horse-power Thomas, with Mr. Gillispie driving. Mr. Breitmeyer was interviewed at length by a newspaper reporter in regard to civic conditions in Detroit and elsewhere.

Taunton, Mass.—Clinton Macomber is building a greenhouse, 25x150, at the rear of his home on West Britannia street.

Carrollton, Mo.—H. L. Kennedy, of Kennedy & Farnham, recently made a three weeks' bicycle trip through parts of Missouri and southeastern Kansas.

Huntingdon, Pa.—Samuel A. Hamlington acted as judge at the annual flower carnival recently held in the Methodist Episcopal church of Perry, N. Y.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Knipe & Hinz, of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, have been making improvements in their store, including the construction of a new show window.

Black Hall, Conn.—Edgar H. Steele, manager of the Black Hall Greenhouses, has closed a most successful cucumber season, and since then has been busy changing soil and getting in his mums.

Soldiers Home, Mich.—C. B. Bowditch, of the Michigan Soldiers' Home, states they have 130 acres of improved grounds, five greenhouses, of Moninger construction, planted with about 62,700 bedding plants, and two tracts where they grow all their nursery stock, employing a total of about twenty men on the grounds.

Sycamore, Ill.—William Swinbank's business is increasing steadily from year to year. He grows both vegetables and cut-flowers, and his product in both lines is of the highest quality. At present his houses are well stocked with carnations, chrysanthemums, roses, lilies, geraniums and miscellaneous plants. In spring about 50,000 tomato and cabbage plants are required to supply his trade.

Cromwell, Conn.—It is stated in the local newspapers that Andrew Benson, a Connecticut farmer, has just returned from a seven months' expedition to the United States of Colombia, with eighty-five crates of rare orchids, which he values at more than $25,000. Among his prizes are four specimens of a pure white orchid so rare that each plant, it is said, commands a price of $1,000 in this country.

Pontiac, Ill.—W. J. Miller & Son have completed the erection of three modern greenhouses, each 50x100, on their property at the east end of Payson street. The head of this firm, William J. Miller, has been a resident of this city for many years. A number of years ago he erected greenhouses here and later disposed of them. Associated with him now is his son, Orlin B. Miller, who for some years has been connected with the trade at Williamsport, Pa., and Terre Haute, Ind.

OBITUARY.

Lyman B. Crow.

Universal sorrow will follow the announcement of the death, September 1, of Lyman B. Crow at his home at Irvington, N. Y. His demise was not unexpected by those in position to keep in touch with him, for he had been ill for more than two years. He realized probably more fully than anyone else that his time was short and put his affairs in order, but never spoke of the future except in the most hopeful way. No man ever "wrapped the mantle of his couch about him and lay down to pleasant dreams" with greater thoughtfulness for those about him.

Lyman Burnham Crow was born forty years ago and his entire business career was with the Lord & Burnham Co. Beginning in the bookkeeping department at the age of 17, by the time he had become 30 he had risen to be secretary of the company and its general sales manager. He continued in charge of the New York office for nearly ten years, during which time he gained a wide acquaintance and made many warm friendships in the trade. He understood every detail of greenhouse architecture and construction, and his foresightedness was noteworthy both as relates to the affairs of his company and those of the trade at large.

Mr. Crow was a great lover of flowers and horticulture. His artistic and attractive house and grounds at Irvington show his knowledge of, and affection for, decorative landscape work. The home in which he was forced to leave his wife and little girl is indeed lovely. There gathered on Saturday, September 3, a large number of business associates, friends and neighbors, to pay the last respect to one who had held the respect of all in life. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Edward Morrison.

Edward Morrison, a nurseryman of Dansville, N. Y., died August 28 at his home on Health street, at the age of 60 years. He was a former street commissioner and a member of the C. M. P. A. He is survived by his wife, two sons and one daughter, besides a brother and sister, who live in New York.

Charles Schramm.

Charles Schramm, of Toledo, O., a son of one of the pioneer florists of that city, died August 30 at his home, 1315 Cherry street, as a result of paralysis of the left side. He was 40 years old. With his brother, Benjamin Schramm, he took over his father's business some years ago. The other brother died less than three months ago.

Mrs. Charles E. Wingate.

Mrs. Addie R. Wingate, wife of Charles E. Wingate, of Lawrence, Mass., died at her home, 8 Fulton street, September 1, at the age of 59 years. She had been ill for about ten months. She was born in Lower Bartlett, N. H., March 7, 1851, and was a daughter of Judge G. W. N. Pitman. After graduating from Fryeburg Academy, in Fryeburg, Me., and spending a few years in teaching near her native place, she removed to Lawrence thirty-four years ago. She is survived by her husband, by three daughters, Mrs. Frank V. Thompson, of Boston; Mrs.

Lyman B. Crow.

Frank G. Murch, and Miss Willa Wingate, of Lawrence; and by four sons, Edward, of Louisville, Ky.; Thomas Moses and Ray Wingate and Joseph Leon Wingate, all of Lawrence.

IMPATIENS SULTANI.

Last season I grew some sultan's impatiens, but the plants did not branch as freely as they should. Do they require to be kept pinched back? Some time ago I noticed an ad from Schmidt & Botley, in which they call attention to some new colors in impatiens. I cannot find their address. Can you supply it?
H. E. D. G.

I presume you refer to Impatiens Sultani, commonly called sultan's or Zanzibar balsam. Of I. Sultani separate shades of rosy scarlet and pink are offered in a number of seed catalogues. I. Holstii can be procured either in its original color, a rich vermilion scarlet, or in mixed shades of color. All these impatiens make excellent pot plants. They also succeed well in the outside borders in summer, especially where they can get a slight shade. At some seaside resorts they are popular bedding plants, being notably well done at Bar Harbor, Me. They are improved by judicious pinching. The tops are easily rooted and soon make nice plants. Some growers offer as many as four separate shades of I. Sultani.

The address of Schmidt & Botley is Springfield, O.

Bowmanville, Ont.—S. J. Jackman is building several new greenhouses to take care of his increasing business.

ALBANY, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Albany Florists' Club was held in the evening of September 2, with President Fred Goldring in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary F. A. Danker, and passed. Discussions followed.

William Sanders, grower for H. G. Ayres, brought a specimen of asters to be named, and it was decided by Sam Goldring to be the old Victoria, now so difficult to obtain. There was a conundrum for the boys in the shape of two specimens of poinsettias, grown under exactly similar conditions; one was sick, the other healthy. Each member passed on it, agreeing it was an interesting subject and one for an expert. It was finally decided to send to Cornell for an opinion.

President Goldring encouraged the idea of a question box, stating that it stimulated interest in the meetings. He has rounded out a long term of service, with a record of never missing a meeting, though he lives out in the country.

It was decided to hold a fall show on even a larger scale than the one of last year, which was the first and a most successful one from every point of view. Committees were appointed and will at once get to work.

Walter Mott, of the Yuess Gardens Co., was a visitor and gave a talk on convention matters and visits to the aster fields.
M.

Greenwich, Conn.—Robert Cummings, who had been employed by Mr. and Mrs. Cochran, of Yonkers, N. Y., for thirty-five years, has taken a position as gardener for Mrs. Bowen here.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—J. Diefenbacher has sold his business at 284 Graham avenue to Augustus Osier, formerly of Binghamton, N. Y.

Sycamore, Ill.—Fred R. Kramer, formerly of Aurora, Ill., is now employed at the greenhouses of Wm. Swinbank, in this city.

Marion, Ind.—F. W. Herleman has discontinued business at Twenty-ninth and Boots streets and expects to locate elsewhere in the near future.

Baker City, Ore.—W. A. Sisson & Co. are now proprietors of the Center Street Greenhouses, formerly owned by Ira B. Sturges and located at 2432 Center street.

Bessemer, Ala.—Mrs. W. D. Brown says trade is good and there is a fine lot of mums coming on for fall blooms. She says asters were good during August.

Logansport, Ind.—Mrs. O. G. McCormick, whose greenhouses are at 700 Helm street, now maintains a downtown office in Tritt's drug store, 311 Fourth street.

Ansonia, Conn.—At a recent meeting of the Intertown Dahlia Association, it was decided to hold a dahlia exhibition in the assembly room at the city hall, September 17.

Du Bois, Pa.—The firm of Hayward & Jones has been dissolved by mutual consent. Wm. G. Jones is continuing the business. C. P. Hayward, the other partner, is at present at Parker, Colo.

Hillsboro, Ore.—W. H. Morton, of the Hillsboro Plant & Flower Gardens, recently was laid up with a broken foot, but says it is now much better. Business was good with this firm all last season.

Seattle, Wash.—Geo. F. Buchanan has six acres near here devoted to garden truck, fruit and flowers. He has a Marston Niel rose bush, planted twelve years ago, that now stands thirty feet high. The garden also has two and one-half acres in alfalfa.

Greene, R. I.—John B. Peters, Jr., has just returned from a tour of inspection to Michigan, where he visited the greenhouses of the Hedges Petrius. On his way back he saw some of the trade in the city of Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo and Trenton.

Topeka, Kan.—Edward G. Baer, owner of the Highland Park Greenhouse, reports that erecting a new one is now in progress for a large range on South Fifteenth street, to be ready for planting July 1, 1911. It is said that, when completed, these will be the largest and best equipped greenhouses for whole sale and retail trade in Kansas.

Sewickley, Pa.—Wm. H. Rosenbauer, who owned the greenhouses at 404 Beaver street, has discontinued business.

York Village, Me.—W. G. Moulton & Son are building a 90-foot addition to their greenhouses, with concrete foundations.

San Antonio, Tex.—Mr. Heller, formerly of Stevens & Heller, Alvin, Tex., is now a member of the firm of Heller & Lomavity, in this city.

Stoneham, Mass.—E. K. Farr is erecting a King iron frame greenhouse at 5 North street and will grow carnations for the Boston market.

Denver, Colo.—Daniels & Fisher, the department store which does a large cut flower business here, is establishing agents in the smaller towns through the state where there are no regular florists.

Lawrence, Mass.—Thornton Bros. recently held an aster prize contest for blooms raised from seed purchased in their store. Silver loving cups were won by the three best displays, not more than twenty-five blooms being allowed in one bunch.

Indianapolis, Ind.—L. F. Benson furnished a large number of bay trees to be used in decorating the dining hall at the county fair, held in Wonderland park. The trees were conveyed to the park in a 10-ton motor truck, which bore a huge sign inscribed with Mr. Benson's name.

Highland, Ill.—Maurice F. Widmer has built an addition, 20x50, for smilax. His greenhouses now comprise about 10,000 square feet of glass and are stocked with carnations, roses, mums, smilax and a general line of pot plants. The houses and their contents are all in excellent condition.

Atlantic, Ia.—A foreclosure suit against the property of the Atlantic Greenhouse Co. has been filed by Mrs. Mary M. Nichols. She sues on four mortgages, aggregating $1,110.65, which she alleges were given to Charlotte Scott, who, she says, has assigned her rights to her. The suit is set for the September term.

Pittsfield, Mass.—Hon. Philip Breitmeyer, the florist-mayor of Detroit, was a recent visitor in this city. He was accompanied by Mrs. Breitmeyer and Mr. and Mrs. John Gillispie. Mr. Gillispie is the Detroit agent of the Thomas automobile, and the motor trip is being made in a fine 1911 ninety horse-power Thomas, with Mr. Gillispie driving. Mr. Breitmeyer was interviewed at length by a newspaper reporter in regard to civic conditions in Detroit and elsewhere.

Taunton, Mass.—Clinton Macomber is building a greenhouse, 25x150, at the rear of his home on West Britannia street.

Carrollton, Mo.—H. L. Kennedy, of Kennedy & Farnham, recently made a three weeks' bicycle trip through parts of Missouri and southeastern Kansas.

Huntingdon, Pa.—Samuel A. Hamlington acted as judge at the annual flower carnival recently held in the Methodist Episcopal church of Perry, N. Y.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Knipe & Hinz, of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, have been making improvements in their store, including the construction of a new show window.

Black Hall, Conn.—Edgar H. Steele, manager of the Black Hall Greenhouses, has closed a most successful cucumber season, and since then has been busy changing soil and getting in his mums.

Soldiers Home, Mich.—C. B. Bowditch, of the Michigan Soldiers' Home, states they have 130 acres of improved grounds, five greenhouses, of Moninger construction, planted with about 62,700 bedding plants, and two tracts where they grow all their nursery stock, employing a total of about twenty men on the grounds.

Sycamore, Ill.—William Swinbank's business is increasing steadily from year to year. He grows both vegetables and cut flowers, and his product in both lines is of the highest quality. At present his houses are well stocked with carnations, chrysanthemums, roses, lilies, geraniums and miscellaneous plants. In spring about 50,000 tomato and cabbage plants are required to supply his trade.

Cromwell, Conn.—It is stated in the local newspapers that Andrew Benson, a Connecticut farmer, has just returned from a seven months' expedition to the United States of Colombia, with eighty-five crates of rare orchids, which he values at more than $25,000. Among his prizes are four specimens of a pure white orchid so rare that each plant, it is said, commands a price of $1,000 in this country.

Pontiac, Ill.—W. J. Miller & Son have completed the erection of three modern greenhouses, each 50x100, on their property at the east end of Payson street. The head of this firm, William J. Miller, has been a resident of this city for many years. A number of years ago he erected greenhouses here and later disposed of them. Associated with him now is his son, Orlin B. Miller, who for some years has been connected with the trade at Williamsport, Pa., and Terre Haute, Ind.

OBITUARY.

Lyman B. Crow.

Universal sorrow will follow the announcement of the death, September 1, of Lyman B. Crow at his home at Irvington, N. Y. His demise was not unexpected by those in position to keep in touch with him, for he had been ill for more than two years. He realized probably more fully than anyone else that his time was short and put his affairs in order, but never spoke of the future except in the most hopeful way. No man ever "wrapped the mantle of his couch about him and lay down to pleasant dreams" with greater thoughtfulness for those about him.

Lyman Burnham Crow was born forty years ago and his entire business career was with the Lord & Burnham Co. Beginning in the bookkeeping department at the age of 17, by the time he had become 30 he had risen to be secretary of the company and its general sales manager. He continued in charge of the New York office for nearly ten years, during which time he gained a wide acquaintance and made many warm friendships in the trade. He understood every detail of greenhouse architecture and construction, and his foresightedness was noteworthy both as relates to the affairs of his company and those of the trade at large.

Mr. Crow was a great lover of flowers and horticulture. His artistic and attractive house and grounds at Irvington show his knowledge of, and affection for, decorative landscape work. The home in which he was forced to leave his wife and little girl is indeed lovely. There gathered on Saturday, September 3, a large number of business associates, friends and neighbors, to pay the last respect to one who had held the respect of all in life. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dörner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show
 Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

Results bring advertising.
 The Review brings results.

EASTER, in 1911, falls on a date three weeks later than in 1910. It is April 16.

THIS is the season of innumerable flower shows at state and county fairs.
 Give them your support.

THE Jamestown, N. Y., Post lists the Lake View Rose Gardens as among that city's most important manufacturing plants.

MUCH needless correspondence will be avoided, if want advertisers will state in what section of the country they desire employment or help.

THE Illinois coal operators and their men have not yet settled their differences, but are likely to get together any day now. In the meantime rose growers already are consuming fuel.

M. CRAWFORD, Cuyahoga Falls, O., sends THE REVIEW a sample spike of the new gladiolus, Miss Sill, a quite distinct shade of deep pink that appears to have a place with America, Mrs. King and Augusta for retail cut flower work.

A LONG SEASON.

Here is the floral calendar for the season now opening:

Thanksgiving day, Thursday, November 24, 1910.

Christmas, Sunday, December 25, 1910.

New Year's, Sunday, January 1, 1911.

Lent begins Wednesday, March 1, 1911.

Easter, Sunday, April 16, 1911.

GOES EVERYWHERE.

There is no civilized country on the face of the globe where The Review is not a weekly visitor to leading firms.

As a result of our advertising in The Review we have sold our flower boxes to florists in nearly every state in the Union, and have been very gratified at the results therefrom. We were somewhat surprised, however, upon receiving inquiries from foreign countries. We did not think your circulation reached farther than the American boundaries. We have just received an inquiry from Liverpool, England, for our Self-Watering Flower Boxes in answer to a Review ad.—Illinois Heater & Mfg. Co., Chicago, September 3, 1910.

LADIES' S. A. F.

Mrs. John V. Phillips, of Brooklyn, N. Y., wishes to thank the members of the Ladies' S. A. F. for their kind support in electing her as their president for the ensuing year. She will endeavor to be as faithful as her predecessors.
 Mrs. Phillips was not able to thank the ladies in person, as she had to leave Rochester on account of the illness of Mr. Phillips. Mrs. John V. Phillips.

RESULT OF GARDENING.

"Gardening has restored young Sprig-gles to health. Great thing, gardening!"

"It was gardening that knocked him out in the first place."

"That's strange. What kind?"

"Roof."—Newark News.

TO REMOVE PUTTY.

I have a number of sashbars that were glazed with a mixture of white lead and putty. I have tried to soften it with lye, but did not have much success and shall be thankful if you can tell me of some way of removing it. It is about as hard as cement.

G. H.

Try corrosive sublimate. This chemical, however, is very poisonous and caustic, and great care is necessary so as not to get it on the skin. If this does not remove the putty, there is no recourse left but the chisel and hammer.

Ribes.

PROPAGATING HOUSES.

We are thinking of building one or two small houses for propagating.
 Which would be the proper direction for them to run, east and west or north and south? What is the best width for a propagating house? Our location is southeastern Iowa. D. H. S. & S.

It is often convenient to put in a north-side lean-to house, in which case it need not be more than six feet wide inside; but if an even-span house is used it can run in any direction, as will be most convenient, and a width of nine feet, inside measurement, will answer well.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A Saturday half holiday, a Sunday and Labor day having fallen in succession during the week just ended, the record of business naturally is not extra good. Many of the class that buy flowers were out of the city for the triple holiday, and local demand was smaller than it otherwise would have been. There was a fair business September 1 and 2, and the shipping houses were busy on the morning of Labor day, one or two of them having enough orders to keep them going all day long, though most of the houses, if they did not close at noon, were able to do so before the whole of the afternoon had passed. Recently business has appeared to dwindle during the three days following Monday and the present week appears to hold out no better prospect.

Supplies of stock are in every way adequate to the needs of the moment.
 There are perhaps two flowers on which it is not possible to fill all orders.
 These are carnations and orchids. The supply of cattleyas is extremely light, but there is no steady demand; the spasmodic calls sometimes cannot be met; advance orders are safest. A few indoor carnations are now being received, characteristically short of stem; the outdoor carnation crop has not amounted to much this year. There are quite a few orders for carnations and the small quantity with fair stems is realizing excellent prices.

Receipts of roses are on the increase and prices are slightly lower. There are enough Beauties for all requirements and with many houses the quality is excellent for this date. The cut of Killarney also is on the up grade and other roses are proportionately more abundant. The growers who planted early are now getting into the

THERE ARE NO BETTER BEAUTIES

Than Those We Ship in Quantity Each Day.

The cut is not only large but steadily increasing—mostly medium stems, the length most in demand at this season. We invite all buyers in search of a dependable supply of thoroughly satisfactory Beauties to send their orders to us.

KILLARNEY

...PINK AND WHITE...

The Killarneys, Pink and White, will be the big sellers this season and it is to your interest to put us to the test and prove for yourself our claim that our Killarneys are in a class by themselves. You need these roses—we know you do—and we know you will recognize the fact if you try a few shipments. We are just getting into another heavy crop of both Pink and White Killarney timed just right for the opening of the fall business.

ASTERS

We can take good care of all orders, no matter what grade of stock is wanted—the finest, large, long-stemmed, "special" flowers in all colors can be had here in quantity, or we can supply the "select" grade if a good grade is wanted at a moderate price, with plenty of short-stemmed stock for work at $5.00 to $7.50 per 1000.

Carnations

Nice clean stock, the first indoor crop and therefore not yet long in stem.

Lilies

We can furnish fancy, long-stemmed Easter Lilies every day in the year.

Gladioli

Mrs. Francis King is the variety everybody wants; it's the best red and no other sort will take its place with buyers who know "glads." We can supply it in quantity, fine stock, at $5.00 to $6.00 per 100. Also a large crop of America, the one best light pink, and Augusta, white.

Summer Stock

We can supply any flower in season. Order of us.

Greens

Headquarters for Farleyense, Adiantum, Smilax, Asparagus bunches.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

second crop from the young stock, while those who planted later are cutting their first crop. There is an appreciable improvement in the quality, due to the increased size of the productive plants. Considerable quantities of My Maryland are again in the market and Mrs. Jardine is once more a factor. Kaiserin is not in large supply, but sells well, better than Bride or White Killarney. The season for Richmond to be in demand has not yet arrived.

The heavy rains within the week did temporary damage to all outdoor stock, but already the benefits are beginning to be apparent. There are some extremely fine asters in all colors and they are selling excellently. Not so many gladioli are seen and America still holds the lead. Easter lilies are in much lighter supply and prices have advanced. Not many auratum are seen. Valley is abundant and not yet in special request, although the retailers say there will be many September weddings. White chrysanthemums are now available, as well as yellow. The better grade of mums is faring a little more satisfactorily than was the case in August.

Smilax has gone on the short side and there is a first-class demand for asparagus strings. Wild smilax is now available on a few days' notice. All other greens are plentiful, fine adiantum being abundant.

Club Meeting.

George Asmus, president of the Chicago Florists' Club and president-elect of the S. A. F., was given an enthusiastic reception at the club meeting on the night of September 1. President Asmus and Mrs. Asmus had returned specially from their vacation, and the glad hand was the feature of the evening. One or two ventured the expression of regret that Chicago could not have obtained the next convention as well as the presidency.

Secretary L. H. Winterson was absent on his vacation and T. E. Waters acted in his stead. There was a general discussion of convention matters and a report on the fall flower show, which is to be held in the First Regiment Armory the first full week in November. Refreshments were served.

Various Notes.

Hoerber Bros. have developed 150 gallons per minute in the well at their Des Plaines greenhouses.

Leonard Kill is now secretary of the Sterling Realty Co., at Los Angeles. The office of the concern is just across the street from the flower store of Charles Morton, formerly of Chicago.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., having cut Golden Glow for some weeks, is now cutting October Frost chrysanthemums, much earlier than in other years.

At J. A. Budlong's, Phil Schupp says that practically every out-of-town buyer who has been sent My Maryland calls for it again and again.

He says that veteran growers tell him there never has been so great a difference in the quality of the plants with the various growers as there is this year. Some have first-class stock, but more have poor plants, and some have exceedingly bad prospects. The drought and the black rot are responsible.

The greenhouses of J. G. Barrett had a close call when his handsome dwelling house, only completed a year ago, took fire in the cellar, from some cause unexplained, as the women had not left the spot but a few moments when the outbreak happened. The dry wood caught quickly, and before the fire was extinguished the place was gutted. Of course there is considerable loss, but it might have been worse, for with a high wind the whole plant adjoining would have gone up in smoke.

ples of all kinds are taking on strength, and, while values are not advanced to any great extent, everything along the line is active to the point of making a clean-out easy. Roses are called for to an extent which makes good stock sought for, and low grades have moved up a bit, as far as demand is concerned.

Carnations from outside plants are coming in quite plentifully and sell well, as might be expected at this season. Inside stock is a little backward and few blooms will be had before October 1. Stock is unusually scarce all around.

A few chrysanthemums of the Golden Glow variety have put in an appearance and make the usual returns for something not wanted. One feature of the market this week is the large quantity of really magnificent asters that are coming in. There are more good asters here today than I have ever seen at one time before. Unfortunately, there are too many to maintain prices, the demand not having increased in proportion to the supply. It seems probable that the height of the season has been reached and the next week will see a decline. Poor asters are still poor stock indeed. Dahlias are increasing in quantity, and by next week the fancy varieties will be in full swing.

Various Notes.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club held its annual picnic at Bay Shore park, September 1. It was one of the best ever held by the club, some fine prizes being offered for bowling, both for ladies and gentlemen.

Harry Ekas has just purchased five acres of land on the Frederick road. Mr. Ekas formerly leased this property and is conducting a florists' establishment on it at the present time.

Charles H. Cook is erecting a 3,000-gallon tank at his country place at Catonsville.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons will hold their fourth annual dahlia show at Cowenton, Md., September 27 to 30. This firm has over forty acres in dahlias. Q.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

Lawrence Cotter, superintendent of the Lake View Rose Gardens, says he and Barney Myers, of W. J. Palmer & Son, intend to carry all before them on roses at the next National Show—a big challenge, but they are a great team and will doubtless be heard from.

Thomas Russell, of Brooklyn Heights, finds the recent addition insufficient for his steadily increasing business and expects to add considerably to his plant after the spring rush. Decorations are a feature with him.

George Heelas has made himself highly popular with the Chautauqua visitors by his artistic and original designing at Lake View during the assembly.

F. A. Dorman has no room to add to his snug plant, which is built of iron and cement.

Eliot Worden has some of the finest asters in town. Many were sold for early mums. M.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The first seven days of September have been dull in the cut flower market. Business was smaller the first three days of September than it had been during the corresponding days of the previous week; then came the holiday following Sunday, accompanied by fierce heat. Flower buyers left the city. Those who remained took little interest in flowers. The wet weather followed by the heat made the quality poorer; brown-tipped asters were the rule while it was damp. Dahlias arrived in poor shape; even the finest stock suffered.

Chester county has been sending some fine asters, but the percentage of good flowers is smaller than a week ago. There are numbers of small-flowered, short-stemmed asters coming into town that are unsalable, bringing only disappointment to all. Dahlias have not really started yet. The heavy shipments will not come for a few days, but by the time these lines appear dahlias will be an important factor. Gladioli are unchanged from a week ago. Easter lilies have shortened and the price is firmer. Valley is in good supply. Cattleyas continue scarce; there are now two grades. Beauties have become more plentiful. They are not selling so well as a week ago, though the quality is improving. Kaiserin is coming on crop again. There are plenty of nice Maryland and a few Killarney with substance. Hardly any of the carnation growers who produce largely in winter are shipping yet.

Wild smilax has made its appearance, a sure sign of the approach of the decorative season.

Club Meeting.

Tuesday, September 6, was the hottest September day in many years, and the attendance at the meeting of the Florists' Club that evening was thereby reduced.

J. Otto Thilow, John Westcott and others spoke entertainingly of the pleasure and profit derived by all from the Rochester convention.

The secretary was directed to express the sympathy of the members to the family on the death of George Redford, superintendent of Mt. Vernon cemetery.

This year's officers all were nominated for reelection: President, Joseph Heacock; vice-president, Alfred Burton; treasurer, George Craig; secretary, David Rust.

The Largest Contract.

Dreer has ordered two acres of greenhouses from King. That is the brief of the news given out from 714 Chestnut street.

Elaborated, it means that the Henry A. Dreer corporation has placed the largest single building order ever placed in this vicinity; it is for two ranges of even-span, ridge and furrow, semi-iron construction, each range consisting of ten greenhouses 21x200, with a corridor house between. In round figures, this will require pretty nearly 100,000 square feet of glass. These ranges are for the new Dreer farm, a short distance from Riverton. The building contractors, King Construction Co., of North Tonawanda, N. Y., have agreed that the material for the ranges shall be furnished at once. Work on grading the ground for the ranges and for the railroad siding, which is to be run to the boiler shed, has already commenced and will be pushed rapidly.

Its merits have been conclusively proven through Public Demonstrations.

Two or Three Novelties.

Paul Berkowitz pointed out a few novelties that had just come in from Europe. The impression they created was of an improved taste on the part of the foreign producers, undoubtedly fostered by the suggestions of H. Bayersdorfer. They included silver filigree baskets of pleasing design and excellent workmanship, and Dutch figures of metal with baskets. These come two and two, as Mr. Berkowitz pointed out, a man and a woman or a lad and a lass in each pair, following in their metallic way the human law. Then there was a departure in imperial chinaware. The low waterway idea that will not obstruct the view has been abandoned in this departure; tall vases in many shapes and combinations are the result. The material, coloring and workmanship are preserved.

Various Notes.

John Curwen, of Berwyn, lost his boiler shed by fire September 1. His water supply was cut off by the blaze. Carl Corts, representing Joseph Heacock Co., September 6, brought in the first roses from the new place at Roelofs station.

Godfrey Aschmann this week commenced the erection of one new house 12x75, Lord & Burnham material, under the direction of John Aschmann.

William C. Herbert, of David Herbert & Son, Atco, N. J., reports the dahlia crop greatly benefited by last week's heavy rain.

Charles Pappas opened his new branch in the Arcade of Broad Street station September 1. The feature is a handsome display refrigerator in full view of all passersby. This branch will be run in connection with Mr. Pappas's main stand in the waiting room.

Walter Davis has returned from his vacation.

W. J. Galt has been in charge of the Sign of the Rose during the summer.

M. Rice & Co. report the following visitors: Harvey Sheaf, manager for Mrs. F. A. Williams, Pittsburg; H. Warendorff and the junior Fleischman, of New York city; C. Jones and C. Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland.

Berger Bros. have been receiving some Jersey asters that readily brought more than listed quotations.

The King Construction Co. will erect one greenhouse, said to be about 20x100, for Frazer Harrison, at Oreland, Pa.

Alvah R. Jones, captain of the Pennock-Meehan forces, returned to duty Labor day, after a delightful trip through Canada and home by water via Yarmouth and Boston.

William P. Craig returned from the west last week and left for the south this week.

Among the visitors reported by H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are: Sidney Hoffman, Boston, and F. C. Weber, Jr., and Mrs. Weber, St. Louis; both members of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland.

THE FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICAFALL NOVELTIES

We have a wonderful collection of fine novelties for the coming season; we shall tell you about them as they come into our warehouse.

One of the very best now here is our New Embossed Crepe Paper, which is a big improvement on the old style; the patterns are original and pleasing; the paper needs no smoothing; it looks well the moment it is put in place.

Metal Baskets are the daintiest little handle baskets you ever saw; they are favors or keepsakes, you will like them.

Prepared Ferns in great variety of colors. Splendid for decorative effects where something durable and pretty is required. Very many of these ferns are novelties.

Edward Reid reports that Beauties are rapidly rounding into form.

David Feurstenberg is enjoying a rest from work at the city by the sea.

Arthur Zirkman was in a hold-up near Ogden, Utah, some time ago. The desperados looted the express car and went through the passengers in the day coach, but, luckily, did not attempt the Pullman, where Mr. Zirkman was asleep. None of the passengers was injured, but a brakeman was badly hurt. One poor woman had all her money taken; this the passengers generously replaced. Phil.

HAMMONTON, N. J.

The Association of Hammonton Dahlia Growers was organized Monday evening, August 29, and elected William F. Bassett president, C. A. Wood vice-president and Edw. H. White secretary.

The commercial growers of Hammonton, realizing that some of the best dahlia blooms in the Philadelphia market were grown in Hammonton and vicinity, decided to organize for the purpose of further advertising Hammonton grown dahlias, securing better transportation facilities, improved methods of cultivation, etc. They have adopted a uniform copyrighted label, which will be attached to all shipments.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.

Dr. Wesley Wait returned from Rochester well pleased with the interest his exhibit created at the convention. Plans are under way for the formation of a stock company to handle the business, which is already pushing the doctor hard.

Caldwell & Jespersion have completed the pretty store fronting their plant and will make it very attractive. Their stock is in elegant shape.

R. Harry Cathcart, Jr., of the Yuess Gardens Co., has closed a contract with the Charles Weathered Co. for one house 28x273 feet and one 50x110. These, with one just finished, 35x153, will form a square and cover an entire block. Percy Herbert is engaged on a plan of ornamentation and nursery work.

bined. The demand for this firm's cut flowers and plants is increasing and the shipping facilities are of the best. The soil is a gravelly loam, in which trees, shrubs and plants make strong, fibrous roots. Space has been set apart for seed trials.

NEW YORK.The Market.

There is little to add to last week's report of the market. It is simply marking time and the wholesalers say it will do little else until October. Fortunately, shipments of roses and carnations are light, but it takes much ingenuity to dispose of the flood of asters and the great sufficiency of gladioli, tritomas, dahlias and hydrangeas. The late rains have been of great service and there is no danger of a scant supply of anything.

A few chrysanthemums are seen, harbingers of a tremendous flood in the near future, for everybody is growing them around New York. Beauties seldom touch 20 cents, except for the best, and only ten per cent of the arrivals reach that value. Killarney is fast approaching perfection again, but the stems are short and few go above 4 cents, the average being under $10 per thousand. The retail windows show some fine sprays of orchids. Gardenias are here again and their price is rising. The best valley does not go above 3 cents and lilies have fallen again to 6 cents and under. There is no limit to the aster shipments. They come from Rochester in great quantities. The market cannot digest them all. Vast quantities of small and inferior stock go into the discard, but the best asters command a good price and meet with a ready sale. Few have gone above $2 per hundred, however. From now on dahlias will increase daily.

The fern, evergreen, wild smilax and moss men do not complain. All of them, including the supply houses, are busy preparing for the coming season and seemingly expectant of success. Every day brings us nearer to the upward swing of the market. New York is ready for the increase in demand, the inevitable result of a growth in population that totals close to five millions.

Various Notes.

Monday, September 12, the first fall meeting of the New York Florists' Club takes place, at its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on Twenty-third street. There will be convention echoes. A good exhibit is promised and samples of the prizes won at Rochester will be on exhibition, with general opportunity to test their value. A ladies' night is contemplated in October. The club was never in a more prosperous condition. It was represented at the funeral of Lyman B. Craw, one of its most popular members, Saturday, September 3, at Irvington, by President A. L. Miller, W. F. Sheridan, J. H. Pepper, James Meikeljohn and J. Austin Shaw. The club sent a floral wreath, President Pierson, of Tarrytown, a beautiful tribute and a wealth of flowers from many friends and business associates banked the room and covered the coffin. Mr. Craw bore his long and severe illness with wonderful patience and bravery, conscious for some time of the inevitable. He was a man of rare business tact and energy and had been connected with the firm of Lord & Burnham for over twenty years. He leaves a wife and daughter, to whom the sympathy of all in the trade is extended in their great bereavement.

The Long Island Bowling Club began practice for Baltimore Tuesday afternoon and evening, August 30. Every Thursday Flatbush bowls harmoniously.

At the floricultural exhibition of the Swabian Volkfest, at Coliseum park, Ridgewood, L. I., last week and this week, liberal prizes were given for carpet bedding, geraniums, asters, begonias, celosias, salvias, coleus and cannas, also foliage plants, palms, ficus and golden privet. John Dreier, of Middle Village, displayed his skill, as usual, in a miniature cottage garden, and Fred Marquardt, of the same town, constructed the great column of fruit and flowers, the most attractive novelty of the exhibition. The prizes were all in gold, and the artistic work of the florists was greatly admired by many thousands of visitors, especially on Sunday. August F. Schrader, of Elmhurst, has been the superintendent of this great festival for fifteen years. Among the prize winners whose names are familiar to all are: John Baumann, John Dreier and Fred Marquardt, of Middle Village; C. Woerner and Charles Koch, of Flatbush; A. Miller, of Jamaica, and Herman Maenner, of Maspeth.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co., 62 Vesey street, has opened its auction rooms, with Robert MacNiff at the helm. He is a young man of splendid energy and has many years of experience in this line of work.

Charles Millang was autoing last week among his growers, calling on John M. Hunter & Son and T. W. Lydecker & Co., of Englewood, David Dean, son of the veteran, James Dean, and he also visited Bretzenel. Lydecker & Co. have twelve houses planted to roses and carnations. In spite of the dry season, he says Bretzenel's dahlias are superb. The auto was his gift to his daughter on her nineteenth birthday.

New York, for the Barron wedding Thursday evening, September 1. The ballroom was arranged for a church effect. The canopy was of roses. Electric lights were utilized in great numbers. The bride's bouquet was a shower of valley and the eight bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink roses.

Horace A. Froment is back from his vacation at Saratoga. James Coyle, his lieutenant, is ill at his home in College Point.

Arthur Hunt, of A. H. Langjahr's, with his family, has returned from Barryville, in Sullivan county.

P. F. McKenney, 503 Fifth avenue, has a fine out-of-town wedding this week and is well pleased with his first year's experience.

J. P. Mallette, of Springfield, Mass., was a visitor last week, and Charles H. Vick, of Rochester, also favored the city with his smile.

Arthur T. Boddington received 140 cases of Dutch bulbs last week. His French bulbs are already well distributed. Harry Bunyard says the firm has had an exceptionally large sale on sweet pea seed and their canna grower reports the 915,000 contracted for will all be at his disposal. Mr. Boddington is now sending out his retail catalogues.

Mr. Rassbach, of Bloomfield, N. J., is back from a month's trip through Colorado and a visit to relatives there.

The Wilson-Hoyt Co. has completed plans for its new factory. Secretary Ferry says he did exceedingly well at the convention.

George A. Kuhl and family, of Pekin, Ill., left New York for home Friday, September 2, via a special car on the New York Central and Big Four.

Alex. McConnell reports an early and unusual demand for nursery stock for fall planting.

M. A. Bowe expects to decide upon his future location on Broadway this week, with a view to taking a store near his present site in the new building when it is completed.

A. T. Bunyard is back from the convention and his holidays and is busy redecorating his store. He and G. Myer were the only retailers from New York, and J. V. Phillips and Robert Wilson the only ones from Brooklyn, who attended the Rochester convention. Mr. Myer is making some elaborate improvements in his store and adding a canopy with electrical effects that will add to the attractiveness of his display. He will increase the size of the place to nearly double in 1911.

Those who attended the convention will be glad to know that J. V. Phillips, who was taken suddenly ill there, has fully recovered and is enjoying a vacation at his bungalow on Long Island close to Great South bay.

S. Masur, of Brooklyn, began the month with a wedding that claimed all his decorative skill, and says he has several already booked for September. He will have a larger store after May.

From their trial grounds, Stumpp & Walter's windows displayed an excellent variety of gladioli last week. The principals of this house have now all returned from their summer vacations in the Adirondacks and on the New England coast.

The first auction of William Elliott & Sons will take place Tuesday, September 13, a few days earlier than at first intended. Decorative palms and foliage plants for retailers will be the first offering of the veteran.

The new Greek-American Florists' Supply House of George Cotsonas & Co. is now completed and well stocked and business promises encouragingly already. There is much fraternal loyalty in the descendants of Leonidas and Demosthenes.

Alex. J. Guttman announces the closing of his wholesale cut flower business next week, that he may give his entire time and attention to the Best Oil Co., of which he is president and manager.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

There was a good business flurry last week, caused by several special events and large funerals. These, with regular orders and normal demand, combined to make an unusually good week for this season. Stock of all kinds is good, and the supply equals the demand. Prices range about at the regular standard for the summer months.

Various Notes.

The Melrose Gardens have nearly 10,000 rose bushes in bloom at their places on Melrose street, Elmwood avenue and Wilson street. Mr. Pepper, the proprietor, reports a large increase in sales over last year.

J. J. Kelly, of Valley Falls, reports an unusually brisk time on funeral pieces recently.

Edward Brooks, of T. J. Johnston & Co., has returned from his vacation, which he enjoyed at Cottage City, on Martha's Vineyard.

T. O'Connor is back from his summer sojourn at Sakonnet Point.

Miss Rose Bates, bookkeeper for George Johnson & Co., has returned from her vacation at Bristol Highlands.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. O'Connor have been stopping at Narragansett Pier during the month of August.

Johnston Bros. furnished the table decorations for a big clambake recently. The Crowl Fern Co., of Milington, Mass., furnished 4,500 yards of laurel roping for the same occasion.

The Market.

While there was no improvement in trade during the last week, things are shaping themselves for a hustling year. There is considerable activity among the various florists and a number of advance orders are already on their books.

Various Notes.

Gilbert P. Weaklen, who has been with Randolph & McClements for a number of years, has handed in his resignation and will open a store at 130 South Highland avenue. The style of the firm will be G. P. Weaklen & Co.

The Zieger Co. will open a new store in the Rittenhouse, on North Highland avenue. There is also a report that still another store will open in the east end district.

John Bader has just received a large consignment of bulbs and reports that Romans are the finest that have been seen for several years.

The Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. was fortunate in planting many more carnations than usual, and, unlike some other carnation crops in this section, they were not affected by the dry weather. Hoo-Hoo.

ROBERT GROVES, 127 Commercial Street, ADAMS, MASS.

Little Falls, N. Y.—J. O. Graham regrets such conventions as the one just held can be attended but once a year. He considers the last one the best yet, and is now putting in his best work to make up for any time taken in making the trip.

Cortland, N. Y.—Adolph Frost, Jr., proprietor of the Brain Bridge Conservatories, has a delivery wagon which is striking enough in appearance to excite newspaper comment. A local paper contains the following appreciative paragraph: "The vivid green delivery wagon of Frost, the florist, just put upon the street, newly painted, is eminently suggestive of greenhouses."

The Market.

Business continued about the same as in the previous week, though the change from the cool to the warm weather, of course, had some effect on the trade. There will soon be a change for the better, as a great many of our society people have returned from their summer trips in time for the opening of the schools, and this is generally looked upon as the first sign of active fall business.

The wholesalers had about the usual amount of stock on hand daily. A great many more asters are in the market, however, being shipped in from northern points. The warm days last week had a marked effect on roses, which came in open and soft, though some good shipments were also seen. Carnations, too, are coming in more freely, but they are still small and short-stemmed. Single tuberose stalks continue to be a glut, and glads are still with us. The recent heavy rains damaged outdoor stock somewhat. Greens of all kinds continue in good demand.

Various Notes.

Will Craig, of the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, was in the city last week, calling on the trade. He reports good business in his line. He went directly home from here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Jr., have returned from their honeymoon trip to Atlantic City, N. J., and are receiving daily congratulations from their many friends in the trade. They will reside with Mr. Weber's parents

H. G. Evans, lately with the Idle Hour Greenhouses, has taken a position as manager for J. F. Ammann's store at Alton, Ill. Mrs. Dietchie, who had charge there last year, has retired from the business.

It was reported by one of the leading Kirkwood growers, in his recent visits to his many neighbors in St. Louis county, that from 80,000 to 100,000 feet of glass had been added at Kirkwood this summer, with a good many beginners in the business.

The St. Louis Seed Co. has issued its new fall catalogue, which is a handsome one. The firm is looking for a large fall trade in bulbs.

A learned Japanese professor, lecturer on botany in the Imperial University, Tokio, Japan, in company with several botanists of Japan, visited the Missouri Botanical Garden last week and they were guests of William Trelease, director, and H. C. Irish, superintendent of the garden. The oriental botanists were astonished at the completeness of the garden.

The wholesale house of W. C. Smith and that of H. G. Berning have made great changes during the summer, both having doubled their room. Those coming home from their summer vacations hardly knew the places, which are now completed.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, C. E. De Wever, of Clayton, and John Cannon, of Webster Groves, spent Friday afternoon, September 2, in this city, attending the meeting of the Bulletin committee at Smith's.

The meeting of the Ladies' Home Circle this week, September 8, at Roma park, is partly in the form of an outing, occupying the whole day.

Our nurserymen, Messrs. Sanders, Weber, Schuette and Rothenhoeber, say they have plenty of orders for fall delivery of fruit and shade trees and shrubs. They are putting on extra forces for the work.

Henry Ostertag, head of the Ostertag Bros., supervised several large decorations last week. He says he disposed of over 100 large bay trees this summer, as well as a number of other large decorative plants.

L. P. Jensen, gardener for the Busch private place and secretary of the Engelmann Botanical Club, says the meet-

The great rain storm on Sunday, September 4, spoiled the second Sunday opening at the Missouri Botanical Garden, but some 2,500 persons risked a soaking to take advantage of the sights that are accorded them twice a year through the will of the late Henry Shaw. The next Sunday opening will not take place until the first Sunday in June, 1911. J. J. B.

CUSTOM-HOUSE brokers now are licensed by the government.

FORMOSA lily bulbs are selling well, much better than Harrisii.

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin by R. A. Oakley, "Canada Bluegrass; Its Culture and Uses."

THE seed business is no longer a short season affair. The average seedsman manages to keep something doing all the year around.

CARL R. GLOECKNER, president of the Buds corporation, New York, states that new warehouse facilities have been secured at 81 Barclay street.

ORDERS for the south are coming to hand in pleasing volume; market gardening is increasing at a tremendous rate, both in the southeast and in Texas.

LITTLE in the way of detailed news is coming to hand from German seed growers, but advices are to the general effect that conditions there are not materially better than in France and in England. Biennials are a light crop all over Europe.

It is reported that A. J. Pieters, while retaining an interest in the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Hollister, Cal., of which L. W. Wheeler is now the active head, has removed to Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will occupy the chair of botany in the University of Michigan.

THE market for practically all canned vegetables is dull but strong. Prices are not so high as the reports of short packs might lead one to expect, but quotations are largely nominal, there being little actual business stirring, due to the fact that most of the packers are oversold.

"FORTUNATELY the weather does not affect to any extent the crop of cyclamen seed," say Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park, England, "or else we should have a very poor report to give indeed. Ours seems to be an average crop, but we have already sold out of Cyclamen Eileen Low, the novelty that we offered this season for the first time, and the seed of Schizanthus Wisetonensis and the new gerbera hybrids are also selling freely."

THINGS are shaping themselves for a big season of seed selling. Crops grown for market have brought excellent prices in 1910 and, on the other hand, the continued high cost of living will cause great numbers of people to depend more on their gardens next year. So the seedsman will get an increase, both on the little orders and the big.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seeds through the port of New York for the week ending August 27 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Anise	125	$ 1,255	Grass	1,595	$43,774
Canary	500	2,246	Millet	700	1,975

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $53,079.

FLOODS DESTROY JAPAN BULBS.

Owing to recent floods in the bulb districts in Japan, growers are predicting a large shortage in giganteum and multiflorum bulbs this fall. According to the Japan mail, August 15, in the Saitama district, where giganteums are grown, seventy persons were killed, 277 missing, 759 houses collapsed and 41,261 were submerged. In the Gumma district, where multiflorum and giganteum are grown, 153 persons were killed, fifty injured, twenty-two missing, five houses destroyed, thirty-three washed away, 26,372 submerged, etc. Other districts have been affected in a similar way. Seitaro Arai wrote August 15 to Ralph M. Ward & Co. that the lily fields were still covered with water and that thousands and thousands of bulbs have been annihilated in the fields. The damage to bulbs is still unknown, but will undoubtedly be heavy. The storms were severe, causing landslides everywhere, with much damage to crops of all kinds.

DUTCH BULBS.

The season's crop of Holland bulbs has been arriving in small lots ever since the latter part of July, a record for earliness having been made this year with the first shipment, consisting of eighty cases of narcissi from C. Keur & Son, going on board steamer at Rotterdam July 1. The aim always is to get a sample line into the hands of the American seedsmen in time for the S. A. F. convention. The early shipments were, as not infrequently happens, a little green, but the stock now coming to hand appears to be of excel-

Dreer's Giant Cyclamen

New Crop Seed Now Ready

WE have for years carefully noted the various strains of Cyclamen from the world's foremost specialists and feel sure that the strain here offered is by far the best, regardless of price.

Our grower has made the Cyclamen a life study, and the strain is now practically perfect; the habit of the plants, purity of colors, size and substance of the flowers leaving nothing to be desired.

Many of the leading growers are now using this strain exclusively. We offer as follows:

	100 Seeds	1000 Seeds
Dreer's Giant Pure White.....	$.75	$ 6.00
Dreer's Giant White with Carmine Eye, .75		6.00
Dreer's Giant Rose with Dark Eye.....	.75	6.00

Dreer's Giant Choicest Mixed, all colors, .60		5.00
Dreer's Giant Wonder of Wandsbek, a new variety of various brilliant rose shades suffused with salmon. A striking color,	1.50	12.00

Plants for Next Winter's Blooming

We can supply nice 3-inch pot plants of our Giant Cyclamen in the first four colors noted above, $1.25 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

DANISH SEED CROPS.

The outlook for the cauliflower seed crop in Denmark is encouraging, as well for quality as for quantity, according to Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., but cabbage will be a short crop, on account of early frosts last fall before planting time, through which many heads were injured, and through the attack of insects during the summer. However, the favorable weather during the spring and summer, contrary to the reports from other seed sections, they say, has somewhat straightened out the bad condition, but, nevertheless, a shortage of twenty-five per cent is expected in Danish Ballhead, tall-stemmed, and even more in the Danish Roundhead, short-stemmed, and Danish Summer Ballhead. Turnip and swedes promise an excellent crop. The man-gold crop will be about medium.

Einar Knutsson is visiting the United States, representing Hartmann & Co., in place of Mr. Hartmann, who usually makes the trip.

THE CALIFORNIA CROPS.

The harvest of California seed crops is nearly completed and actual conditions are now ascertainable. "On the whole, we have had a favorable year," said L. W. Wheeler, secretary of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., of Hollister, Cal., August 31. "Lettuce is, with few exceptions, a good crop, and there will be a surplus of leading kinds after orders are filled. Radish is good with some growers, fair to medium with others; but with the extreme shortage in Europe, there will not be enough California surplus to go around, now that the trade is learning that California radish, if properly grown, is equal to imported for ordinary garden culture. Sweet peas are short with nearly all growers. Inquiries are coming in daily from this country and Europe. Onion, which promised in June to be a heavy crop, has fallen down materially in yield at harvest time and will not, when all is cleaned and sacked, average a normal crop, the hot weather during July having injured this important crop at least twenty-five per cent."

HOLLAND'S SEED CROPS.

Generally speaking, the weather has been as unfavorable for seed crops in Holland during almost the whole of the last year as it has been in other seed-growing sections of Europe. In the autumn of 1909, heavy rains made difficult the tilling of the soil and, though the winter was extremely mild, many plants could not endure the long spell of moisture, and rotted; moreover, the absence of frosts made the soil ill adapted for the planting of the more delicate articles in spring. Spring weather was favorable, but May and June brought great heat, to the injury of many articles. July again brought rough weather and many crops suffered from heavy winds and rains.

Sluis & Groot, of Enkhuizen, say that an early promise of fair crops of cabbage has been dissipated and that only a middling crop is now in prospect. Cauliflower promises a sufficient crop. Turnips passed the winter well, but a considerable part were destroyed by floods. The remainder developed well at the outset, but the sudden change of temperature, coupled with the ravages of insects, greatly reduced the number of seed pods, so that the crops will not be more than middling. A good crop of swedes is expected and the small acreage of kohlrabi promises a fair crop. There will be an average crop of mangel and sugar beet. Garden beets look poor and the crop will be small. A limited area of carrot looks well. Parsnip will produce less than an average crop. There is a large acreage of cornsalad. Radish promises well. Onion will be a small crop, and of parsley there will be less than an average crop. Spinaches promise a good crop. Peas will be poor, but beans are recovering and can yield a good crop if favorable weather continues.

Nasturtium and pansies are among the flower seeds that are yielding well. Of petunia, verbena and phlox there will be a good yield. Mignonette promises less than an average yield. Of most of the other flower seeds, either the areas planted were small or there are open spaces in the fields. The harvest will doubtless be below the average in quality, but no serious shortages are in prospect.

AMZI GODDEN'S CAPITAL RISE.

The Amzi Godden Co., Birmingham, Ala., has just increased its authorized capital stock from $40,000 to $100,000 for the purpose of extending its business.

The Amzi Godden seed business was started in 1857 and, though beset by difficulties at first, pursued its way through troublous times until it became firmly established as one of Alabama's permanent business institutions. In 1896 it became incorporated, then with a capital of $15,000. The business grew as the efforts of the officers became more and more to be felt, and in 1901 it was found necessary to increase the capitalization to $40,000. The increase seemed to give additional impetus to the growth and added energy to the officers and employees, until the volume of trade became so large that the decision was reached to make the capital stock an even $100,000.

The Market.

Business has been quiet during the last week. There seems to be no great surplus of flowers, but the demand as yet lacks snap. Summer dullness has not yet given place to fall activity. It is hoped that the return of vacationists will this week improve matters somewhat. Asters are still the predominant factor in the market and the quality is unusually good, but they are so abundant that their values have sunk to a rather unprofitable level. Few pass over $1 per hundred and others are cleared as low as 300 for the same price. Gladioli are still in heavy supply and inclined to drag.

Roses, while not of good quality, are steadily improving and are meeting with a fair sale, as are the few carnations coming in of the new season's crop. Lilies are ample for all demands, longiflorum being the best seller. Such sweet peas as are seen are of poor quality. Quite a little Texas heath, Physostegia Virginica, is seen. It is an excellent perennial for cutting, lasting remarkably well. There is an abundance of cosmos, candytuft, cornflowers and other outdoor flowers.

Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus and adiantum are of fine quality, but selling slowly at present. Pot plant trade shows signs of starting up a little.

Various Notes.

The Boston Coöperative Flower Market, at 2 Park street, had its annual auction sale of stalls September 3, attracting as usual a large crowd of buyers. First choice of stalls went to William H. Elliott, at a premium of $125. N. F. Comley followed with $90. Other high bidders included Robert Montgomery, A. Roper, Donald Carmichael, Elijah Cartwright, Edward Wood, John McFarland and L. E. Small. Bidding was animated throughout and over 100 stalls were disposed of, only eight now being unsold. William W. Tailby made, as usual, an excellent auctioneer. Refreshments were served to everyone.

Thomas Roland among his other specialties is sending in a fine lot of well berried Christmas peppers at present.

"QUALITY" CHRISTMAS SWEET PEAS

At the Exhibition and Convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, July 12th and 13th, 1910, we again won the C. C. Morse & Co.'s Silver Cup for the finest and best collection of Sweet Peas open to the trade only.

The right time to sow Sweet Peas for Christmas flowering is in Aug. and Sept.

All our Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas are true to name and grown from originator's stock (secured by us) by one of the most reliable seed growers and Sweet Pea specialists in California, and we can make immediate delivery. Our output last year was nearly 6000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt, the finest early white for indoor planting. places before returning. His many friends here sincerely wish him bon voyage, a speedy return of his old-time rugged health and a safe return.

Philip L. Carbone is showing an unusually attractive line of imported ware at his Boylston street store. His representatives made many sales at the late Rochester convention, where he had an exhibit.

W. W. Edgar & Co. are already placing quantities of well flowered Lorraine begonias on the market.

Edward Wood, of Lexington, has many of the finest asters it has been our privilege to see this season. The blooms of American Branching are specially fine.

Julius H. Zinn had his large show window on Park street entirely devoted to red shades of gladioli this week. The spikes were fine and the display an interesting one.

Local dealers are getting in their supplies of Dutch bulbs. The quality is extra good and advance orders indicate that the demand will be excellent, particularly for outdoor varieties.

W. B. Whittier, of the Framingham Nurseries, whose obituary notice appeared in last week's issue of The Review, had been in business in Framingham for seventeen years. He left a widow and three children, all girls. His only son died some years ago. His death will, it is said, necessitate some changes in the business of the firm, which became incorporated as W. B. Whittier & Co. several years ago.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is sending in many of the finest gladioli and asters seen at C Park street at present.

A. H. Hews & Co., of North Cambridge, report a healthy fall demand for flower pots and pans, orders coming in earlier and in larger volume than for several years.

Weld Gardens, Brookline, over which Duncan Finlayson presides, were opened to the public September 5 and 6 and large numbers of visitors attended and enjoyed the beautiful floral display.

At the Harvard Botanic Gardens the T. W. Weathered Co., of New York, will build a fine range of new greenhouses to take the place of the existing palm range, which will be dismantled. The new range will be of larger area than the old one.

The New England Dahlia Society's annual exhibition will open in Horticultural hall September 16. A fine display is expected, although dahlias are not, as a rule, blooming so well as usual. This exhibition will be followed a week later by the autumn show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

We have been favored with quite generous rains of late, commencing September 3. Labor day gave considerable precipitation, which, while splendid for crops, somewhat marred the pleasure of holiday seekers. The minimum approached the freezing point in several places on the morning of September 3, but we have not heard of any frost damage.

Local nurseries are experiencing a good fall demand for evergreens, September being considered the best month for planting this class of stock, many preferring early fall to spring planting.

The Hanover Greenhouses are sending in a fine lot of Physostegia Virginica, locally known as Texas heath, to C Park street.

Vacation experiences in lieu of a regular lecture will be listened to at the opening meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, September 20.

James Wheeler has work well advanced on his new dwelling at Natick, which is of the bungalow type, built of natural field stones. His big house of carnations is looking well and carrying a fine crop.

A. Roper, of Tewksbury, is still sending in fine flowers of carnations of the old crop, some of his own seedlings being fine.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, one of our largest carnation specialists, has a large force busy housing his plants, the work being now well advanced. He does not favor early planting.

The Market.

Business was fair last week. Funeral work was quite heavy and there were a few calls for flowers for socials. Roses and carnations are improving slowly, in both the flower and length of stem. Some good asters are seen.

Various Notes.

The roses and carnations at Julius Niednagel & Sons' place are in good shape. The mums are coming along nicely. A large number of plants grown in pots outdoors appear to extra good advantage. Business is good with this firm.

Geo. Blackman says business is good for the season. They are cutting some fine Beauties in all lengths. The other roses are good and the cut is large. The carnations are showing fine improvement, especially White Perfection. The stems are long and the flowers are good.

J. C. Elsperman reports a good business. He has planted one bench of roses, Ivory, this year. It is his first trial at growing roses for cut flowers. His carnations are growing nicely.

Henry Seymour is having a good trade.

Karl Zeidler is cutting some good outdoor roses. E. L. F.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The business transacted last week was considerable, but as a whole the supply of stock exceeded the demand and quite a bit was left over. One thing particularly noticeable in the market is the lack of a large quantity of really good flowers on Monday morning. Outside of the consignors of roses and the local growers, few if any get their stock here on that day. If those shippers at a distance would take the trouble to spend a few hours packing on Sunday and ship so as to get their goods here early the next day, the ready sale they would find would make their extra exertion worth while.

The roses are in an increased supply and all the winter varieties are now offered. Beauties and white roses are in especially large numbers. New carnations are now on the market; the stems are short, but the blooms are good.

There is some good aster stock about. The supply of choice gladioli is waning and points toward the end of the season for these flowers. A large number of poorer ones fill the wholesalers' refrigerators. Steady consignments of Easter lilies arrive daily. The daily quantity of cosmos offered is increasing. The green goods market is quiet.

Various Notes.

J. A. Peterson's new greenhouses are nearing completion. Recently he sent several shipments of Begonia Glory of Cincinnati to England. Mr. Peterson has six large houses full of these begonias, which are growing nicely.

R. Witterstaetter has finished potting up his Boston ferns. They range in size from 6-inch to 10-inch and are, as a whole, the finest he has ever had. They did not suffer the least bit when they were potted.

Utica, N. Y.—Councilman Frank
Baker was one of the many who quietly slipped into Rochester to attend the convention and see what the other fellow was doing, and was well pleased with what he saw. Mrs. Baker accompanied him. The veteran William Mathews expected to go along, but the important business of changing boilers kept him back. Harry said he could not afford another honeymoon trip so soon, and Charlie had hardly got settled in the new store, made necessary by the old one being pulled down.

Brockton, Mass.—Mrs. Lizzie Reed has removed from the Belmont block, at Main and Belmont streets, to a store in what is known as the Daniel S. block, on Main street, where she will have twice as much floor space as formerly. The store in the Belmont block was wanted by the owners for their own use and Mrs. Reed was offered such inducements as persuaded her to vacate it, though her lease would not expire till next August.

NURSERY NEWS.AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

THE nursery of Augustine & Co., Bloomington, Ill., was established in 1867. The Sudduth pear is its specialty.

THE death of Edward Morrison, a nurseryman of Dansville, N. Y., is reported in this week's obituary column.

THE Glen Saint Mary Nurseries Co., Glen Saint Mary, Fla., publishes a catalogue in Spanish for its trade in Central and South America.

THE residence of Jas. M. Wickizer, the nurseryman of Plymouth, Ind., was recently destroyed by fire. About two years ago his former home, with its contents, was burned to the ground, while the family was away.

PROF. R. S. MACKINTOSH, formerly professor of horticulture in Alabama, has accepted a position in the horticultural department of the Pennsylvania State College. His special work will be an investigation of the peach industry of that state. The horticultural work in Pennsylvania is developing rapidly. At the present time there are ten professors and assistants in the department.

A STATE charter has been granted to the Muskogee Wholesale Nursery Co., of Muskogee, Okla., the organization now conducting the business which was formerly known as the Hyde Park Nursery, but which was disposed of at receiver's sale last July. The new company is capitalized at $25,000, and its officers are as follows: President, E. H. Fleming; vice president, H. P. Schowalter; secretary, C. H. Holland; treasurer, L. E. Bennett. The company has under lease sixty acres of land near Hyde Park. C. L. Stoner, founder of the Hyde Park Nursery, and identified with the nursery business for thirty years, is associated with the present company.

CEMENT FOR TREES.

Can you tell me how to prepare cement for trees? C. A. D.

I have generally used equal parts of sand and Portland cement, but you can, if you so desire, use rather more sand than cement. Equal parts of each will, however, prove the more satisfactory. Any holes or cracks to be filled should first have a thorough scraping out, to remove any decaying matter. In larger holes a quantity of stones can be used. If at the base of the trees, I would first clear away all dead and decaying wood, then give the cleansed part a coating of coal tar, after which you can pack the stones in, cementing among them as you build, and finishing off the front

A BLUE ROSE

It flowered with us this season and was greatly admired.

The New Rambler (Violet Blue), hailed by the German rose growers as the forerunner of a genuinely cornflower blue rose, is a seedling of Crimson Rambler, very vigorous and hardy, and free blooming.

last. When dry, give the whole a dressing of coal tar.

It is important to thoroughly clean out the dead and decaying wood, and if any cracks show in the cement at any time, rub well with tar to keep out the water. C.

REFORM! REFORM.

A card with the above heading has been mailed to all members by the secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen. The text of the card is in part the resolutions of the association published last June in The Review and is as follows:

"At the thirty-fifth annual meeting of this association, held in Denver, Colo., June 8 to 10, 1910, J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O., reported for a committee appointed at the 1909 meeting to consider suggestions contained in a paper read by Mr. Dayton. This committee, composed of Messrs. Dayton, Irving Rouse and Wm. Pitkin, recommended as follows:

That our lowest prices of trade lists should be mailed only to nurserymen or dealers with established headquarters, who are known to be actively engaged in the trade.

That some effort should be made to have our price lists and quotations to orchardists and retail buyers nearer a uniform basis for same grades and varieties of stock.

That as the practice of cutting prices as the season advances is one of the great demoralizers of both the wholesale and retail trade, established rates should be adhered to throughout the season.

That parks, cemeteries, and other public institutions are not in the trade and are not entitled to trade rates.

That stock shipped on orders of landscape architects and invoiced direct to their customers should be billed at same retail rates as if the order came direct from the planter.

"The report was unanimously adopted.

"Chairman Hill said: These recommendations are not simply so much hot air. I regard every one of them as very important, and the observance of them will mean money in your pocket in the end. Post them on your desk as a reminder that you voted for their adoption.

"John Hall, Sec'y."

apples and of the packages, boxes or barrels in which they are put up. The bill has been discussed quite thoroughly and has been vigorously urged at elaborate hearings for the committee. It has been feared by the committee, however, that the effect of pushing it to a passage, should that prove possible, would be to embarrass the producers. Inasmuch as there is no misrepresentation at the present time, but merely a lack of uniformity, it is not deemed wise to interfere.

EFFECT OF GAS ON PRIVET.

Would you kindly let me know what effect gas would have on California privet, when escaping from the pipes about eighteen inches under the surface of the ground and five feet away from the roots of the hedge? J. R. L.

Illuminating gas is extremely injurious to all forms of plant life, and if it is escaping as near your privet plants as five feet away it cannot fail to damage them seriously. Large quantities of these in our cities are annually being slowly killed by escaping sewer and illuminating gas. C. W.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is at the lowest ebb, only an occasional funeral or wedding to relieve the monotony; socially there is practically nothing doing. Asters are in profusion; in fact, the market is glutted and they move slowly. Gladioli are in good supply and quality. Roses are in full crop, more than the trade can consume, and the major part is consigned to the barrel.

Carnations are scarce, but there are a few of the new crop in evidence. Sweet peas are plentiful, but value has depreciated. Some choice fancy colored caladiums are displayed in the show windows. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are in evidence, but are far from the standard.

Various Notes.

The Tonseth Floral Co. is displaying choice cattleyas of unusual beauty.

Sympathy of the trade is extended Garth Barnes on the sudden death of his father, which occurred recently.

J. B. Feustmann, of Pine Free Silk Mills, called on the trade recently.

James Forbes is proud of his lily ponds; he is producing some of the most exquisite shades.

G. S. Crego occupies leisure time with his camera. His photos have been used extensively by the Commercial Club.

With the American Express Co. operating in this territory, the eastern growers are brought several days nearer, therefore guaranteeing better delivery of plants. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business was somewhat quieter last week than it had been for some time. The weather turned slightly warmer and stock of all kinds came into town in large consignments. This must be qualified, however, by stating that roses are not in abundant supply, and those that it is possible to procure are not by any means first-class. In carnations, the shifting of the new stock into the houses is practically over, and, although the flowers sent to the retailers are rather short-stemmed, they seem to fill present requirements. Princess of Wales violets have made their appearance, and if we were blessed with cooler weather they would be stiffer of stem and of darker color. The bunches contain about fifty blossoms and cost the stores $1 per dozen.

Asters are on the wane, but the quality has been excellent during the season and the prices have been low. Mums are not yet in great evidence, but a few days will make a big difference with them, and we can expect a full showing soon. Some early flowered inside stock sells well at from $1 to $2 per dozen. The Japanese lilies have not sold so well during the last ten days as they did formerly, and the public is apparently tired of them. This may be caused, in a measure, by the quantities of poor flowers of this article that have been shipped to town recently.

Gladioli and dahlias move slowly.

VICTORIA, B. C.

Florists' Society Organized.

At a meeting held here recently an association to be known as the B. C. Florists' and Nurserymen's Association was formed, to further the interests of the florists of the province. A local branch was also organized and is to be known as the Vancouver Island Florists' and Nurserymen's Association. At the meeting of the local branch, which was held prior to that of the parent organization, A. J. Woodward, of this city, was elected president of the two divisions of the association, with H. Callow, also of this city, as secretary. H. Tidy, of New Westminster, is secretary of the Mainland branch.

The Vancouver Island Association selected a committee to draw up a constitution for the new organization. A. J. Woodward, A. C. Wilson, of Nanaimo, and L. Russell, of this city, were chosen as delegates to the first B. C. florists' meeting, which was held in Vancouver, August 18, at the exhibition buildings. A delegation was also appointed to interview the government relative to the work of the association.

The formation of this organization is an entirely new movement in this province, British Columbia being the last to form an association of this kind.

ORIENTAL POPPIES.

We wish to grow some oriental poppies for next spring's sales. We have a lot of nice seedlings in a coldframe. Would it be better to pot them and carry them in the coldframe during winter, or can they be lifted in spring? If so, will they bloom next spring?

L. M. B.

Transplant the seedlings four to six inches apart each way and leave in the frame over winter. If they were of sufficient size, they could be planted where they are, to flower about the middle of October, but the better plan with small seedlings will be to wait until spring. Possibly a few of the strongest plants may flower, but the bulk will not do so until the following year. Had your seed been sown in early spring, all the plants would have bloomed the succeeding year.

DETROIT.

The Market.

August was no record breaker, still there was enough business to keep the market pretty well cleaned up. At the present writing stock is none too plentiful, excepting perhaps some asters in poor colors, which do not move.

In white roses, Kaiserin is the best stock, while some fine Marshall Field have helped out in the supply of pink roses.

Asters on the whole are not good. A few especially good flowers are shipped in daily, but are usually sold in advance.

The many people who are fortunate enough to possess summer homes along the lakes and rivers are migrating back into the city, bringing with them, let us hope, a good season's business. Some large decorations for fall openings in the stores have already been placed with florists and more are to be heard from.

Club Meeting.

Herman Knope, foreman at Breitmeyer's Mack avenue greenhouses, was highly complimented upon his manner of entertaining the Detroit Florists' Club Monday evening, August 29. Nothing was left undone to make the meeting one of the most enjoyable ever held.

Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, was present and gave an interesting talk on mums. Many ex-presidents were present at the meeting. Ex-president George Rackham had not attended a meeting of the club for two years. Jokingly he blamed the meetings for his many gray hairs.

The ensuing year promises to be a lively one for the club. The new quarters at 112 Farmer street are the most convenient ever occupied. Magazines, billiard tables, easy chairs, etc., are provided for the comfort of the members.

The following committees were appointed by President Browne:

Auditing, J. F. Sullivan, A. Pochelon, A. Sylvester; program and essays, M. Bloy, Wm. Dilger, J. F. Sullivan, Frank Danser; entertainment, J. K. Stock, Louis Charvat, Robert Rahaley, A. Sylvester, Robert Klagge; exhibits, M. Bloy, Herman Knope, Ed. Beard, Thos. Browne, Albert Stahelin.

Various Notes.

Peter Reuss, of Schroeter's, has left for northern Michigan to take a rest before the opening of the season.

Heacock's Palms Are The Best All-'Round Decorative Plants Your Trade Can Buy

THERE still remain several weeks of "out-door" weather in which your customers will want to keep their verandas and lawns attractively decorated, but the time is not far away when they will want plants to brighten up the inside of the house.

This affords a splendid opportunity for you to sell more Palms —there is no better all-round plant for indoors and out, winter and summer, than a good Palm. Our Palms are grown so that they are really the best you can get. They are profitable for you to handle, assure satisfaction to your trade, and make it easier for you to sell, not only more Palms, but more of other things as well.

Our Palms are clean, well grown, attractive stock; the kind you'll be glad to handle if you're not already carrying them. We've had a busy season, but there is still an excellent stock to select from. Look over the list and let us know your wants NOW.

Select Ferns for Fine Store Trade

WE offer a grand lot of exceptionally well-grown plants of Nephrolepis, which will be found one of the best selling and most profitable plants for florists to handle. Our stock is in unusually fine shape, and we will guarantee that it will please the most exacting. It is exceptionally good value at the prices quoted.

Elegantissima Improved. The finest of this type, never showing a Boston frond; has not reverted in the last four years. Strong plants, 6-in. pots, 50c each; fine specimens, 8-in. pans, $1.00 each; strong young plants, 2 1/4-in. pots for growing on, $10.00 per 100.

Elegantissima compacta. Bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. Dwarf and compact. Especially fine in the small sizes. Extra fine plants, 4-in. pots, 25c each; 6-in. pots, 50c each; strong young plants, 2 1/4-in. pots for growing on, $10.00 per 100.

Superbissima. Introduced by us in 1908. Very distinct and very popular. 4-in. pots, 25c each; large specimens, 8-in. pans, $1.00 each.

Bostoniensis. Good plants, 6-in. pots, 50c each.

HELENA, MONT.

Flower Show.

The first flower show of the Helena Horticultural Society was held in the Auditorium, August 25 and 26, and was pronounced a great success. The Horticultural Society is a ladies' organization, but the ladies were ably assisted by practical florists, such as Victor Siegel, of the Columbia Gardens, at Butte, and representatives of the State Nursery Co., of this city.

On both days of the show the hall was crowded. Entries were numerous, indeed, and if future shows improve as they are naturally expected to do, some fine exhibits are certain.

Besides the grand exhibit of the State Nursery Co., there were some fine specimens of decorative plants and hanging baskets from C. O. Horn, of the Grandon Greenhouses, in this city.

Victor Siegel, of the Columbia Gardens, assisted in judging. The younger florists were greatly pleased to see Mrs. Wells, the pioneer florist of Montana, present. J. W. Mallinson and J. W. Jackson represented the State Nursery Co., although T. E. Mills, the firm's manager, dropped in on both days.

Various Notes.

A severe frost hit this city on the night of August 24 and most of the outside flowers perished. The frost was not so unwelcome, however, as it would have been if it had arrived a day or two sooner, before the last of the flowers had been picked for the flower show.

Peter Miller, of the Helena Floral Co., is making many improvements at his establishment.

The State Nursery Co. is remodeling several of its older houses and is finding it necessary to hurry the work along with all possible speed, now that the first frost has been felt.

The Missoula Nursery Co., of Missoula, Mont., is adding to its glass, and C. F. Dallman is busy superintending the work.

Findlay O.—Miss Lauretta Miller recently opened a flower store here.

FINE FERNS

MIXED FERNS FOR DISHES

We have at all times a good supply of these in good assortment. 2 1/4-in. pots, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Nephrolepis Scholzei (Crested Scott Fern)

A sport from Scottii possessing all the merits of that most popular variety, but with the pinnae subdivided, giving it a neat crested appearance. 2 1/4-in. pots, $1.25 per doz.; $3.00 per 100; $75.00 per 1000; 6-in. pots, 50c each; 8-in. pots, $1.00 each; 10-in. pots, $2.50 each.

Nephrolepis Giatrasii

This variety, introduced last fall in a very limited way, has proven to be a gem—especially where a perfect specimen is required in a small size. It will develop beautifully in a three, four or five inch pot, making an ideal plant for many purposes, where the other varieties of Nephrolepis are too coarse, and it is also fine for fern dish work when grown in 2 1/4-in. pots. $2.00 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

ADVERTISERS

FRANKLIN, PA.

This town recently held its second Old Home week and about 2,000 old residents registered. The words of the Old Home week song, "Home Again in Franklin," were written by W. T. Bell, the father of the present members of the Bell Floral Co. and connected with the firm until two years ago. Among the attractions during the week was a Stroebe airship, driven by Jack Dallas, which made two or three flights each day.

The float of the Bell Floral Co. won second prize in the Industrial day parade. It was decorated in the official colors, red and white, with red and white gladioli, palms, etc.; also doves and red bells. In the float were two of the firm, Edward and John Bell, with the latter's son, C. Ward Bell, all wearing white shirts and trousers and red sashes. On the horse was a net of smilax, with tiny red bells all over it.

The official flower for the week was the red geranium, and nearly all the beds and porch boxes were planted with that flower.

CHILLICOTHE, MO.

Professor R. E. Moss, of this place, has removed to Vinita, Okla., where he is erecting a greenhouse, 27x100. From now on he will be a commercial florist and will leave the "Prof." off.

R. L. Isherwood has just built another house, 27x100. Its walls consist of four feet of concrete and three feet of glass. It will contain electric lights and concrete benches and walks, and will be one of the best built houses of its size in this part of the state. Mr. Isherwood has bought an interest in the Bank of Chillicothe and will be actively connected with it; so Thomas Edds, the man who gives his whole attention to flowers, will run the greenhouses.

WE TAKE THE LEAD!

IN WHAT?

WHAT A FOOLISH QUESTION!

Don't you know, haven't you heard of GODFREY ASCHMANN, the great importer and Philadelphia grower and shipper of this well-known ever-lasting green decorative plant, the Araucaria Excelsa Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca? We began 25 years ago with only 100 plants. Our 1910 importation is—

LOOK! LOOK!! 10,000

and more will be coming this fall, after I make my selection of the choicest on my trip to Belgium, the growing district of the world for ARAUCARIAS, AZALEAS, PALMS, ETC.

WELL INFORMED. It is well known by the trade that for many years past I have gone personally to Belgium to select for our customers the best of Araucarias, Azaleas, Palms, etc. What bargains can be picked up there for cash!

EMPTY HOUSES WON'T PAY.

Now is your time to fill your empty houses with something that will grow into money for you while you sleep. Araucarias will do it. Please look at our special low prices for superior stock.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 12, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 2½ to 3-in., 10c; 4-in., 25c.

Bay Trees, standards, 1-foot tub, 7 ft. high from bottom up, 2x2 ft. crown, $8.00 per pair.

All plants 25 at 100 rate. Cash with order, please. All plants must travel at risk of purchaser only.

ROOTING ARAUCARIA EXCELSA.

How much heat can Araucaria excelsa cuttings stand? E. N.

Cuttings of Araucaria excelsa root best in late fall or winter in a cold greenhouse, where a bottom heat of 60 degrees can be maintained. In such a place they will root in two or three months. They strongly resent strong heat and will be completely ruined if propagated in a close, warm house. Use light, sandy loam or clear sand for the cuttings, always selecting leading shoots. If side branches are taken the plants will be of no value at all, as they make no proper leader and have a bent and inelegant appearance. C. W.

A YELLOW POINSETTIA.

Will you kindly tell me whether there is a yellow poinsettia? I never heard or read of such; still, I am in possession of a limited number of cuttings from a poinsettia whose bracts were yellow instead of red. The stems are green, instead of red tinged, like the regular poinsettias. The plant which furnished the cuttings was near a garage and was trampled to death by automobile attendants. L. C. D.

There is a creamy white poinsettia, named pulcherrima alba. It has little commercial value and is rarely to be met with in America. It is frequently found, however, on private estates in Great Britain. I do not know of any yellow poinsettia, but probably this is the one you have in mind. The bracts are not a clean white, or they would have considerable value to florists. The methods of culture for the so-called white poinsettia and for the scarlet-bracted variety are identical. C. W.

SCALE ON BAY TREES.

I am enclosing some bay leaves, infested with brown scale, as I suppose. The trees came from California. I have tried sulphur and lime, Bordeaux mixture, tobacco water, etc., but they seem to stick just the same. What can I do next? R. R.

One of the best means of destroying the scale is to use kerosene emulsion. This preparation can be purchased from most of the reliable seed stores and should be used according to the directions given on the package, for scale. To keep the plants clean, a weekly syringing with soapy water will suffice. Ribes.

A SAMPLE OF MOSS.

I am sending you under separate cover a sample of moss. Will you please examine it and inform me if it can be used by either nurserymen or florists? If so, about what price per ton would be paid for it, wire baled? Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated. A. C. E.

The moss in question seems to be a mixture of sphagnum and hypnum, and would be useful for packing material. If it averages as good as the sample, it may bring about $2 per 10-barrel bale. I would suggest that you write to some of the dealers in florists' supplies who advertise in The Review. W. H. T.

NAME OF PLANT.

I send you a leaf of a fern. None of the florists here can tell me the name of it or how to propagate it. Will you give me the desired information? C. C.

Is not this plant of climbing habit? The leaf enclosed was much broken in transit, but appears to be from a Tecoma filicifolia, a greenhouse climbing plant, but not a fern. The tecomas may be propagated by cuttings of either stem or roots. W. H. T.

Herkimer, N. Y.—W. D. Snell expects to consolidate his plant at Mohawk with the home place, provided he does not secure an early purchaser for it.

PATCHING A BOILER.

There is a broken section in my boiler and I shall appreciate any advice that you can give me on the matter. The boiler is for steam. It is of the sectional kind and is broken through the flues in the middle. I have used various patent cements without avail. Is there any possible way of repairing it?
 T. M. S.

A good deal will depend upon the nature of the crack, but as a patch at the best is not likely to be very satisfactory, the putting in of a new section will probably be advisable. In some cases it is possible to cover the crack with a patch of steel plate, held in place by means of set screws tapped into the section so as to draw the crack together, or at least prevent further cracking. Before doing this the crack itself should be filled with litharge, and a thin sheet of asbestos or other waterproof packing should be placed under the patch.

WITH THE FUEL MEN.

Discussing the situation of the coal trade, the Continental and Commercial National Bank, Chicago, in its fall book on business conditions, quotes a member of the trade as follows:

"Our business is largely in bituminous coal and the entire year has been an exceptionally bad one for the trade. As winter came on in 1909 a congestion of traffic placed the great handicap upon shipments, and as our business, besides being local, reaches to the west and northwest, even beyond the Missouri river, the congested condition of traffic on the roads reaching into that region was a severe handicap. It often required through the entire winter up to March, 1910, six weeks to get a car of coal from Chicago to the Missouri river points. The railroad companies issued frantic circulars during the summer months to the trade to provide itself with coal while they had the cars and the motive power to handle it. The advice was good, but they

That Burnham and Its Workings.

Many boilers are built a good deal on the tea kettle plan, and use only such heat as comes in direct contact with the surfaces immediately over the fire—the rest of the heat shoots out the chimney in dollar bunches.

The Burnham has the tea kettle and other forms of Cast Iron Greenhouse Boilers "beaten to a stand still." In the first place, the Burnham surfaces directly over the hottest part of the fire are not flat like the kettle, but made in a series of deep waterways with fire channels on each side, making more than three times as much surface for the heat to strike.

Then after leaving the channels, the hot gases pass up the side flue openings and travel back and forth three times between still more waterways that grab practically all the available heat that is left.

Such a boiler squeezes every available bit of heat out of every pound of coal burned. Where is there another such greenhouse boiler? Send for prices.

did not follow it themselves, for during this period which they named congestion they confiscated dozens of our cars destined for western points, when, if they had followed their own advice and provided themselves with coal along their roads while they could get cars and motive power, all this need not have happened to annoy their patrons. "The contracts with the miners in the states of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio expired April 1. After a very short time the differences between the operators and the miners seemed to be adjusted in all the states shipping coal to Chicago excepting West Virginia and Kentucky, where non-union coal is largely produced. The normal annual product of Illinois is approximately 12,000,000 tons. Not a mine has been in operation in Illinois since April 1, and it is conceded that at least 2,000,000 tons have been cut out of the normal supply. Heretofore Chicago has depended largely for its manufacturing industries on the Illinois mines. But the Indiana operators, resuming work after a very short delay, have seemed to fill this gap without trouble, and Ohio has been largely left out, owing to its larger haul and higher rate, until the deficit of at least 2,000,000 tons, which should have come from Illinois mines, has been supplied by other districts and apparently can get on without any Illinois coal—if need be. To us it seems that the prospect is good for a good year's trade, as we know positively that about so many millions of tons of coal will be demanded and will be used, and what is not ordered on Monday will be certainly called for on Saturday."

If there is any grower who did not make his coal contract "Monday" he ought to get busy, for "Saturday" is only a half day.

VIOLET HOUSE AND LEAN-TO.

Will you please tell me how to pipe a lean-to for hot water? It is 14x20, slopes toward the south and is five feet high at the eaves and ten feet at the highest point. Three feet of the exposed wall is siding, the rest glass. I want to grow carnations another year, though this year I shall use it for growing violets, on benches. I want it piped for carnation temperature and I have some 1½-inch pipes which I should like to use if practicable.

The house is against an office, having a cellar under it, in which is the boiler, a Wilks 20x36, used now to heat a violet house, which is 16x40, three feet at the eaves and eight feet at the ridge; it is even-span, with glass in the south side. Do you think this boiler will carry both houses at a violet temperature this winter, in this New York climate? I had trouble to keep the larger house from freezing at times last winter, but thought it was due to insufficient piping. It has four 1½-inch flows on each side, above the beds, with two 2-inch returns leading back to the boiler. Is this enough? E. H.

If the side and both ends of the lean-to are exposed, it would be well to heat it by running five lines of 1½-inch pipe around these three sides of the house, or a part of the piping could be used under the benches. The boiler should be large enough to heat both houses without difficulty, and if everything is properly arranged the eight lines of 1½-inch pipe should be sufficient to keep up a suitable temperature for violets, although one or two extra pipes might be desirable in extremely cold weather.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

NEW YORK BELTING

PACKING CO. LTD
91-93 CHAMBERS ST. NEW YORK

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet.
An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet for the last two weeks, funeral work composing the larger part of the business.

Flowers have been plentiful this season, gladioli, lilies, asters, short-stemmed carnations, Beauties and roses being obtainable on short notice. Smilax has been scarce, but should be plentiful later on, as more is being grown this season than heretofore.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Nelson has returned from a visit to Denver. While there Mrs. Nelson was taken seriously ill, but has recovered.

The Wiegands have sold their old automobile and purchased a 5-passenger car. Anthony Wiegand and George Wiegand are spending a few days in Brown county.

John Rieman has redecorated his store and is ready for the fall rush to begin.

Walter Bertermann and John Bertermann have been on an auto trip to Lake Wawasee.

William Dykes, with A. Jansen, New York, and Mr. Coles, Jr., of Kokomo, Ind., were visitors last week.

Ed Rankin has just completed a new house at his Broad Ripple place.

Fred Hukreide has returned from a visit in the northern part of the state. F. Kassender, formerly with Mr. Hukreide, has taken a place with Herman Schilling, and Charles Niede, formerly with Mr. Schilling, has taken Mr. Kassender's place at Hukreide's.

NEW CUCUMBER DISEASE.

Market gardeners throughout Rhode Island have suffered losses amounting to many thousands of dollars this season through damage to their cucumber crop by a new disease. The crop has been reduced fully seventy-five per cent and unless something can be found to check the disease the cucumber is threatened with extinction in Rhode Island. Melons have been affected as well. One large garden farm in Cranston is said to have lost particularly heavily. The ravages of the pest have become so extensive that plant specialists from the Department of Agriculture at Washington have gone to Providence to study the disease at the request of Dr. H. J. Wheeler, director of the experimental station at the Rhode Island State College at Kingston.

ASPARAGUS AND RHUBARB.

I should like to ask if I could grow asparagus and rhubarb under the benches in a carnation house, and if the hot water pipes would be in the way, running under the benches.

W. R. M.

Asparagus and rhubarb can be grown under carnation benches, but not so satisfactorily as where more heat is at command. The benches with hot water pipes below them would not be suitable for such crops. You could grow both asparagus and rhubarb much better in a dark cellar or shed where a minimum temperature of 60 degrees can be kept up. Rhubarb is better grown in the dark, as the stalks are then of a rich red color. Asparagus is also paler in color and more delicate in flavor when similarly grown. Excellent crops of both vegetables can be had early in the year by making sunken hotbeds, containing twenty-four to thirty inches of warm manure, placing sashes and mats over them to exclude the light. Be sure to allow both vegetables to have one or two good freezings before lifting them, and preserve all the roots possible.

Mushrooms can be quite successfully grown under carnation benches if there are no heating pipes in the way, if an arrangement is made to throw off the drip and if light and air are excluded as far as possible.

C. W.

Biddeford, Me.—Ground has been broken for the new greenhouse which is to be built by the Strout Co. at its plant on Alfred street. It will be devoted to bedding plants this winter and filled with carnations and other choice flowers next summer, and is 30x142 feet.

How to Save Money

No. 4

TAKE advice where it is good. The makers of greenhouse material are designing houses every day for all kinds of stock and purposes and they know what the growers in various parts of the country are doing. Everything new in construction and every advantage in building comes to their notice. You can many times save much money by asking for this advice before building. Your houses may not be operating as economically as they should and you may not get all the stock you should from your benches. Before you put up that new house write us for some information about construction.

Truth is Stronger Than Fiction

The World's Championship

In Florists' Supplies was captured by the Leading Florists' Supply House, at the 26th Annual Convention of the S. A. F. O. H., at Rochester, August 16, 17 and 18, the judges deciding to award an

M. RICE & CO.

HONORABLE MENTION

to OUR exhibit and to

NONE OTHER

We exhibited novelties, feeling sure that the florists of America knew the high quality of the "leading florists' supply house's" staples, which is M. Rice & Co. Our novelties included Spun Glass and Velvet Butterflies, Crepe Paper that is frost and water-proof, Cork Wood and Twig Baskets, real Panama Hats, Bridal Scarfs, Violet Corsage Shields, Prepared Cycas Leaves, and there were many other fine novelties.

To be successful is to be progressive. Be not satisfied with ordinary supplies, use only the best. The judges of the Society of American Florists have placed the stamp of their approval on our exhibit and on no other. An exhibit is simply a sample of the stock. Can we offer you stronger inducements to buy from us? We will only add that every courtesy will be extended to you.

THE FLORAL URN.

The urn of flowers is one of the designs of recognized appropriateness for such an event as the inauguration of a public official, a greeting upon the occasion of the opening of a new business venture, or for presentation to the champion baseball club or a debutante vaudeville team, but it is not often called for as a funeral design. The accompanying illustration shows a floral urn made for funeral purposes by the Krug Floral Co., Alton, Ill. It is noteworthy that in this case the urn itself was not made solid of white carnations or asters, as is commonly the case, but was made of green, with Kaiserin roses and valley loosely arranged. The handles were of smilax, but plumosus sprays were the green used among the flowers. Of course the urn was represented as filled with Beauties, for hardly any other rose will produce the desired effect in so large a piece. Ground of solid white at the bottom of the urn afforded a space for the word "Father" in chenille letters.

CROOKED GLADIOLUS STEMS.

The query of J. J. H., under the head of "Crooked Gladiolus Stems," on page 11 of The Review for September 1, prompts me to offer the opinion that in certain kinds of work the crookedness of the stems may be an advantage rather than an obstacle. For instance, gladioli with crooked stems can be used in vases in such a way that the bunch of flowers appears graceful, which can never be done with the stiff, straight spikes of the standard florists' sorts. I make this suggestion in the hope of bringing out some discussion on the subject.

GLADIOLI AS A WINTER CROP.

Are gladioli profitable for forcing as a separate winter crop? When can they be gotten into bloom? When should they be planted and what are the best varieties?

C. A. S.

Gladioli are a fairly profitable crop for flowering in late winter and spring. The bulbs of the small flowering varieties of the Colvillei and nanus types are procurable in September and should be planted in flats containing four inches of soil. One flat, 4x12x24, will hold fifty to sixty bulbs. The earliest date when any of the small flowered varieties can be satisfactorily and profitably flowered is February. From that date a succession may be had until the end of June. A few suitable small flowering sorts are: Colvillei The Bride and Blushing Bride; in the nanus type, such sorts as Peach Blossom, Numa, Ackermanii, Mathilde, Rose Queen and Pink Perfection.

Bulbs of the large-flowered gladioli do not usually come to hand before December. They can be had in bloom from March until July, or until such time as the outdoor crop comes in season. They succeed well in benches containing five to six inches of soil, and where the night temperature does not exceed 52 degrees. Useful varieties for indoor culture are: America, light lavender pink, the most popular of all; Shake-

After the growths have appeared in spring, give the soil about them a liberal mulch of old manure, leaves or any other material which will prevent the soil from drying out. If you have facilities for watering, they will appreciate a lot of it.

The first season many auratums become diseased. I think this is mainly due to the bulbs being lifted and shipped before being properly matured. Lifting and storing the bulbs will not give you any better results than leaving them in the ground. Plant deeply, mulch liberally, water freely and you will give the bulbs the conditions as near to their liking as possible.

SEEDLINGS DAMP OFF.

Please let me know what makes my Canterbury bells damp off. I sowed seed and, when large enough, I replanted in flats, but found they would damp off in spite of all my care. I give them morning sun and a cool place in the afternoon. Please tell me if the trouble is in the soil or if this warm weather causes it. I wish to force these Canterbury bells and should like to know if I have to pot them along as I would geraniums, or let them go from 3-inch pots to their blooming-size pots.

I also find seedling pansies damping off; that is, their stems seem to rot off.

A. D.

Your Canterbury bells would have done more satisfactorily if they had been transplanted outdoors instead of into flats. They do not require any afternoon shade; the full sun is what they need. Too frequent waterings and sprinklings overhead are probably responsible for the plants damping off. Canterbury bells make their chief growth during September and the first half of October, and it would be better for you even now to set out your remaining young plants in an open, sunny spot, in rich soil. Keep the ground well loosened and they will grow quite fast, particularly if showers happen along about the time you set them out.

Canterbury bells need not be potted along; the better way is to lift from the open ground late in October and pot into whatever pots they are to flower in; as a rule, 8-inch is a suitable size. Keep outdoors as late as possible, then give coldframe protection and allow some frost to reach them. Place in gentle heat after Christmas.

Probably you are also causing the damping of your pansies by the too free use of water. Do not try to keep the seedling beds damp, and do not shade them at all after the seed has germinated. Remove the damped-off plants; loosen the surface soil and let it dry out well after each watering.

CLIVIA MINIATA.

I am enclosing a plant which I should like to know the name of. I also wish to know how it should be grown and whether it is hardy or a hothouse plant.

W. G. B.

This is a greenhouse plant called Clivia miniata, and also known as Imantophyllum miniatum. It does well in a minimum winter temperature of 50 degrees. The heads of orange yellow, lily-like flowers are usually produced in February and March. Propagation is by seed or division of the plants. The latter method is simple. Be careful to keep as many whole roots on the divided portions as possible and keep on the dry side until well established. It is necessary to rather under-water these plants. Any excess of moisture will cause rotting of the stems. In summer they do particularly well stood outdoors under the shade of trees.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Feeding.

The question of feeding is a most important one, if one wishes to grow his plants to the best possible advantage. Liquid fertilizers made from cow or sheep manure are excellent for putting color or finish in the flower. The plants can be assisted greatly by applications of nitrate of soda, nitrate of potash or sulphate of ammonia. My experience with heavy feeding has rendered me very cautious in the use of nitrate of soda, whereas sulphate of ammonia has given the best results. Why this is, I am unable to state. The chemist, I believe, claims that sulphates must be changed into nitrates before the plants can assimilate them, and it may be that the sulphate of ammonia does not work in so direct a manner as does nitrate of soda, but I always think it is the much safer fertilizer of the two.

Many of our best growers, after studying this question of chemical fertilizers, mix their own combinations of chemicals, which experience has taught them may be applied with the greatest benefit to the soil and their local conditions.

The Needed Caution and Persistence.

The great secret in feeding chrysanthemums properly, is to always give them a little and never give them anything very strong, at any one time. A heavy top-dressing of fresh manure is dangerous on this account, as it is liable to get the bed too wet and destroy the tiny root hairs, which are the feeders and convey the nourishment directly to the plant. A light top-dressing of half an inch or so of rotten manure is highly beneficial. It brings the roots up to the surface, where they get the benefit of future feeding. It keeps the bed cool and at the same time affords a certain amount of nourishment to the plants.

It is to the intelligent and persistent use of chemical fertilizers that our best growers owe all their prize winning flowers. It is practically impossible for any man to tell another grower how, when and where to feed his plants. Local conditions vary in almost every case and this is the one test where personal experience is better than all of the literature the grower can lay his hands on, pertaining to this subject.

When the Buds Are Forming.

The month of September is the month when feeding tells, because the bud is taken and the sap is flowering directly into the bud, producing the future flower. Previous feeding has been used up in growing the plant to its present condition and developing its different parts. From now on there is no more growth made and the stems will begin to thicken from the bud back to the soil. Less moisture, also, will be needed with the advent of cooler weather and a practically completed growth. The plants should not by any means be allowed to suffer, but they do not need nearly the moisture they were getting during the hot months of July and August. This is particularly true of overhead spraying. Once a day now, in most cases, is about all the spraying the plants need, and where the crown bud has burst through its husky covering, forming, as it does, a sort of cup, overhead spraying should be discontinued altogether. It is particularly desirable that the leaves be, at this time, free from spider and thrips on the under side, because when syringing is no longer possible it is simply astounding how rapidly these pests develop and do their mischief, in some cases rendering the flower unsalable. The one thing above all others that the grower should be watchful of, is to see that his plants are clean.

The black and green fly must also be eradicated before the buds show color, as one cannot smoke when the flowers are partially developed.

For fumigation there is nothing else so good as tobacco dust, in my estimation. It is perfectly safe and does not injure the young, delicate tips of the plants, which is more than can be said of most of the nicotine solutions that are recommended from time to time.

Window Boxes Recently Placed on a Chicago Business Building.

BEAUTIFY BUSINESS BUILDINGS.

The time was, not so many seasons ago, when the filling of window boxes afforded business only for a few brief weeks in spring. Many florists doubtless still look upon this feature of the trade as confined to a short season, but the fact is that in the larger cities window boxes now are filled all the year around. It seems that it never is too late in summer to fill the boxes with tender or half hardy plants, and after freezing weather comes the boxes are filled with boxwoods or other evergreens, which produce an effect in winter as pleasing as is the display in summer.

The illustrations show two Chicago buildings which were fitted out with window boxes of tender plants late in summer. One of these is the building of the American Radiator Co., the other being the new Blackstone hotel. The average date of first killing frost at Chicago is about October 15, but it is likely the stock will survive until a much later date. In the meantime, the boxes are now at their best, where those planted at the beginning of the summer have ceased in many cases to be objects to delight the eye. The boxes in the windows of the hotel dining rooms were filled with geraniums and ivy by John Mangel, who has the "flower store" in the hotel. The Radiator company's building was supplied by the George Wittbold Co. In both cases the self-watering type of window box was used, made by the Illinois Heater and Manufacturing Co., which showed a display rack of them at the recent Rochester convention of the S. A. F., where they received honorable mention.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

[A paper by G. A. Heyne, of Dubuque, Ia., read at the eighth annual meeting of the Society of Iowa Florists, in Des Moines, August 31, 1910.]

What can the florists of this state do in civic improvement? First, they can grow attractive greenhouse stock for spring planting and sale. This is generally supposed to cover all that the florist need do in the line of civic improvement. Some will add that they are prepared to plant this stock at the request of the interested buyers, and there stops that proceeding. Others will give a season's care in addition, and this brings us to the point: How much more can we do in regard to aiding in civic improvement? Are we making these plantings pleasing and attractive? Do they stimulate in the neighborhood a desire to do likewise? Would it not increase the florist's sales, would it not help the florist, if he made the flower bed or window box of his customer so attractive that the customer's next-door neighbor could not resist the temptation of having some boxes—"filled like them"? This would be aiding in civic improvement.

Dreary Yards and Vacant City Lots.

The florists could also aid those in the desolate districts of the city. Imagine what a change it would make in a certain street of your city if you gave to several of the residents a few plants, which you knew would endure some neglect and give cheer for most of the summer! By giving them to your customers to distribute, you could make up for any strained feeling regarding the recipients' poverty, and your customers would treat you with more respect and regard. Try giving some surplus stock to those willing to help in the distribution.

Now let me suggest to you another way of civic improvement, Mr. Florist. There may be a vacant lot or piece of ground, owned by the city or town. This piece of ground has the distinction of being the dumping ground for the neighborhood. Study your customers from this district and take a few into your confidence regarding the fixing up of this plot of ground. Be sure to consult with the ladies interested; they will give you valuable aid. The men will also give you a lot of advice, ranging from assurances of rosy results to prophecies of dismal failure. Give them all a fair chance. Remember, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Best Materials for the Purpose.

Now, the material that the florist may use for these purposes need not be of the most expensive character. A quantity of vines on an obtrusive fence, say some cobæas and moonvines, would be decidedly more effective than any costly or tender plants. Use vigorous plants, that will give a thick foliated effect, rather than those that give a glory for two weeks and then depth. Give them a mulch of littersy manure or leaves over winter. I like the latter the best. After the growths have appeared in spring, give the soil about them a liberal mulch of old manure, leaves or any other material which will prevent the soil from drying out. If you have facilities for watering, they will appreciate a lot of it.

The florists could also aid those in the desolate districts of the city. Imagine what a change it would make in a certain street of your city if you gave to several of the residents a few plants, which you knew would endure some neglect and give cheer for most of the summer! By giving them to your customers to distribute, you could make up for any strained feeling regarding the recipients' poverty, and your customers would treat you with more respect and regard. Try giving some surplus stock to those willing to help in the distribution.

Now let me suggest to you another way of civic improvement, Mr. Florist. There may be a vacant lot or piece of ground, owned by the city or town. This piece of ground has the distinction of being the dumping ground for the neighborhood. Study your customers from this district and take a few into your confidence regarding the fixing up of this plot of ground. Be sure to consult with the ladies interested; they will give you valuable aid. The men will also give you a lot of advice, ranging from assurances of rosy results to prophecies of dismal failure. Give them all a fair chance. Remember, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Best Materials for the Purpose.

Now, the material that the florist may use for these purposes need not be of the most expensive character. A quantity of vines on an obtrusive fence, say some cobaeas and moonvines, would be decidedly more effective than any costly or tender plants. Use vigorous plants, that will give a thick foliated effect, rather than those that give a glory for two weeks and then have blighted or mildewed foliage for the rest of the season.

Have some of these plants on your own grounds and endeavor to have them thrive to their utmost. Plant a corner as you would have your customers plant it. Cover a fence or make up a specially pretty porch box or vase. This will improve your place and help sell your stock. Plant, in your own grounds and in those of your neighbors, as much of your surplus stock as you think it wise to spare. Every place will be better if decorated with flowers instead of weeds.

Enchantress family, Perfection and Scarlet Nelson Fisher. It is important to add that a temperature of 40 degrees below zero is not uncommon in this part of North Dakota.

W. F. C.

In a milder climate than yours it would be quite practicable to winter carnation plants by covering them with hotbed sash and banking the sides of the frames with manure, but with the temperature at 40 degrees below zero they would hardly come through in good condition. You would find it much safer to propagate a lot of cuttings in early December and grow them along into 3-inch or 4-inch pots by planting time. These would give you good blooms during the summer, and perhaps better results than the others would, even should they live through the winter.

THE GODFREY CALLA.

Is the Godfrey calla that is advertised by some concerns in the middle west a dwarf calla, or are its blooms normal with the regular calla? Is it a regular trade name or one that has just been put on the market?

H. E. D. G.

The Godfrey calla, as I have grown it, is somewhat dwarfer than the ordinary variety. I have also found it rather more free flowering. I believe some western growers have found it to be much more profitable than the old variety. With me the flowers came somewhat smaller, but of a good commercial size. I consider this a good calla to grow.

C. W.

GOOD SORTS FOR A START.

Please name four good carnations in the following colors: Pink, white, scarlet and dark red. I want the darkest red to be had. H. G. S.

If you have not grown carnations previous to this time, as your inquiry would indicate, I would advise you to plant more than one variety of each color. The success attained by different growers with the same varieties is so varied that to recommend any one variety as being the best for you to grow, would be quite foolhardy.

I would advise you to plant quite a large selection of varieties the first year. Then, when you have seen with which you succeed the best, you can select the ones you want to grow. You might select those which I would recommend, and again you might not.

The following varieties are all good sorts, and any one of them might suit you better than all the others in its color: White Perfection, White Enchantress; in flesh color, Enchantress, May Day, May, Pink Delight; in rose-pink, Winona, Rose-pink Enchantress; in cerise, Afterglow, Aristocrat, Victoria; in red, Victory, Beacon; in crimson, Harlowarden, Harry Fenn, Crimson Glow.

FEEDING BENCHED PLANTS.

In building anew this season we built raised benches, placing an inch and a half of fresh cow manure in the bottom of the benches and then filling in with three and one half inches of rotted blue grass sod. The carnation plants were then planted in this, and kept free of weeds and well cultivated. The plants have done exceptionally well, as we are cutting carnation blooms with 15-inch to 16-inch stems. We can obtain both cow manure and sheep manure and we wish to ask which is the best way to treat these plants from now on. About September 10 the plants were enclosed.

C. W.

Cow manure and sheep manure are both excellent fertilizers and produce great results when used properly. For a steady diet there is no other manure so good as cattle manure, but for a quick acting stimulant there is none better than sheep manure. The former is put on as a mulch or as a liquid, while the latter is used as a dressing or a liquid.

Inasmuch as your plants had a good lot of cow manure when you planted them, I would suggest that you give them a good dressing of the sheep manure. Then mulch them with cow manure any time after that, when you think it is advisable. How much sheep manure you should put on will depend on what condition it is in. If it has been leached by the rains and is pretty well rotted, you can put on a half inch of it without any danger to your plants, but if it has been kept under cover, you can not use more than a third of that quantity with safety.

A. F. J. B.

HOLDING OVER STOCK PLANTS.

We have a small lot of late struck carnation plants which we should like to hold over for blooming next summer. Would it be practicable to bench them in a frame outside and winter them by giving protection of glass or litter? Most of the plants have been topped once and are nice, strong, bushy plants, though small. The varieties are: The

STRINGS FOR SWEET PEAS.

What kind of string is used in stringing sweet peas? Will they cling without being tied? How do you prevent the ground from getting green on top? Do they ever damp off? If so, how do you prevent it?

C. G. P.

Ordinary white twine, such as is used in stringing carnations, answers well for stringing sweet peas. Some growers, where the houses are lofty, use soft brown twine. Many carnationists use the same twine. This can be purchased cheaply. The strings are run from a stout wire just above the ground to one as high as the head room of the house allows. This may be six, eight or ten feet. It should not be less than six feet. If your plants have an 8-foot or 10-foot run, it will give added stability to run another wire across the center of the space lengthways, giving the upright strings a twist around it. The peas are in a considerable measure self-supporting, but it is necessary, in order to keep them even and symmetrical, to go over them at least once a week while in active growth and loop them up with the ordinary thin white twine. Run this lengthways and do not draw it too tight.

Given a light, airy house and ideal soil and growing conditions, there should be no trouble from peas damping off. If you endeavor to hold the winter night temperature as near 48 degrees as possible, air them freely on every possible opportunity and have your drainage right, there should be little greening of the soil or damping off. Be sure that you have good drainage for the water and, if the beds get good sunshine, slime should not trouble you. Perhaps the soil is somewhat acid. If so, a dressing of air-slaked lime, lightly raked in, will prove beneficial. It might also be of considerable advantage to lime your soil some time before planting, if on making a soil test it is found to be acid. If green slime does appear, the only cure is to keep the surface loosened. C. W.

SOAKING SWEET PEA SEED.

Do you approve of a twenty-four hours' soaking of winter flowering sweet pea seed before planting, or do you consider chipping the outer shell of any advantage? R. G.

I have not found any benefit from soaking sweet pea seed, either for outdoors or under glass. My experience has been that while the seeds will germinate a trifle earlier, no larger a percentage will grow. Chipping the outer shell, even if advantageous, is too laborious a task to be thought of, especially where large quantities are grown. Soak the seed well after sowing and, in my opinion, the percentage of seedlings will be fully as great as if you soak it twenty-four hours in advance. C. W.

GEORGE GIBBS.

American bulb growing is being tested with more or less success in different parts of the country, and there are several men who deserve the title of pioneers in that line, but perhaps no one will deny that George Gibbs, of Clearbrook, Wash., has the chief claim to the title in the great district known as the Pacific northwest.

Mr. Gibbs was born May 2, 1830, in the county of Gloucester, England, and was from childhood a lover and student of plant life. Early in life he came to America. After many years of farming in the corn belt of Missouri, he sold his property there and moved in October, 1887, with his wife and four daughters, to the western part of Washington state, so that he might study plant life in a mild, moist climate, such as he had known in his native land—a climate distinctly different from that of any other state in the Union.

By an accident January 3, 1888—a fall for a distance of fourteen feet—he received such injuries in his spine and abdomen as made him a cripple for life. What then could he do? It was here that his love for plant life became his leading thought. He examined the gardens in the neighborhood and found that the bulbs of Holland were perfectly at home there and increased with great rapidity. The United States had been importing them by the million for many years. Why not attempt the growing of them for the nation's supply, in the favorable climate of west Washington?

So he bought his first $5 worth in 1891 and got down to work on them. "Got down," he says, is exactly the right phrase, because he could not stand up much, but could kneel down and plant and fertilize and weed them better than he could do almost any other kind of work. He has been wrapped up in this work ever since, with ever increasing success, and has had over half a million bulbs in several different seasons. The selling end of the business, however, has been much neglected, he says, so that he is rich in experience and demonstration work, but poor in purse.

Three years ago he began using the correct Dutch methods of propagating the hyacinth. He scored 200 bulbs the first season and now has 48,000 growing on a small fraction of an acre of land. His two-year-old miniatures measured up to the standard, five and a half inches around, last season, and this season they will prove to be fine, thrifty, solid bulbs.

The Division of Plant Industry at Washington, D. C., sent an expert across the continent four years ago to inspect Mr. Gibbs' work, take photographs of the beds and report his achievements. The citizens of Bellingham, Wash., after seeing the success of his work, made the offer to the Department of Agriculture to furnish ten acres of land and all buildings required for ten years if the Department would take up the matter of public demonstration bulb gardens, to show just how well the bulbs could be grown in that section of west Washington. This season the second display was on view at these gardens and the work was pronounced a splendid success by the thousands of people who beheld it.

Mr. Gibbs estimates that he can grow on an acre of land 9,600,000 one and two-year-old hyacinth bulbs. He plants narcissi at the rate of 325,000 per acre, and tulips at the rate of 250,000 per acre. All narcissi increase fast. He states that all forced bulbs recover in three years and bloom as well as ever in the climate of Washington.

He thinks that he can claim, with modesty, that he has "made good" and has introduced a class of plants that in years to come will be worth many thousands of dollars to west Washington. But his advanced age and his increasing physical infirmity have now almost disabled him and he is looking for some one to succeed him in the enterprise.

George Gibbs.

STOCKS DO NOT FLOWER.

I have a bed of Beauty of Nice stocks, which are nice plants, but they will not bud in the open ground. I had the same trouble last year. The plants are perfect in every other respect. Can you tell me what the trouble is? C. P. M.

Beauty of Nice stocks, if not flowering now, will probably not amount to anything. You cannot dig them out, but you might protect the bed with strips of burlap or cheesecloth on cold nights and get some flowers from them a month hence. Ten weeks' stocks are the best for growing outdoors. You are absolutely certain of their flowering. C. W.

PROPAGATION OF STOCKS.

Please inform me if ten weeks' stocks can be propagated by cuttings. I have been told that it could be done, but have never seen it. A. A. F. & S.

It would be possible, no doubt, to root cuttings of stocks and quite a number of other annuals. There is, however, no advantage in this method of propagation, as cuttings will not by any means equal seedlings in vigor and floriferousness. As seed is purchasable of every shade of color and as it can be depended upon to come eighty per cent double and true to color, from any reliable seed merchant, any other method of propagation is of no practical value. C. W.

STOCKS NOT BLOOMING.

We planted some stocks about June in the open ground, here in southeastern Michigan. They are about twelve to fifteen inches high, but do not bloom. Will they bloom this fall if lifted and put in coldframes? C. K.

Stocks are difficult plants to move, as it is impossible to secure any ball with them. Their roots are not fibrous, like those of asters, which are easily and safely moved. It would certainly not pay to transplant them. However, as stocks withstand quite a little frost, there may still be a chance of your securing some flowers from them. If they are growing fairly close together, it would not be difficult to run some cheesecloth over them, or even to protect them by standing up any sashes that are not in use. C. W.

PRIMULA FOLIAGE DIES.

I enclose a leaf of my primulas. I do not know what is the matter with it, whether it is caused by some insect or from sprinkling the foliage. It seems to me every time the foliage gets wet it has streaks and then dies off. My Rex begonias and some other plants do the same. If I cannot syringe the foliage, how am I to clean them of dust, which we have so much of here? I live in Texas. C. L. S.

The foliage showed no signs of being attacked by any insects. The leaves of the Chinese primulas are singularly free from insects' attacks. The trouble looks like scalding. Primulas, in common with Rex begonias, gloxinias, tuberous-rooted begonias, gesneras, achimenes and tydæas, will scald badly if wetted over under glass and then exposed to the sun's rays. All the plants named must have shade during hot, bright weather; more particularly will this be necessary in your warm state. At this season they will do specially well in coldframes if you keep the sashes tilted up both top and bottom, to allow of a free circulation of air, and, instead of shading the glass, use blinds made of thin laths, rolling these over the glass during bright sunshine. These keep the plants cooler than if white-wash is placed on the glass. Sashes and shades can be removed altogether at night and on dull days. A spraying over twice or thrice on hot days is beneficial. C. W.

rooted cuttings potted off. It is now getting too late to do any further propagating. Plants growing in benches are making considerable growth and some staking will be needed to prevent the growths becoming bent or twisted.

Stevias.

Stevias should be lifted and potted at once if the stock is in the field. Summer culture in pots is preferred, as there is then none of the breakage of shoots that occurs in lifting from the ground. Keep the plants outdoors as late as possible. The least breath of frost will finish them, but anything above freezing is all right. When the plants are housed, they should be in the coolest house on the place. Stevia blooms are not wanted while the mum season is on. It is well to figure on getting a good batch for Christmas. Plants kept cool will flower naturally at that season.

Peonies.

September is the month par excellence for planting peonies. Many parts of the country have suffered from severe droughts, now happily mitigated by fall rains, which put the soil in a much better condition for planting perennial stock of all kinds. Peonies, above all other perennials, love a deeply dug and generous soil. Place them three feet apart in the rows, if they are to remain there three or four years; if longer, allow four feet.

In dividing the clumps do not cut away all the foliage. It is still green and is better left on until it decays. It is a common error to cut away peony foliage too soon. It is a harmful practice. Another injurious habit is to cut the flower stalks down close to the ground in order to get long stems at the blooming period. Have you ever noticed the crippled appearance such plants present the following year? If you have not, mark a few plants, cut some low down and allow the balance to carry about two pairs of leaves each. The contrast between the two lots at blooming time the following year will be so marked that you will never want to sacrifice any more plants for the sake of cutting a few extra long flower stems.

Iris.

The Germanica, Siberica and Kämpferi irises are much better when planted in the fall. It is a mistake to leave this work until spring, as when planting is delayed until then the flowers are of poor quality the first season. German irises should be replanted once in two or three years, to keep them healthy and blooming vigorously. Of course they will grow and flower if undivided for a generation, but in new soil they succeed vastly better.

The Japanese iris, I. Kämpferi, are customarily looked upon as semi-aquatics. It is true they will thrive better if kept flooded while growing and until the blooming season has passed, but after that date, and especially in winter, they must have dry feet or they will rot. The various forms of Iris Siberica do well in either wet or dry ground. I. Siberica Snow Queen naturalizes beautifully on the margins of streams and ponds and is one of the finest of hardy flowers for cutting. All the irises like ground which has been well enriched, and the earlier they are planted the better they will flower next summer.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Freesias.

It is time now to make a successional planting of freesias. The bulbs will start into growth quickly after September and should have full light as soon as the shoots appear above the soil. Purity is proving scarce this season and many growers are obliged to fall back on refracta alba. There is one form of this with flowers as pure as those of Purity and, when well grown, equally large, but the general run of those sold have considerable yellow in the centers.

In planting freesias we find that the long, thin bulbs give far better results than the large, thick, heavy ones usually sold. These long bulbs are easily raised by sowing the small bulblets moderately thickly in flats, not cutting any flowers they carry at all and letting them ripen off gradually on a sunny shelf. Far too many growers, just as soon as the flowers are cut, stand the pots, pans or flats under the benches, where they will get plenty of drip from the benches and be constantly in a soggy condition. If anyone wants to raise his own bulbs, he must give the plants a chance to properly mature their growth.

Lilium Harrisii.

Lilium Harrisii are now well started and the pots nicely filled with roots. A house where they can have 60 to 65 degrees at night is what they need to get them in flower for Christmas. Be careful not to give much water at the root; it is easy to spoil the plants at this early stage of their growth by too much moisture in the soil. Remember that, to be sure of the lilies being on time, the buds should be so that they can be counted by November 10. While the weather is still warm, the solar heat is on the steady decline—quite the opposite from conditions prior to Easter and Memorial day.

Pansies.

Take advantage of cool, moist weather to transplant the seedling pansies. Where a few hundreds only are grown, they can be pricked directly into coldframes, but where many thousands are to be set out, beds three to four feet wide are better used, placing the plants four inches apart each way. Where land is plentiful, they can be transplanted in nursery rows sufficiently far apart to allow of cultivation. Ground that is on a dead level should never be chosen, as water is liable to cover the plants in winter. Given a gentle slope to throw off water, they will usually winter well.

Poinsettias.

Continue to fill pans with poinsettias before the plants become too much rooted in the pots. The 6-inch, 8-inch and 10-inch pans are all used, though the 8-inch is the most generally useful size. In making up the pans it improves their appearance to use some small ferns, asparagus or cyperus among the poinsettias. Grow the plants cool. There is as yet no necessity to run them warm. They need no shade, as this only draws them up and makes them lanky. Careful watering, both now and later in the season, is what these plants require if they are to carry healthy foliage. Keep late-

William F. Bassett.

(President Hammonton Dahlia Growers' Association.)

HAMMONTON DAHLIA GROWERS.

- A dahlia true to name.
- A dahlia of vigorous growth.
- A dahlia with perfect flowers.

These are the watchwords of the Dahlia Growers' Association of Hammonton, N. J. The association aims to place the Hammonton dahlia in a class by itself. The idea is that when dahlia flowers or dahlia roots bear the Hammonton label the purchaser will know that he is getting the finest in the market.

Saturday, September 10, was a gala day among the Hammonton growers. Just a fortnight after the organization of their association the six firms and individual growers met to compare notes and visit each other's farms. They were William F. Bassett, J. Murray Bassett, Hugo Kind, Watkis & Nicholson, Edward H. White and Wood & Healy.

Hammonton is a progressive town, with the dahlia farms chiefly on the outskirts, so it was arranged that most of the party meet at William F. Bassett's and drive to the farms. Those not in the party were met at their own places. The seat of honor in the carriage was given to the president, William F. Bassett, now in his eighty-sixth year. With him were his sons, George W. Bassett and J. Murray Bassett; Hugo Kind, Arthur A. Niessen and Edward H. White.

William F. Bassett, who has just retired from the management of his Bellevue Nurseries in favor of his son, George W. Bassett, has a splendid selection of dahlias, including many hundreds of varieties. Great confidence is felt in the beautiful, long-stemmed variety known as Dreer's White, a splendidly built white flower, of great substance, pure white in color. The pink variety, Delice, is highly prized as a cut flower. Jeanne Charmet has all the requisites of a cut flower, save one; the keeping qualities have not yet been proven. It is a beautiful shade of lavender pink, an exquisitely formed flower, borne on long, stiff stems. G. W. Bassett is hopeful that this variety will prove its keeping qualities. Susan is the name given a lovely soft pink (perhaps blush pink will describe it better), said to improve under artificial light.

J. Murray Bassett has three dahlia farms. The principal one is this season's purchase of ten acres, where most of his dahlias now are grown. Mr. Bassett's specialty is single dahlias, of which he grows a larger number than any other Hammonton grower. He has an acre in all of the single varieties, among them standard sorts and some attractive novelties. Mr. Bassett has an immense peony-flowered crimson dahlia that is fragrant, which he intends using for seed purposes. The new 10-acre farm contains seven acres of dahlias. The principal cut flower varieties include Jack Rose, Yellow Duke and Sylvia. These three may be seen in the accompanying illustration, from a recent photograph.

Hugo Kind has 50,000 dahlia plants. His specialty is in disbudding for long-stemmed cut flowers. He grows a limited number of varieties in quantity and grows them well. His flowers of the old variety, A. D. Livoni, have attracted favorable comment.

Watkis & Nicholson grow about a dozen of the standard varieties for cut flowers and a large number of the best sorts for roots in, of course, much smaller quantities. Among their varieties for cutting the old standby, Mrs. C. W. Bruton, was the most conspicuous yellow; when well done this variety is hard to beat. Carnations are also grown and, unlike most of the other dahlia growers, this firm has greenhouses, presumably for the divine flower. A beautiful lake, a mile and a quarter in length, with handsome trees on the banks, gives a charming touch to the place. There were boats on the lake and at the moment the visitors reached the bank a fisherman captured what Mr. Watkis asserted was a 3-pound bass. Happy growers, with business and recreation so delightful!

Edward H. White is the youngest of the Hammonton sextette, in point of time in business. Mr. White is a peach grower who took up dahlias a couple of years ago. He has two and a half acres planted in dahlias, including eight of the best cut flower varieties.

C. A. Wood.

(Vice-president Hammonton Dahlia Growers' Association.)

When describing his varieties Mr. White spoke of Lyndhurst, the standard red for color, as his flame, and agreed with J. M. Bassett that Kriemhilde when well done is one of the greatest cut flower dahlias of today.

Wood & Healy have two splendid fields of dahlias and a peach orchard of wonderful productiveness. Storm

President Hammonton Dahlia Growers' Association.)

HAMMONTON DAHLIA GROWERS.

- A dahlia true to name.
- A dahlia of vigorous growth.
- A dahlia with perfect flowers.

These are the watchwords of the Dahlia Growers' Association of Hammonton, N. J. The association aims to place the Hammonton dahlia in a class by itself. The idea is that when dahlia flowers or dahlia roots bear the Hammonton label the purchaser will know that he is getting the finest in the market.

Saturday, September 10, was a gala day among the Hammonton growers. Just a fortnight after the organization of their association the six firms and individual growers met to compare notes and visit each other's farms. They were William F. Bassett, J. Murray Bassett, Hugo Kind, Watkis & Nicholson, Edward H. White and Wood & Healy.

Hammonton is a progressive town, with the dahlia farms chiefly on the outskirts, so it was arranged that most of the party meet at William F. Bassett's and drive to the farms. Those not in the party were met at their own places. The seat of honor in the carriage was given to the president, William F. Bassett, now in his eighty-sixth year. With him were his sons, George W. Bassett and J. Murray Bassett; Hugo Kind, Arthur A. Niessen and Edward H. White.

William F. Bassett, who has just retired from the management of his Bellevue Nurseries in favor of his son, George W. Bassett, has a splendid selection of dahlias, including many hundreds of varieties. Great confidence is felt in the beautiful, long-stemmed variety known as Dreer's White, a splendidly built white flower, of great substance, pure white in color. The pink variety, Delice, is highly prized as a cut flower. Jeanne Charmet has all the requisites of a cut flower, save one; the keeping qualities have not yet been proven. It is a beautiful shade of lavender pink, an exquisitely formed flower, borne on long, stiff stems. G. W. Bassett is hopeful that this variety will prove its keeping qualities. Susan is the name given a lovely soft pink (perhaps blush pink will describe it better), said to improve under artificial light.

J. Murray Bassett has three dahlia farms. The principal one is this season's purchase of ten acres, where most of his dahlias now are grown. Mr. Bassett's specialty is single dahlias, of which he grows a larger number than any other Hammonton grower. He has an acre in all of the single varieties, among them standard sorts and some attractive novelties. Mr. Bassett has an immense peony-flowered crimson dahlia that is fragrant, which he intends using for seed purposes. The new 10-acre farm contains seven acres of dahlias. The principal cut flower varieties include Jack Rose, Yellow Duke and Sylvia. These three may be seen in the accompanying illustration from a recent photograph.

Hugo Kind has 50,000 dahlia plants. His specialty is in disbudding for long stemmed cut flowers. He grows a limited number of varieties in quantity and grows them well. His flowers of the old variety, A. D. Livoni, have attracted favorable comment.

Watkis & Nicholson grow about a dozen of the standard varieties for cut flowers and a large number of the best sorts for roots in, of course, much smaller quantities. Among their varieties for cutting the old standby, Mrs. C. W. Bruton, was the most conspicuous yellow; when well done this variety is hard to beat. Carnations are also grown and, unlike most of the other dahlia growers, this firm has greenhouses, presumably for the divine flower. A beautiful lake, a mile and a quarter in length, with handsome trees on the banks, gives a charming touch to the place. There were boats on the lake and at the moment the visitors reached the bank a fisherman captured what Mr. Watkis asserted was a 3-pound bass. Happy growers, with business and recreation so delightful!

Edward H. White is the youngest of the Hammonton sextette, in point of time in business. Mr. White is a peach grower who took up dahlias a couple of years ago. He has two and a half acres planted in dahlias, including eight of the best cut flower varieties

C. A. Wood.

(Vice-president Hammonton Dahlia Growers' Association.)

When describing his varieties Mr. White spoke of Lyndhurst, the standard red for color, as his flame, and agreed with J. M. Bassett that Kriemhilde when well done is one of the greatest cut flower dahlias of today.

Wood & Healy have two splendid fields of dahlias and a peach orchard of wonderful productiveness. Storn

New Ten Acre Dahlia Farm of J. Murray Bassett, Hammonton, N. J.

King, one of their best varieties, is now bearing largely. Katherine Duer is not yet in bloom, but promises well. The reds are a feature of the second field. C. A. Wood is one of the old-time growers. He loves his work dearly and his place shows it.

All the farms were clean and the stock healthy. The enthusiasm of the growers clearly said that no stone would be left unturned to improve the varieties and maintain the standard of the dahlia at Hammonton.

The Market.

Conditions have changed but little from a week ago. The summer dullness has not yet given place to fall activity. Prices show little change, but on the whole business is fully as good as can be expected at this season and quite a lot of flowers are being moved, in fact considerably more than a year ago. Roses are becoming more abundant. They are not yet of particularly good quality and many of the short-stemmed ones are only cleared at low prices. Killarneys retain their popularity. Some good Carnot, Maryland and Kaiserin are also seen. Carnations are now arriving from more growers, but only in limited quantities as yet, while stems are quite short.

Lilies are in fairly good demand. L. longiflorum is now mostly seen, auratum and speciosum being scarce. Asters are abundant and of grand quality. Prices are somewhat lower on these. Rains of last week spoiled a good many flowers. American Branching is unusually fine, some having 24-inch stems. Gladioli are getting scarcer and good spikes of the favorite colors are bringing fairly good prices. The scarcity in orchids shows signs of relief now, with the arrival of the first labiata. Gardenias are not in much request. Valley sells moderately well. Cut hydrangeas, tuberose, single sunflowers, cosmos, physostegia and a variety of other outdoor flowers are seen. The demand for green stock remains about the same. Pot plant trade is starting up nicely.

Various Notes.

The Halifax Gardens Co., of Halifax, Mass., are among the new stall holders at the Boston Flower Exchange, having purchased two stalls. Until the present season cucumbers, tomatoes and lettuce were chiefly grown, but the manager, W. E. Lenk, has now 50,000 carnations planted as a starter in floriculture.

Letters received from Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, who is now in Europe, show that he has done London and Paris and is now busy on the continent visiting other places of horticultural interest.

Among the new stall holders at the Boston Coöperative Flower Market are Arthur Griffin and John F. Flood, of Woburn, and James Wheeler, of Natick. At the Boston Flower Exchange, A. Roper, of Tewksbury, has taken two stalls. Louis Smith, of Tewksbury, and A. M. Davenport, of Watertown, are also new accessions.

Miss Eunice Belcher has opened a new flower store in Winthrop Center. Her brother for some time has operated greenhouses there, but has never had a store. Miss Belcher is well known and is doing an excellent business.

N. M. Silverman, at his always interesting Winter street store, had last week some excellent pans of achimenes and fine Mme. Bergmann chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Elliott moved September 9 from Madbury, N. H., to their fine new Brighton home. The roses both at Madbury and Brighton are looking exceptionally well. Mr. Elliott finds that fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas of sufficient strength to kill rose plants has no effect on the destructive leaf roller, which has caused him a lot of trouble at Madbury.

Among growers who are sending in nice carnations of the new season's crop to the Boston Flower Exchange are W. D. Howard, of Milford; Leonard Cousins, of Concord Junction; A. Christensen, of Stoneham; S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, and James Tulis, of South Sudbury.

At Thomas Galvin's Tremont street store last week one window contained some beautiful vases of gladioli. In another window crotons, Aralia Veitchii, pandanus, ferns in variety and Asparagus plumosus were tastefully arranged.

Quite a number of our local growers have, during the last few days, been visitors at the big aviation meeting at Atlantic, where daily attendances of 50,000 to 75,000 have been the rule. If only some such attraction as Grahame-White could be secured for the coming national show its financial success would be a foregone conclusion.

J. Newman & Sons, at their Tremont street store, have been quite busy with funeral work lately. They have had excellent summer business. In their windows various foliage plants in small fancy dishes, such as crotons, Cocos Weddelliana, asparagus, etc., are being made a feature at present.

J. F. Flood, who recently purchased the David Fisher estate in Woburn, has his carnations all housed and is picking a nice lot of flowers. Asparagus Sprengeri and adiantum are being made specialties.

Remember the club meeting September 20. Vacation experiences will be given by a number of members and there will be much other business of interest.

B. P. Winch is sending in some good Golden Glow chrysanthemums, which are handled by J. S. Manter at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Fall trade is beginning to start up nicely with Welch Bros., and they anticipate an excellent season. They are receiving excellent Beauty and Killarney roses, valley, carnations, chrysanthemums, gardenias and cattleyas.

Birch trees in every part of Massachusetts have been skeletonized by a small green worm. The trees have the appearance of being scorched by fire. We had a similar attack about ten years ago, but since that time have been practically immune from the pest.

H. R. Comley, on Park street, has made excellent use of Clematis paniculata of late in his window decorations. We noted good achimenes, Bouvardia Humboldtii and Cattleya Harrisoniae among other flowers.

William F. Aylward is at present handling some excellent Christmas peppers from H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, have at present fine lots of tuberose, Hydrangea paniculata, Lilium longiflorum and dahlias at their stands in the Boston Flower Exchange.

Wheeler & Co., of Waban, the orchid specialists, have a grand lot of Cattleya labiata, bristling with sheaths, from which they will cut thousands weekly in a short time.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has 2,000 poinsettias in 6-inch pots which promise to be ideal plants for Christmas. He is growing some of the double variety, plenissima, which he likes very much, but which is less easy of propagation than the common pulcherrima.

Robert Montgomery has been spending his vacation at his summer cottage in Maine, and is much improved thereby.

A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., was a visitor last week. Edward J. Rogean is salesman for Mr. Pierson at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Recent soaking rains did considerable damage to the aster crop, white flowers suffering the most. Vegetation has, however, been wonderfully revived. Light frosts were reported from several places on the mornings of September 11 and 12.

J. H. Leach & Son, of North Easton, have an extra fine lot of carnations this season, including the most up-to-date varieties. They are growing less asters this season than a year ago. The black beetle proved destructive, but they have an excellent lot of gladioli.

At W. W. Edgar & Co.'s, stock is looking first class at present. They have grand lots of poinsettias, Lorraines, azaleas, metrosideros, small ferns, hydrangeas, genistas and other serviceable stock.

New England's greatest fair opens at Brockton October 4. More money is this year given for cut flowers. For vase of fifty roses, $15, $10 and $5 is offered. There are also new classes for vases of twenty-five blooms of each type of dahlia shown with long stems, which should prove a pleasing change from the flat stereotyped style of exhibiting usually in evidence.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. are rapidly filling their large new store rooms with seasonable goods. They are receiving quantities of splendid new crop hardy ferns and the cut flower demand is bracing up.

N. F. McCarthy's auction sales started up again September 13 and will continue for some weeks.

W. N. Craig.

TO RIPEN SPRENGERI SEED.

Would you kindly tell us how to ripen Asparagus Sprengeri seed? We have had a piece of a bench in Sprengeri for the last year, and during the summer months it produced strong sprays, which we have allowed to go to seed. The sprays bear heavy clusters of the seed and ramble all over the bed, but the seeds do not ripen, or if they do, they fall off unnoticed. Should the sprays be cut with the green berries on them and dried, or should they be hung up, letting the sun do the rest? How should the watering be conducted at this period of their growth? H. J. P.

The seeds of Asparagus Sprengeri would ripen more readily and more evenly if the sprays were supported so that the sun and air could reach them. It would be an easy matter to run a few wires and strings to which the sprays could be tied, and time would be saved in the period of ripening. Water the plants somewhat less, in order to encourage the ripening of the seeds, but do not keep the ground dust-dry. The seeds may be picked as soon as they turn color. W. H. T.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business now seems steadier and before long it will undoubtedly take on the regular aspect of the busy season. Owing to the recent cool nights, the condition of the blooms seems better. There is still more than enough stock in the market. Roses are now coming in more heavily and have longer stems than during midsummer. The Beauties still lead in quality, but the others are not far behind. Large numbers of Brides, Maids and Killarneys, in addition to the other roses, arrive daily.

Large consignments of asters still come in, especially some choice ones from New York state. Gladioli are becoming inferior in both bloom and stem and soon will be a thing of the past. Easter lilies can be had. Cosmos and dahlias for fall flowers are now strong in numbers.

Carnations are offered daily. Judging from reports from the growers, there will be many large cuts of good quality in the market in a short time.

Club Meeting.

A meeting of the Florists' Society was held at Frank Volz's home, in Cheviot. Ray Murphy, Albert Sunderbruch and Charles H. Hoffmeister were appointed to serve on a committee to arrange for a place for the bowling club to meet and bowl throughout the winter.

New Orleans was endorsed for the world's fair and Panama exposition in 1915. The secretary was instructed to send letters to the congressmen from this vicinity notifying them of the club's choice and asking them to use their votes and influence to favor the Gulf City.

It was decided that a paper on some subject of general interest, followed by discussion, should be read at each meeting. A question box will also be had.

After the business was over, the members sat down to a repast, served in the open air. Then all adjourned to the parlor, where they were entertained with vocal and instrumental selections by Frank and Miss Clara Volz. Mr. Volz proved a royal host.

Frank Volz's greenhouses are stocked with chrysanthemums and carnations. In one was a lot of elegant Boston ferns. He also grows callas and bedding stock. In addition to these, he and his father have eight large ponds and about thirty small ones stocked with goldfish.

Various Notes.

On Wednesday, September 14, a Tower of Fruits and Flowers.

floral auto parade was held under the auspices of the Sons of Osiris.

A visit to J. A. Peterson's showed his plant to be in tiptop shape. Begonias are his long suit. Among the varieties he has are Glory of Cincinnati, Taft, Agatha, Lorraine and Ensign. He has also large lots of Dracæna Victoria, terminalis and Mandiana, Pandanus Veitchii, Nephrolepis Harrisii, Phoenix Roebelenii and cyclamens.

C. E. Critchell is now receiving carnations regularly; also fine asters from New York.

E. G. Gillett's wire department is kept busy keeping up with orders from those who are stocking up for fall and winter.

P. J. Olinger is having George Zunkle, with the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Car Co., superintend the construction of an iron stack 100 feet high, at the greenhouses.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Critchell, C. E. Critchell, Jr., Gus Adrian and Max Rudolph have returned from up north.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gardner and son came down from New Castle last Sunday. Mr. Gardner returned in the evening, while Mrs. Gardner and William H., Jr., will spend a fortnight in this city with her relatives.

William Gear and Frank Huntsman are now with William Murphy at The Snows.

John Lodder has been in town during the last fortnight, doing the exposition.

Mr. Winters, of Charleston, W. Va., was a recent visitor. C. H. H.

VOLKSFEST DISPLAYS.

One of the big events on Long Island in the autumn is the Schwaben Sangerbund Volksfest, where floriculture plays a considerable part and where the seed trade gets in touch with thousands of market growers in the Long Island territory. Middle Village, where there are so many florists, always takes a conspicuous part and August F. Schraeder, florist, of Elmhurst, has been superintendent of the festival every year for the last fifteen years.

This year the event took place at the new Coliseum park, at Ridgewood, L. I. There was the usual column of fruit and flowers. This has been built for many years by Fred Marquardt, of Middle Village, and it is said the cost runs close to $500. In the accompanying illustration Mr. Marquardt and his son are shown standing at the left of their tower.

Another feature of the exhibition which attracted much attention during the entire week, September 3 to 10, was the miniature garden constructed by John Draier, of Middle Village. It covered 1,000 square feet of space, and for his handiwork Mr. Draier was awarded a special premium of $75. Retail florists will see in the picture a suggestion for a window display of large possibilities. In a window decoration it would easily be possible to introduce enough movement to hold a crowd all day long. The water, the train and the windmill could be made to run, and other features could be added.

ST. LOUIS.The Market.

Trade has begun to show some improvement, but the return of the warm weather will not help it any. The retailers seem to have had a fairly busy week, with quite a lot of large pieces in funeral work. The opening of the downtown theaters also helped business. The florists in the downtown district say that transient trade, too, has been fairly good.

Cut stock at the wholesale houses shows great improvement in quality. Roses are quite plentiful and some splendid stock in Richmond, Killarney, White Killarney and Bride is seen. The best of these sell well. Beauties are also in good demand. Carnations are becoming larger in flower and better in stem; those of good color sell clean daily.

Tuberose and gladioli are still plentiful everywhere. In asters, too, there are many more than can be sold. All greens are selling well, especially fancy ferns and asparagus.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, September 8, on the grounds of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., at Nursery, Mo. It was a most enthusiastic meeting and was well attended. The majority of the members, with their ladies, met at the south end of the Cherokee car line, where large wagons were in waiting to take them to the grounds. On arriving they were met by their fellow members, Frank A. Weber and H. J. Weber, and other members of the firm. The ladies were taken care of by Mrs. H. J. Weber and were entertained on the lawn in front of their home.

Before the meeting opened the members were taken in hand and shown through the well kept nursery plant. The big greenhouses, in charge of Walter Weber, are in splendid shape. The carnations and roses are in fine condition and a great crop is expected from them.

After the inspection tour, the meeting was opened in the big packing house, which was turned into a most convenient meeting room.

President Windler opened the meeting, with all his staff of officers present. F. J. Fillmore and R. J. Windler were appointed to take charge of the installation of officers, and the following were duly installed: John M. Cannon, president; Frank A. Weber, vice-president; J. J. Beneke, secretary; Wm. C. Smith, treasurer; E. W. Guy, a three-year term trustee.

The trustees made their final report of the picnic and received a vote of thanks for the able manner in which they handled it. The bulletin committee reported that the third issue would be out September 13 and that its success was assured. The treasurer's report showed a healthy balance to the club's credit.

The question box brought the meeting to a close. After adjournment the members were invited to have lunch and refreshments. After this, Joe Hauser and "Billy" Smith gave an exhibition as oarsmen, on the big lake.

The following ladies were in attendance: Mesdames F. C. Weber, H. J. Weber, Walter Weber, Windler, Connon, Fillmore, Juengel, Gross, Arthur Klockenkemper and Schoenle.

Various Notes.

Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week and left much pleased with his visit.

Henry Ostertag, of Ostertag Bros., has returned home from a trip to New York and Philadelphia. He bought a big lot of decorative plants and a number of large bay trees, to be used for fall decorations for which they have contracts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ellison, of the Ellison Floral Co., have been away for a week on a cruise up the Mississippi river. Harry Ellison was in charge while they were away.

Ed Kalisch is back from his summer trip. The firm of Kalisch Bros. will supply the local trade with orchid blooms this season and have orders ahead for many blooms. Their place on Delmar and Taylor streets is in excellent shape for the winter trade.

Col. Niemeyer and J. W. Edwards, of Kirkwood, spent a day together last week visiting friends in the trade. The colonel is one of the heavyweights among the Kirkwood florists.

C. Young & Sons Co. furnished the city park department with 20,000 tulips recently. Their fall catalogue is a handsome one. On the back of the book is a picture of their 4-story retail store on Olive street.

The store known as the Easton Florist has been closed and the fixtures have been bought by Mrs. Waltman, on Easton and Taylor streets. The Grand Avenue Florist, at St. Louis and Grand, has also discontinued business.

Misses Mundt and Eckles, of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., attended the club meeting and distributed handsome souvenirs in the shape of 2-foot rules.

The Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting September 12, in the Knights of Columbus hall.

The executive committee of the Horticultural Society met September 13 to transact business pertaining to the coming fall flower show.

The Ladies' Home Circle could not hold its outing September 8, owing to the bad condition of the grounds. The postponed meeting and outing take place September 15 at Ramona.

Mrs. John Steidle, president of the Ladies' Home Circle, is reported sick at the Deaconess hospital, but is now on the road to recovery.

All four of the wholesale houses are now in shape for the fall and winter trade. At Kuehn's, the boss, with George Schriefer and Mr. Meyer, will look after the cut flower and supply department and William Mitthoefer will take charge of the wire department. At Berning's, Henry Berning, with Otto Bruening and assistants, will look after the cut flower and supply department, with Miss Bruening as bookkeeper. At Smith's, W. C. Smith, William Ossick and Frank Windler will look after the cut flower and supply department, and Oscar Kuehn will be head of the wire shop. At Angermueller's, George himself and his assistants, Fred Alves and Albert Gumz, will attend to the running of his place. All have made extensive improvements and are in shape to handle all the trade that comes their way. J. J. B.

PITTSBURG.The Market.

Trade seems to have just a little more life in it than a week ago, but will not be right until the weather is cold enough to send the flower buyers back into the city.

There are quantities of poor asters on the market which bring little, some scarcely more than express charges, but good stock has shortened up.

Carnations are becoming more plentiful every day, but the stems are still quite short. Beauties, roses and lilies are in fair supply and good.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club met Tuesday evening, September 6, with about forty members present. Dr. Schaffer's gardener showed some good cattleya plants in bloom.

Neil McCallum, of the West End park, had hardy annuals, perennials and hardy flowers.

Henry A. Dreer sent a box of phlox, but owing to the hot weather many of the blooms were lost; however, there were enough left to convince those who handled them that they were the right varieties, as there were some unusually striking colors among the lot.

The club has the most desirable meeting room in the city, and the surroundings are good, but for some reason we are not getting the fine shows of former years and some of the members say it is not convenient to get their stock in and out and would like to change, but as desirable locations are hard to get, it is not likely that the club will give up a good thing in a hurry.

There were favorable reports from those who attended the S. A. F. convention and an extended talk from E. C. Reineman, who has just returned from an extended trip abroad.

Various Notes.

Henry Klunder, manager of Randolph & McClements' Penn avenue store, has the sympathy of his many friends in the loss of his son Frederick, who died suddenly September 9. The remains were taken to Chicago for interment.

Mrs. E. A. Williams had the first large wedding of any importance last week, and she has a number of other good ones booked for a little later in the season.

Randolph & McClements had the decoration for the banquet given Col. Roosevelt in the English room at the Fort Pitt hotel Saturday night, September 10.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. are building a conservatory in the rear of their store and will open for business October 1.

Schenley park has a house of 700 chrysanthemums in pots, ranging from four feet to six feet high, and as yet they have not found a single leaf missing from the top to the bottom of the plants, which are in fine condition. When it comes to growing pot plants, they certainly know how.

George W. Cohen, representing Wertheimer Bros., of New York city, was a recent visitor here. Hoo-Hoo.

Elizabeth, N. J.—T. A. Sperry is erecting a conservatory, 88x108 feet, on Casino avenue, at a cost of $20,000.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business for the first half of September has been pretty lively. Besides the usual demand for funeral and wedding flowers, the call has been good for plants for the home.

Mount Clemens growers are shipping good supplies of seasonable stock. Some good Beauties are meeting with ready sale. Carnations are coming along nicely; the quality of the flowers makes up for what is lacking in length of stem. Asters are of good quality and selling readily. Some choice gladioli arrived last week. A few yellow mums are being shipped in and are usually sold in advance.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith, of Peter Smith & Sons, who several years ago put up a range of glass just east of Walkerville, Ont., has given up the florists' business.

On or about September 1 Theo. Mitchell, of this city, became a benedict. Mr. Mitchell was an interested listener at the club meeting August 29, but said never a word about his approaching wedding, the news coming as a complete surprise when some of his friends received a postal from Atlantic City announcing the marriage.

Our friend, the Hon. Philip Breitmeyer, was defeated for the nomination for mayor, and while he, no doubt, was somewhat disappointed, still all his friends in the trade are glad to have him back in the ranks again. While acting as mayor Mr. Breitmeyer had little time to give to the meetings of the Florists' Club, and we surely missed him.

Fall openings are in order in Detroit, and B. Schroeter, who has made this work a specialty, is rushed with work. This firm has a fine lot of ferns and they are selling like hot waffles.

The Bomb Floral Co. has been doing considerable table decorating in the beautiful new convention hall of the Ponchartrain hotel, one of the most notable being that for the banquet given to the representatives of the Ford Motor Co., assembled here from all parts of the globe.

The next meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club will be held in the old meeting place in the Cowie building, Monday evening, September 19. Thereafter the meetings will be held at 112 Farmer street. We should see more of Mr. Fetters at these meetings, as the new meeting hall is just next door to his store.

Among recent visitors was Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., of New York city.

H. S.

LENOX, MASS.

The monthly meeting of the Lenox Horticultural Society was held in the town hall September 3, when the members were treated to a great display of dahlias, staged by A. H. Wingett, superintendent for Charles Lanier. Three types, cactus, show and pompon, were represented in thirty-six varieties. The best of these were: W. W. Rawson, Sylvia, Annie Boylin, Chas. Lanier, Geisha, Romeo, Queen Wilhelmina, Queen Emma, Catherine Duer, Countess of Lonsdale, Earl of Pembroke, Duchess of Cambridge, Acquisition, Ella Kramer, Bertha Von Sutton, Mrs. Wirth, Aug. Nonin, John Walker and Empress of Austria. A diploma of commendation was awarded Mr. Wingett. The same gentleman also exhibited a giant melon, Viaux's Perfection, twenty-four pounds in weight, for which he was awarded a first-class certificate. This is the first year Mr. Wingett has attempted to grow Perfection, rightly named for its all-around qualities. One of them from the same bed weighed over thirty-one pounds. George H. Instone, his foreman, deserves a fair share of praise in growing them so successfully.

Mr. Jenkins, one of the Bar Harbor judges, reported on his visit there. He spoke highly of the show, and of how well the Bar Harbor gardeners had treated him.

George Foulsham had on view the silver cup presented by W. B. O. Field for the best collection of twelve varieties of vegetables at the fall show. It is to be known as the President's cup, to be won twice before it can be lifted.

Things are beginning to hum around here now. It's no use coming here unless you can discuss fall show topics; all roads lead to the show.

At the previous meeting four new members were enrolled. They are S. Foulsham, O. Whittemore, L. Nichollas and L. McGregor.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

Columbus, O.—The John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, has secured the contract for the construction of the greenhouses at the Ohio State School for the Blind.

Kennebunk, Me.—J. O. Elwell has been making repairs at his greenhouses on Brown street, including the building of a cement wall under one of the boiler houses.

Milford, Ia.—H. N. Antisdell, of the Milford Nursery Co., recently purchased the greenhouses at Spirit Lake, Ia., and has removed them, to be rebuilt on his property here.

St. Albans, Vt.—The business formerly managed by Henry Bryant has been transferred to George Cooke, who will conduct it in connection with his business on South Main street.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Wm. H. Evans, president of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., is planning to spend the coming winter with his wife in Tucson, Ariz. He is figuring on making the trip from El Paso to Tucson by automobile.

Skaneateles, N. Y.—J. G. White is adding a house 35x75, with concrete walls. He is more than ever in favor of this system, as, following a severe wind storm while in course of erection, the framework was forced fully three feet out of plumb, and had it been a wooden wall he questions whether there would have been any house left.

Woodbine, Ia.—The business of W. D. Poage & Son has been purchased by Dr. E. J. Cole and his brother, E. E. Cole, and the new firm will be known as the Woodbine Floral Co. A. D. Curtiss, formerly with the Stuppy Floral Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., has been engaged as manager. There are prospects of plenty of trade.

Wakefield, Mass.—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Charles C. Ball and Miss Sigrid H. Widell, of this city. Mr. Ball bought the greenhouses of H. E. Wiley, at the corner of Yale and North avenues, early in 1909, and has built up a prosperous business there. He is 30 years of age and has a high standing in the ranks of the Elks and the Masons.

San Antonio, Tex.—Mrs. F. Bright has discontinued her business here.

Morristown, N. J.—The conservatories and greenhouses on the property of Richard A. McCurdy have been dismantled and the stock has been sold.

Bath, Me.—Paul M. Olm, of the Kennebec Greenhouses, has completed his new buildings, which include an iron-frame greenhouse and a concrete boiler room.

Memphis, Tenn.—Business is holding up well with the Idlewild Floral Co., good quantities of stock being required to meet the summer demand, which is increasing every year.

Watervliet, N. Y.—W. W. Hannell is making extensive additions to his range of glass. The bulk of the product is handled by Sambrook Bros., at their up-to-date store in Troy.

Wickford, R. I.—Peter S. Byrnes, who recently erected some greenhouses on his own property on West Main street, has now removed his old greenhouse also to the new location.

Hartford, Conn.—At a recent flower show held in Luna Park, some of the local florists, including John Coombs and James W. Scott, had fine exhibits and won some of the best prizes.

Libertyville, Ill.—J. L. Meredith is building a greenhouse 14x60, with a wing 14x36. He is much pleased with the patronage he has been receiving and with the outlook for the future.

White Marsh, Md.—In connection with the fourth annual dahlia show of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., held at Cowenton, September 27 to 30, another affair occurs in which R. A. Vincent is specially interested—the fourth annual harvest home festival conducted by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Ebenezer M. E. church. Mr. Vincent is superintendent of the Sunday school of the Ebenezer church and chairman of the harvest home committee. Mrs. A. E. Vincent is treasurer of the Ladies' Aid Society and acts in the same capacity for the harvest home festival. The "Neighborhood Farm and Household Product Exhibition" is also held simultaneously with the Vincent dahlia show.

CREOSOTE IN GREENHOUSES.

We wish to know something about the use of creosote, or Carbolinum, in greenhouse material. Will wood for benches, gutters and bars, soaked in creosote, last longer than without it and will the creosote cause injury to the plants inside? B. M. G. C.

I would not advise the use of creosote in greenhouse material under any circumstances. Although it will undoubtedly lengthen the life of the timber used in the construction, the gases arising from the volatile oils in the creosote are deadly to plants. Concerns which have tried the experiment have been put to the expense of removing from the house every board which had been so treated, before they could satisfactorily grow carnations or roses. I should expect that lettuce would be as much affected as are carnations and roses. L. C. C.

STOPPING LEAKS IN GUTTERS.

What is a good way to stop a leak in a three-piece wooden gutter? It leaks at the splice and also at some places where the side pieces are nailed to the bottom piece. The gutter is not old. C. B.

There are various ways of stopping leaks in wooden gutters. If there are large openings, it will be well to calk them with oakum which has been dipped in white lead. Small cracks can often be closed by filling them with putty in which about twenty per cent of white lead has been worked. In all cases the gutter should be painted while dry.

It is often possible, when gutters are decayed at the joints, to repair them by covering the decayed portions with galvanized sheet iron, after stopping the openings as far as possible with putty and paint.

THE PEONY-FLOWER MARKET.

I should like to know the present condition of the wholesale market for the peony flower. Is it fully stocked, or is there chance for a new grower to sell his flowers, next spring, by the thousand lots to flower dealers, or get them sold in such quantities by commission merchants? Also, is it likely that the profit per acre accruing to the grower of the flowers would much exceed that from a similar sized crop of tomatoes or potatoes, and if so, what might the excess be? P. C.

This inquiry comes from the south-east, where the crop might reasonably be said to be sure to make the market before Memorial day. That there will be a profitable sale for all stock that reaches the market in prime condition goes without saying, though if the grower does not know his business he may fail to turn a profit. As to how the profit would compare with the profit from the same area devoted to truck crops, perhaps some reader can speak from experience. The space is available for publication of any information on the subject.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There was a lull in the market the latter part of last week, with practically all the staple lines somewhat in oversupply. Roses were particularly abundant. This week opened with the first taste of fall weather and its effect was early apparent in the market. Supplies of stock were considerably reduced and there was a corresponding increase in the demand, resulting in a busy Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday almost always show a reduction as compared with Monday's sales, but it is now thought the market has made the turn into the real flower selling season. It is noticeable that the call for stock is no longer so largely for funeral purposes, but that flowers for social activities are called for.

The special feature is the waning aster season. It has not been a good year for the growers of this flower. Weather conditions delayed the crop, and now the weather is charged with its early passing. The heavy storms are no doubt largely responsible for the condition of much of the stock now coming in. There are extremely few asters which really can be called good, and these few are quickly taken out of the market; usually they are set aside on arrival, for shipment on orders already booked. There is considerable waste of the low grade asters in spite of the scarcity of good stock.

The shortening in supply of asters has naturally turned the demand toward carnations and of these there are no heavy receipts. Some excellent long-stemmed flowers are arriving, but the number is so small that they do not suffice for the demand. Of short-stemmed stock from indoors, and medium-

FINEST STOCK—QUANTITY EQUAL TO HANDLING ADDITIONAL SHIPPING ORDERS.

Why is it that the leading retailers in Chicago and other cities look to us for their Beauties? We have the regular trade of some of the stores that use Beauties in largest quantity and whose business is most sought. Surely it would not be possible to hold this trade if there were better Beauties to be had, or if there was a more dependable source of supply. Don't conclude that you can't use Beauties, or are satisfied with those you now use, until you have tried our stock.

KILLARNEY

PINK AND WHITE

Killarney and White Killarney will be the big sellers this season and it is to your interest to put us to the test and prove for yourself our claim that our Killarneys are in a class by themselves. You need these roses—we know you do—and we know you will recognize the fact if you try a few shipments. We are just getting into another heavy crop of both Killarney and White Killarney timed just right for the opening of the fall business.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Mums are ready and we can supply any needs. Write us. As the season advances we shall have large supplies of the best varieties. You can be sure that we shall, as in other years, be headquarters on fancy Mums.

Carnations

Supply increasing day by day and stems steadily getting longer.

Lilies

We can furnish fancy, long-stemmed Easter Lilies every day in the year.

ASTERS

The Aster season is on the wane, but you may be sure that an order sent to Amling will bring to you the best Asters to be had in the market. There still is plenty of the cheaper stock.

Greens

Headquarters for Asparagus bunches, Smilax, Farleyense, Adiantum, Mexican Ivy and the best Fancy Ferns in the country.

Glads

We still can supply Gladioli in the best colors, with prospect that the supply will last some time yet.

stemmed stock from the field, there is no oversupply and, considering the quality, excellent prices are being realized.

The rose market is in better condition than a week ago and those who have good cuts are hoping that the passing of good asters, and the shortage of carnations, will result in sending the buyers in search of roses. Everyone can be accommodated. Many growers now are cutting Killarney, and to a somewhat less extent White Killarney, with stems of excellent length, flowers of good size and substance, stock that will grade as specials. Richmond also is in good supply and there are fine Maryland and Jardine. Kaiserin continues to have the call among white roses. Few Bride are seen, but now and then one runs across an excellent lot of Maid. The market for roses this week has been better than last week, but it is not yet what the rose growers would like to see; the buyers balk at any attempt at advancing prices.

The cuts of Beauties have shortened and the buyers are finding it more difficult to secure the concessions which have been made in the last fortnight. It still is possible to fill all orders for long-stemmed Beauties without making special effort, but so large a part of the demand is for medium-stemmed stock that it is not always possible to supply this grade, especially on late orders. The quality of the Beauties generally is excellent.

Chrysanthemums are arriving a little more freely. Yellow predominates, though there are a few white. Quality varies widely and prices continue to rule below those ordinarily obtainable for mums at this season. Easter lilies are in fair supply and quite a few rubrum and album are seen, but not many auratum. Gladioli have been on the down grade for some time, but there still are enough for the demand, which has decreased along with the supply of these flowers. Dahlias are not much in evidence; they sell so poorly that none of the wholesalers seems anxious to take in any quantity. There is a somewhat better call for valley. Cattleyas are scarce and even small orders sometimes go unfilled.

Green goods of all kinds are in good supply, wild smilax now having arrived to compete with the indoor greens.

Various Notes.

Strail & Hahn had the decorations for the recent Roosevelt banquet at the Congress hotel. Places were arranged for 1,000 guests and Mr. Strail says something like 8,000 Killarneys, 200 long-stemmed Beauties, 500 short-stemmed Beauties and 500 bunches of Sprengeri were used, to say nothing of 1,000 Killarneys for boutonnières. The Beauties and part of the Sprengeri were used on the speakers' table, with small red, white and blue electric lights strung behind the Sprengeri.

George Wienhoeber, of the Fleischman Floral Co., is back from a two weeks' vacation spent in Minnesota and other northern states. The Fleischman store has been somewhat torn up awaiting the arrival of a new ice-box which is expected this week. This box will be nine feet high and twelve feet wide and is to be used exclusively for orchids, violets and valley. Mr. Wienhoeber also states that the company expects soon to put another new auto delivery wagon into service.

It is reported that O. J. Friedman's new store in the Congress hotel will be opened some time before October 1; in fact, as soon as the ice-box is installed. Mr. Friedman expects to manage both the new and the present store in person. Asked as to the summer's business, Mr. Friedman said that it was the second August in twenty years that showed any profit, and that speaks for itself.

George Wittbold is reported seriously ill. Otto Wittbold, manager of the Edgebrook greenhouses, is spending a few weeks at Marquette, Mich., where he hopes to get rid of a severe attack of hay fever.

L. Baumann & Co., finding themselves cramped for room at their building at 359 West Chicago avenue, have leased about 4,100 square feet of space in a new building at West Superior and North Franklin streets and will use it as an extra warehouse.

Weiland & Risch are among the growers who this week began to cut mums.

Several wholesalers whose leases expire shortly, and others who need more space, are looking about for adaptable locations. A building on Randolph street with 6,000 feet of space on each of five floors is available and looks good, but the landlord insists on the lessee taking the entire building. There is a possibility of some wholesaler taking the lease and sub-letting either to other wholesalers or to outsiders the floors he does not need.

A big water tank at Bassett & Washburn's, Hinsdale, recently collapsed, demolishing a part of a greenhouse, but no employee was injured. Mr. Washburn says their carnations are quite a little earlier than usual this year.

The old instrument, in a booth, has the number 2572 and there now is an extension into the office. After routine business was concluded the club adjourned to the basement, which had been prepared as a rathskeller. Refreshments were served and the Rochester victory of the Washington bowling team was celebrated. The team consisted of Capt. William H. Ernest, George H. Cooke, George C. Shaffer, Robert McLennan and Samuel Simmons. This team was winner against eleven cities. Z. D. Blackistone, who captured a prize in the shooting tournament, was also toasted.

A committee reported favorably on the holding of a big flower show in Convention hall the first week in November. Much activity and interest is being manifested in the event, which will be one of the most important and unique ever held in Washington.

The following were present: Ed. S. Schmid, G. C. Shaffer, Otto Bauer, Sam Hammer, Oscar Oehmler, F. H. Kramer, George Dalglish, George Cooke, William Kimmell, William Marche, A. Schnell, John Bickings, John Robertson, William H. Ernest, Sam Simmons, E. C. Mayberry, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Ellarly, J. Goudy, I. Rosnosky and George Bollinger, the latter three of Philadelphia.

Dahlias

Our growers have largely increased their capacity over last year. The result of their constant effort to produce better quality is very evident. They are confining themselves to the varieties of greatest merit for cut flower purposes.

We particularly wish to emphasize the fact, that we can fill orders for large quantities, several thousand of one color. We solicit regular orders, which will be shipped direct from the farm. We can assure you of careful packing, to insure the Dahlias arriving in perfect condition.

Some of the varieties we can offer you:—

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Autumn has come.

The intense heat has given way to typical autumn weather—cool, rather damp nights and warm days; dahlia weather.

The showy dahlia, with its rich, many-hued variations, has come in with a rush, shipments having increased tenfold. The quality is now fine, the cool nights giving the firmness so necessary to make the flowers satisfactory. The buyers have not yet taken hold of the dahlia in earnest, although several large orders have been reported: one of 10,000 flowers for advertising purposes, another of 5,000 for a fall opening decoration. But there is no question that the buyers will take hold as soon as the quality of the stock now coming into the market is known. It is safe to say that the average grade of the dahlia flowers has never been higher than today. The growers are awakening to the fact that they must have quantity of a variety to make a market, and this year they have the quantity.

The aster is on the wane. There are still lots of good asters, but not so many as a week ago, and a quantity of poor flowers clearly indicates the tail of the crop with many growers.

Gladioli are on the back track. Most of the stock now coming into town is from the large gladiolus farms, where, unfortunately, the flowers are cut too tight to attain perfection in eyes that are critical.

Carnations are coming up a little more strongly, although, with the exception of a few fancies, there are no carnations that find favor with the leading shops.

There is marked improvement in roses this week; that is, in the roses of those growers who have successfully withstood mildew. Maryland and Kaiserin are, of course, least affected, but Killarney and her white sister have had a hard time even where the laws of ventilation are thoroughly understood and faithfully observed. Richmond has made its appearance with some good flowers for so early in the season. Beauties are excellent. The supply of roses is much larger than a week ago. The demand, too, has increased, caring for much of the good stock.

Cattleyas have fallen in price, though it is difficult to find out exactly why; the supply still seems small; the demand is certainly as good, probably a little better, and it will be further strengthened by price inducement. Gardenias are selling a trifle better. Easter lilies are in fair demand, with the supply a little stronger than a week ago. There is lots of fine valley; it is selling well, but not so well as it is blooming. Sweet peas are over. Greens of the tender varieties are dull. Wild smilax is feeling the effect of the first fall openings. Outdoor flowers of the miscellaneous kinds count for less each week, except cosmos, which is increasing in popular favor.

Dissolution of Partnership.

W. E. McKissick, Ayers P. McKissick and Howard E. McKissick, trading as W. E. McKissick & Bros., wholesale florists, dissolved partnership by mutual consent September 8. All business matters relating to the firm will be settled by W. E. McKissick.

This announcement caused surprise on the street, where the firm was regarded as an important factor in the wholesale cut flower market. When seen in his office W. E. McKissick said that the firm's retirement was purely voluntary and that as soon as the business was wound up he would probably start in another enterprise.

W. E. McKissick started in business for himself exactly five years ago, September 4, 1905. He soon established a high reputation for ability and progressiveness in wholesale centers. Two years ago his two brothers joined him.

Popular Plants.

Sealed orders from over the sea sent The Review correspondent to the northern section of the city, where Godfrey Aschmann's place is located. His son, John Aschmann, is in charge, evidently bent on having everything in the best possible condition when his father returns with his big boxes of azaleas from Belgium.

The place looked well, the stock in excellent condition and growing nicely. The fern class was represented by four varieties of nephrolepis—the old Boston, which J. A. believes will be scarce, and so he is prepared to step into the breach with some good, large stock; the dwarfed Scottii and two of the best of the crested varieties, those from Whitman and Scholz. There are also 5,000 table ferns in eight of the best varieties of pteris. Araucarias are in fine shape; there is also a house of kentias of good size. The balance of the place is filled with the Christmas stock of flowering plants, now rapidly improving. Outside, in the frames, are cyclamens, hydrangeas, solanums, etc., with every inch of space utilized.

It seems a safe prophecy to say that when Mr. Aschmann returns in a few weeks, he will find his place in excellent condition.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There seems to be no end to the asters, and while the best of them sell readily, anything not up to standard quality goes promptly into the discard. This week will probably turn the tide the other way and put an end to the sacrifice. Fortunately, gladiolus shipments are about over. Much of the stock has not been salable of late, and only the best varieties seem to be in demand at all. The dry season and the aster flood together made rough sailing for the gladioli.

Dahlias are coming fast and the stock is fine. This week will see them here in great abundance. The appreciation of this flower is growing yearly. Mums are already competing for recognition. Some Golden Glow were all that could be desired and they were well worth the $1.50 per dozen asked for them. Orchids are scarce and the price is improving, while lilies and valley hold at last week's quotations.

Carnations are still short-stemmed, but of excellent color and quality; nevertheless $1 per hundred seems to be about the top, notwithstanding school and theater openings and the return of many of the people who buy flowers.

Of roses there is a great sufficiency, but the stems are short, the heads small and only the selects command a price worth while. The best Beauties bring 20 cents and 4 cents is about the top for selected Killarneys, Brides, etc., while the average will not reach over $10 per thousand. It is unwise to count on much improvement before October.

Club Meeting.

The New York Florists' Club held its first meeting of the season Monday evening, September 12, with an attendance of over half a hundred.

Robert Berry introduced the subject of a bowling club and there was a lively discussion, participated in by Messrs. Manda, Birnie, Fenrich, Burns, Donaldson, Weathered, O'Mara, Nugent, Pierson, Traendly, Duckham, Shultz and President Miller. As the result, a committee of five was appointed to prepare plans for the formation of a bowling organization. The committee consists of Messrs. Manda, Traendly, Berry, Duckham and Fenrich. Later a meeting of bowlers was called at the store of Traendly & Schenck at 3 p. m., September 17. It was stated the club will start with a membership of at least twenty-four. F. R. Pierson presented to the five local clubs a bowling ball apiece. Messrs. Pepper and Shaw dispensed some of the prizes offered for press bowling at Rochester.

F. R. Pierson expressed his appreciation of the gavel presented to him at Rochester by the club's members and spoke at length of the convention. H.

ANNOUNCEMENT

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. announce that they will open their New York store, No. 109 West 28th Street, Monday, Sept. 19th, for the sale of cut flowers, ribbons and supplies.

The store will be in charge of Mr. P. B. Rigby, treasurer of the Company, assisted by Mr. Wm. J. Moore. It will be the purpose of the Company to maintain the same high standard that has been characteristic of their Philadelphia establishment.

We solicit the patronage of our New York friends and extend an invitation to all to inspect us.

Our method is to guarantee satisfaction.

A. Bunyard, R. E. Berry and half a dozen others spoke of the special features of the Rochester meeting and Mr. Lenker urged every member to use his influence with his assemblymen in behalf of the appropriation for greenhouses at Cornell experiment station.

President Miller appointed W. J. Stewart, Charles B. Weathered and F. R. Pierson as a committee to prepare resolutions on the death of Lyman B. Crow.

F. H. Traendly, for the transportation committee, and H. A. Bunyard, for the outing committee, made preliminary reports. President Miller gave an account of the status of the Fifty-ninth street market proposition and promised further details at the October meeting, at which J. Horace McFarland will lecture with stereopticon.

P. J. Smith, M. L. Glass and Robert J. Young were elected to membership. The following were proposed for election: E. Leuly, West Hoboken; John Collins, Orange, N. J.; George W. Crawbuck, and Geo. Wagner, Brooklyn; Fred Marquardt and John Baumann, Middle Village; H. E. Philpott, Winnipeg; W. F. Shay, E. T. Bromfield and Robert MacNiff, New York city.

The exhibits of the evening included five plants of Clerodendron fallax from Harry Turner; Chrysanthemum Smith's Advance from Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.; Celosia Pride of Castle Gould from Julius Roehrs Co. The committee on awards gave a vote of thanks to Elmer D. Smith & Co., and scored Harry Turner's exhibit five points for the Hitchings cup.

There was a special meeting of the club's committees Monday afternoon, September 12, after which President Miller entertained at an informal dinner.

Various Notes.

The Nassau County Horticultural Society will hold a dahlia show on Wednesday, September 28, at Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, and on October 28 and 29 its sixth annual exhibition, its prize schedules having already been distributed.

September 20 to 22 the fair of the American Institute takes place at the Berkeley Lyceum building, West Forty-fourth street, New York, a place much too small for such an exhibition.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society will have its fifth annual dahlia show October 1, at Orange, N. J.

The autumn series of lectures to be given by the New York Botanical Society in the Botanical Museum, Bronx park, will begin September 17 and continue every Saturday afternoon at 4 p. m. until November 19. Among the professors who will lecture, with stereopticon slides, are Messrs. Nash, Britton, Murrell, Howe, Richards, Seaver, Burgess and Busby.

week, laying in supplies for a prosperous winter.

M. A. Bowe has taken a branch store at 60 West Thirty-third street and may be able to continue at his present location also until spring. Last week he had charge of the Gould wedding at Washington, Conn. Arthur Merritt, his designer, is again back at headquarters from his summer vacation.

The Long Island Bowling Club has changed its night to Thursday. The New York club contemplates a change to Friday evenings. Joseph Fenrich challenges any member of the New York Florists' Club to a match, best seven out of thirteen games.

P. J. Smith is handling some fine new rose stock, also large shipments of Liliun rubrum, which sell well. The Easter lily receipts have fallen to about 10,000 weekly.

H. F. Darrow has completed a business trip to Europe and is again at his desk.

Miss Horn and Miss Hess, 767 Lexington avenue, have reopened their pretty store after a month's holiday.

André Beauplan, of the Forster Mansfield Co., spends his week ends cruising in his yacht "Chantecler."

C. C. Trepel's new cut flower store at Bloomingdale's will cover more than double the space before used, and will be one of the finest in the country. Peter Mallon, of Brooklyn, has been engaged to take charge of the conservatories on the roof. It is also rumored that Mr. Trepel has secured the store in Gimbel Bros.' new building at Thirty-fourth street and Sixth avenue.

The rumor of several brothers joining together in the wholesale cut flower business this fall, has at last taken form and proves to be correct, John and William Kessler having added this department to their plant business, opening their new store this week in the building opposite the big stores of Traendly & Schenck and Walter Sheridan.

The Geller Florists' Supply Co. is now located in its commodious store on West Twenty-eighth street, next door to the Forster Mansfield Mfg. Co. Mrs. Geller and family have returned from the country.

The Market.

Beautiful Indian summer weather is about the only pleasant feature to mention. Business is rather quiet, with the exception of wedding and funeral work. Asters are getting scarce, but the better varieties find ready sale. Gladioli sell well, especially America, which always brings the best price.

Preparations for Flower Show.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club the chief subject for discussion was the coming flower show. Final arrangements were made, committees selected and a plan adopted. A general sketch and plan was drawn by George McClure, which will be followed exactly. The show will be held at Convention hall, just before election and will continue about four days. The entire hall will be used and the committees will endeavor to make Convention hall one beautiful display. The details will not be made public at present, but the trade in general will be invited at a later date. The usual hearty cooperation of the brother florists is hoped for.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

A brisk demand for funeral work makes possible a fair report on the business of last week. Outside of this, there was but little doing. A few of the "400" are returning from the summer resorts, but as yet no large social functions are being planned. The same old complaint is heard from all corners—the truck gardeners are bringing in an abundance of home-grown asters, gladioli, etc., which they sell for a mere nothing, and as long as flower lovers can get their bouquets at such prices, just that long will trade remain dull.

Carnations are now putting in their appearance again, as some of the growers are cutting from their young stock, but as yet the supply is limited. There is a scarcity of giganteum in the market at present. The demand for these has been good right along. Roses of all kinds are quite plentiful and the demand good.

The Market.

Business for the last four weeks has been good, considering the season.
Stock has been limited to asters and roses chiefly. A few dahlias have been coming in the last two weeks and they help out nicely, as asters are on the wane. Some few carnations are coming in. The stems are a little short, with the flowers only medium, but they are quite welcome, as they work up well in funeral designs, which have been in steady demand. Gladioli are about over with for this summer. A few other outdoor flowers are coming in and fill in fairly well.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The dull summer season is gradually coming to an end, and though the majority of the frequenters of the different health and recreation resorts are still absent, many notable functions for the winter season are being planned. The French Opera House will open its doors at the end of November, which event is looked forward to with great anticipations, as it means the beginning of the winter's festivities and receptions. During the last four months the florists have been busy getting their big stock of foliage and flowering plants in shape, and all look forward to a brisk winter and spring business.

A recent visit to several of the larger growers showed that they are all prepared to meet any demand with finer plants than ever before at this time of the year. Palms, ferns, dracaenas, crotons and a few varieties of other foliage plants are grown here to perfection. One florist grows enough cut roses to supply his large store and a good shipping trade besides, while another can cut varieties of orchids by the hundreds during the height of the flowering season.

Chrysanthemums, indoors and outdoors, which are used by the thousands on All Saints' day, November 1, at the different cemeteries, are in a fine condition and, unless the weather becomes unexpectedly unfavorable, the output of flowers for that day will be immense. The weather during the last three weeks has been extremely warm, day and night, but the nights will soon become cool and show their beneficial effects on the mums, upon whose condition many growers depend for financial success for the fall season.

Hyacinth and narcissus bulbs arrived here in great numbers and have been extensively planted for early flowers, as well as cold storage lilies, callas and freesias for later use. Formosa lilies, giganteums and the Louisiana grown sorts are taking the place of the one-time well liked Harrisii.

Various Notes.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society, September 4, visited the Standard brewery, where a fine cold luncheon was served to the guests by the brewmaster, John Bruestle. R. E. Simon, vice-president of the society, acted as toastmaster and C. W. Eichling proposed a toast to the brewmaster and the company. Twenty-five members of the society were present. The secretary, C. R. Panter, was busy getting subscriptions for the World's Panama Exposition, to be held at the logical point.

Abele Bros. have their enlarged nursery well stocked with all kinds of foliage and flowering plants for the retail trade, including an especially well grown lot of good sized poinsettias. Abele Bros. are growers for the Jos. Steckler Seed Co., of this city, and have thousands of pot plants, as well as an enormous quantity of young vegetable plants, ready for the coming season.

C. W. Eichling, who recently returned much improved in health from a trip in the North Carolina mountains, makes a specialty of Amerpohlii ferns for shipping. He has a good stock of poinsettias in all sizes. His palms and ferns for decorations and store sale are in splendid condition. He has just planted a good lot of Romans and Paper Whites. His sweet peas are coming up in the open ground.

lection of orchids among the local florists. The big stock which his son recently brought from Honduras is looking fine, and the writer noticed the first Cattleya Bowringiana, old and young plants, in bloom. A small house, with Adiantum Farleyense in splendid growth and foliage, makes an elegant appearance. His mums are well grown and the big stock on hand bids fair to produce a large output of flowers.

Seed Trade News.AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.Pres., E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.; First Vice-pres., L. H. Vaughan, Chicago; Sec'y and Treas., C. E.
Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE bean crop has made rather good progress recently, but there is no chance for other than a bad shortage.

DELIVERIES of peas still are in doubt; every lot gives a different result, but practically all are bad or worse.

HARRISII bulbs are cleaning up well, except, perhaps, in the smaller sizes, the season's crops having turned out light.

J. C. VAUGHAN is a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress at today's primary in the second Illinois district.

THERE is danger of frost injury to the sweet corn in the west. The crop is late, little progress has been made in the last week, and every day now counts heavily for or against the crop.

THE Treasury Department of the United States has declined to accept the recent decision of the Board of General Appraisers involving the question of allowance for dirt and other impurities in importations of castor seeds, and has directed that an appeal be taken to the United States Court of Customs Appeals.

EINAR KNUTSSON, who is in this country representing Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen seed growers, was a passenger September 8 on the first through passenger train on the Long Island railroad to be started out of the great new Pennsylvania station in New York city. He was on his way to visit the Long Island cauliflower growers, and the circumstance of being one of the first of the public to ride through the new tunnels caused him to be interviewed by the reporters for the New York dailies.

GERMAN GRASS SEED REPORT.

Annually at the end of August Conrad Appel, whose seed business at Darmstadt, Germany, was established in 1789, issues a report on the grass seed crops. As a preface to a report on each of the principal varieties he says: "The warm weather in April and partly in May influenced maturing of our home grown natural grass seeds to some extent and one could reckon with a good, early and satisfactory yield this season. But these expectations have been diminished by the very unfavorable weather conditions, with continuous rains in June and July. Harvesting of some sorts has been delayed and the quantity and quality of this season's crops are lessened. Many lots are discolored and dark, containing a good deal of weeds, and are of light weight. Under the circumstances one has to pay special attention to the buying and selecting of best qualities." Save for Festuca elatior, F. duriusecula, F. ovina and F. heterophylla and Poa trivialis, the crops thus far secured are reported at least as good as last year, but in many cases first quality seeds will command a premium. Crimson clover is a short crop and the expectations of a large yield of yellow trefoil have been upset by wet weather. Otherwise the clovers promise an average yield in European countries, save that France has little red clover. In that country there is prospect of a good crop of alfalfa.

GREAT CROPS ASSURED.

The government September report on crop conditions, issued September 8, shows the largest crop of oats ever raised in this country, next to the largest yield of corn, and a big yield of spring and winter wheat combined.

The oats yield indicated is 1,045,000,- 000 bushels, exceeding the record yield of last year by 38,000,000 bushels. The oats this year are of excellent weight and quality.

The corn condition of 78.2, based on reports up to September 1, suggests a yield of 2,896,000,000 bushels, compared to a crop of 2,772,000,000 bushels as finally estimated a year ago. The largest crop of corn ever raised was in 1906
—2,927,000,000 bushels.

The government raises its August estimate of the condition of spring wheat from 61 to 63.1, which indicates a yield of 217,000,000 bushels. This compares with an August estimate of 211,000,000 bushels, and a final yield a year ago of 290,000,000 bushels.

The total yield of hay is estimated at 60,116,000 tons, compared to 64,938,000 tons a year ago.

The report, as a whole, gives a promise for much larger yields of all the cereals than appeared possible early in the season. Especially is this the case in regard to wheat. The startling reports in regard to the winter wheat were disproved by big yields at harvest time and the outturn of the spring wheat in the northwest has been more satisfactory than expected. The total wheat crop is estimated at 675,000,000 bushels, compared to a total yield in 1909 of 737,000,000 bushels.

All crops are now secured with the exception of corn, which will require three or four weeks more to place it out of the danger of frosts, much of the crop being unusually late.

THE PRODUCTION OF SEEDS.

Growth of the Industry.

Among the many changes in the art and practice of American agriculture which have developed within comparatively recent years, says W. W. Tracy, formerly with D. M. Ferry & Co., in a bulletin of the Department of Agriculture, none has been of greater practical importance than those connected with the growing and handling of seed of garden vegetables. There has been a marvelous increase in the quantity of seed used in this country. One of the largest of the nearly 1,000 seed firms now doing business in the United States uses buildings with an aggregate floor surface of more than sixteen acres, and more than half of this is in two adjacent buildings. This space is more than that occupied by the entire seed trade of the country only fifty years ago. Not only has there been an enormous increase in the quantity of seed used, but a great improvement in the quality.

"QUALITY" CHRISTMAS SWEET PEAS

At the Exhibition and Convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, July 12th and 13th, 1910, we again won the C. C. Morse & Co.'s Silver Cup for the finest and best collection of Sweet Peas open to the trade only.

The right time to sow Sweet Peas for Christmas flowering is in Aug. and Sept.

All our Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas are true to name and grown from originator's stock (secured by us) by one of the most reliable seed growers and Sweet Pea specialists in California, and we can make immediate delivery. Our output last year was nearly 6000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt, the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year, name on application. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the winter months. Oz. 10 cts., ¼ lb. 40 cts., ½ lb. 60 cts., lb. $1.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.50, lb. $2.50.

quirements. The advantage of the use of superior seed can only become available to planters through the growing of strains which are uniformly of the exact varietal character wanted.

The immense quantity of seed necessary to supply the ever-increasing demand makes it practically impossible for the seedsman to grow on his own farm all of the seed he handles, and he is obliged to have the major portion of it grown for him by others.

Present Conditions and Practices.

Nearly all of the seed of sweet corn, garden peas, and beans used in America is grown under contract between farmers and seedsmen. The contract usually provides that the farmer shall devote a certain area of suitable land to the production of the seed crop. He further agrees to properly prepare the land, plant it with seed acceptable to the seedsman, and cultivate, harvest, care for, and clean the crop in such a way as to secure the largest return of seed fit for seedsmen's use that can be obtained through good farm practices and the use of ordinary farm machinery, as well as to deliver the entire resulting seed product to the contracting seedsman on or before a certain date.

The seedsman, on his part, agrees to furnish the seed needed for planting the area specified and to pay an agreed price per pound or bushel for all the seed in excess of the amount furnished for planting which the farmer is able to produce on that area and to deliver in such condition that it is suitable or without an unreasonable amount of recleaning can be made fit for seedsmen's use.

Under another form of contract the farmer agrees to provide a certain area of properly prepared land and, acting under the directions of the seedsman and as his agent, to plant it with the seed furnished and to cultivate, harvest, and cure the crop so as to secure the largest return of clean and highly viable seed that can be secured by good farm practice and the use of ordinary farm machinery, it being understood and agreed that the stock seed furnished and the seed crop produced from it are, and are to remain, the property of the contracting seedsman. The seedsman agrees to pay the farmer, for the rent of the land and for the labor of growing and harvesting the seed crop, a specific amount for every pound of seed which he may grow and deliver in accordance with the agreement. Under such contracts the farmer acts simply in the capacity of a cultivator, handling the crop as he would if it were grown for sale as grain, except that he is called upon to locate and handle it so that the seed will be satisfactorily free from danger of mixture with other plantings of the same species.

In some cases the growing contracts, especially those for peas and beans, provide that the farmer shall rogue out or destroy any plants that seem to be of a different variety or of noticeably inferior quality, but such roguing is seldom actually done by the farmer, and if done at all it is under the immediate direction and at the expense of the contracting seedsman. Many seedsmen employ large gangs of men to go over seed crops grown for them and remove as many as possible of the rogue plants.

Elements of Value.

Seedsmen usually contract for the growing of their supplies of seed of sweet corn, peas, and beans instead of depending upon purchase by sample in the open market, because the elements of value in the case of seeds are different, at least as to their relative importance, from those in the case of most merchandise.

Appearance.—The good appearance of the seed as to cleanliness, size, plumpness, and color of the grain is a most desirable quality and, in most instances, one easily recognized, but one which is often misleading as to comparative value. An illustration is the case of Red Valentine beans, in which a plump, full, symmetrical bean of a bright red color is apt to go with inferior varietal quality, while a twisted, unsymmetrical shape and a dull color are generally indications of a pure and true stock of the sort.

Purity of varietal character can rarely be determined by even the most critical examination of the sample, and though viability can be readily ascertained by germinative tests it requires some days to make these, so that the appearance of the seed gives little indication of its comparative value.

Viability.—That every grain will under favorable conditions develop into a healthy plant would be regarded by many, particularly by those of little horticultural experience, as the most important of all qualities, and in the case of a single seed viability is essential to its value. However, of two lots of seed, in one of which sixty to seventy-five per cent of the grains will develop into plants which are typical of the variety, while the remainder will not germinate at all, and in the other, though every seed is viable, only ten or twenty per cent of them will produce typical plants of the sort, the others developing into a medley of different forms and qualities, the first lot, though only sixty to seventy-five per cent viable, is decidedly the most satisfactory and valuable.

Stock.—Purity and evenness of varietal character are the most important factors in determining the real value of seed. A seed is essentially a plant packed for transportation, and carries within itself the potentialities and limitations of development of the plant into which it may grow. With the aid of climate and soil and through the control of cultural conditions man may secure more or less perfect expression of these potentialities, but he can not add to or change them; they were predetermined by the varietal characteristics of the producing plant and its ancestors. In a few exceptional cases such inherent varietal character is more or less clearly indicated by visible peculiarities of the seed, but generally such indications are neither readily discernible nor reliable, and one can only know the varietal character of the plant any given seed will develop into by having far more knowledge of the producing plant and its ancestors than is to be gained from the appearance of the seed itself.

weather the fall trade should liven up a little.

Flowers are becoming a little more scarce than last week. Gladioli and asters are to be had, but good stock is scarce. Some Golden Glow mums are to be seen, but do not move overly well. Quantities of short-stemmed carnations are coming in. Brides, Maids, Killarneys and Beauties are about the same as heretofore.

Various Notes.

Martin Brandlein is cutting some good Golden Glow mums. Mr. Brandlein recently purchased the lot adjoining him on the south from Alfred Pahud and is just completing a new house on it, in which he has planted sweet peas.

The Indianapolis Flower and Plant Co. has reopened its branch at the New York store. Reinhold Schilling is in charge.

bers being present. The committee in charge of the flower show reported satisfactory progress, with all indications pointing to a successful show. C. R. Green and Ed. Temperly were elected to membership. After the meeting the members were treated to a lunch by A. Wiegand and Wm. Langstaff.

Fred Dorner, of Lafayette, is to be the judge, and Herman Junge is to be the superintendent of exhibits in the floral department at the state fair this week. Through the efforts of Secretary Baur, of the State Florists' Association, the exhibits in the floral department of the state fair will far surpass anything seen there in recent years. The Florists' Association revised the old premium list, a number of premiums were added, and the board granted considerable additional space.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rieman have returned from an extended trip through Yellowstone Park and the west. Mr. Rieman is enthusiastic over the trip and hopes to take another soon.

Visitors last week were: Mr. Green, with the H. Bayersdorfer Co.; George Gause, of Richmond; J. S. Stuart and J. A. E. Haugh, of Anderson, and L. Vaughan, of Chicago.

Herman Junge has been touring the northern part of the state in an automobile.

A. Wiegand & Sons are soon going to have an automobile for delivery purposes.

Hartje & Elder have a fine lot of mums coming on. Mr. Hartje says he has some surprises among them.

house benches if protected from drip and if light and air are excluded as much as possible. Hot water or steam pipes and boilers, which will cause a drying heat, are bad for mushrooms. Start any time by saving fresh horse manure daily. If you do not keep horses, probably you can secure it from some livery stable every other day. Throw it up in a heap outside, discarding the rougher pieces of straw. Turn the heap daily to prevent burning. Add to it one-third as much screened pasture loam as you have manure; this tempers the heat and prevents burning.

When the rank heat has subsided, make your beds. Spread out a layer of fermenting material and pound or tramp it hard. Then add more, pounding again, and so on until the material is nine to ten inches thick. When the heat of the bed has subsided to 85 or 90 degrees, put in the spawn, either Pure Culture or English Milltrack; the former starts earlier, but I like the mushrooms of the latter better. Chop in pieces the size of a walnut, make holes twelve inches apart each way and put in one of the pieces of spawn. Cover lightly with manure, but do not fill in and pound until eight or ten days later, when the mycelium will be running. Cover the bed ten to fourteen days after spawning with two inches of loam; I like that from an old pasture, passed through a 3/4-inch screen, best. Pound this firmly, then cover the bed or bench with hay, straw or excelsior and leave this covering on until mushrooms appear, which is sometimes as early as three weeks and at other times as long as three months. If at any time the beds appear very dry on the surface, water at a temperature of 100 degrees can be applied. Watering can only be looked upon, however, as a necessary evil.

In making up mushroom beds the manure must be moist without being mushy. If dry and burnt it is worthless for mushroom production. While it is being prepared, moisten any dry portions each day when turning. The growing of mushrooms is something of a lottery unless you have just the right growing place for them. They are hard to grow in the hot months unless a cold cellar or underground dug-out of some kind can be had; insect attacks ruin many of the mushrooms in hot weather. Start a bed so that you can spawn late in September and it should give you mushrooms early in November. When apparently exhausted, mushroom beds are often renewed if water is given at a temperature of 120 degrees after a top-you can save 2/3 on the cost of your watering. The amount one man can take care of is limited only by the extent of the installation.

The water from the special nozzles descends in mist form, like a gentle rain, covering the ground uniformly, leaving no dry spots. The ground is kept soft and porous, letting in the air necessary to the rapid growth of plants.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is unusually active, being far in advance of this date in former years, with funeral work in the lead, thus using up nearly all the short stock. Carnations are almost out of the question, but a few short flowers are coming from the new stock and the plants are progressing nicely. Roses are in good supply and are unusually fine.

Asters are abundant, of good quality and often measure seven inches in diameter. There are enough rubrums for decorative purposes. Ferns and green goods are in great demand. Chrysanthemums are now more plentiful, but are hard to move, as they are a little ahead of their usefulness.

The first consignments of bulbs have arrived, with others expected soon. Indications point to an early fall.

Various Notes.

Herbert & Fleishauer, of MacMinnville, Ore., are shipping choice asters to this market, including the Crego varieties.

Henry Melde, of Eureka, Cal., recently spent a few days in this city.

Miss M. Armstrong, of Spokane, Wash., was in the city looking over the market and arranging for shipments for the coming season. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

We are being treated to a spell of cooler weather and business seems to be on the increase in consequence. Carnations are not yet in abundant supply, but the retailers usually get enough to fill orders. Roses are decidedly to the bad as far as quality is concerned and buyers have to content themselves with outside stock, such as asters and mums, which, by the way, are as good as we have ever seen. A few early varieties from under glass are shown, but the greater bulk of the stock comes from out of doors. The asters will not last much longer, but they have done remarkably well this season and are deserving of a rest.

A visit to the mum growers shows that the stock is thrifty and promises an abundant crop until the end of the season.

Valley is off crop with several of the large growers and is in good demand in consequence. The Japanese lilies, owing to the large quantities produced this season, have not sold as well as formerly. The several weeks of hot weather had the effect of bringing them into blossom on short notice and the market was soon overstocked.

Gladioli and dahlias are not in great demand, although the best flowers sell fairly well. Green goods of all kinds are about as usual.

Various Notes.

H. Kempf, of the Pacific Nursery, reports a heavy autumn trade, with a good quantity of orders on hand for winter delivery.

dealers in the region of San Francisco. Mr. Ward will leave for the south in a few days.

The nurseries originally carried on by the late M. Lynch, of Menlo Park, have been reorganized under the name of the Lynch Nursery Co., and will continue to do a general nursery, seed, floral and landscape business.

The stock of plants on the grounds owned by the late David Neely are to be sold by the executor of the estate in the near future. G.

Anthony Tymcio, gardener for the Palace hotel, reports that the use of plants in tubs and boxes, for decorating entrances to hotels and restaurants, is on the increase. He says that when in Genoa, Italy, he noticed that bamboo was largely used in that way, so he tried it for one of the entrances to the Palace hotel. He reports great success with it, and thinks it one of the best plants for the purpose, as it is sufficiently hardy for California's climate and becomes strongly established in tubs or boxes. Speaking of dahlias, Mr. Tymcio claims that the Thomson sold best, with Mrs. Kettlewell and Kaiser Wilhelm following. He says Jack Rose did not succeed as in eastern markets, and states that cactus dahlias meet with little approval except among the street peddlers.

Sweet peas are all done, but there are plenty of other outdoor flowers to pick from.

Nearly all the florists have housed their carnations. There is a shortage of good surplus plants in this vicinity. Funeral work has been good. We are having excellent weather now with cool nights, which leads us to expect an early frost.

Various Notes.

E. H. Chamberlain sold over 1,400 asters, Sunday, September 11. Harry Kranzler, an employee, and Julius Rusitsky, manager for Wm. P. Peirce, left September 12 for a week's visit to New York.

Fred Reynolds, formerly with R. E. Nofftz, on William street, has accepted a position with Edward Bingham, of Dedham, Mass., wholesale grower of violets.

A hearing will be given September 21, to the creditors of J. H. Cleary. S. S. Peckham, of Fairhaven, is one of those most deeply interested.

Wm. E. Mosher has some nice Whitmani ferns, also about 5,000 fine Princess of Wales violet plants.

The New Bedford Horticultural Society will hold its annual dahlia show September 15, 16 and 17.

H. A. Jahn is cutting nice carnations at his Brock avenue place. His field of dahlias is a fine sight now.

S. S. Peckham, Fairhaven, will have about 3,000 mums to pick from during the coming season. W. L.

I WILL have an opening for a few growers of good flowers and bunch Plumosus, on and after Oct. 1, 1910. For a good article, good prices and prompt returns, correspondence with good growers solicited.

NURSERY NEWS.AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

THE A. B. Austin Nursery Co., of Downers Grove, Ill., has been incorporated, with a capital of $6,600, by John C. Alden, F. Jason Littleford and Elijah Smith.

THE Potomac-Shenandoah Co., of Martinsburg, W. Va., has been incorporated, with a capital of $50,000, for the purpose of conducting nurseries, planting orchards and engaging in agriculture. The incorporators are Charles Burdett Hart, of Wheeling, and Gray Silver, Alex. Clohan, Clarence E. Martin and N. T. Fame, of Martinsburg.

A. MILLIONAIRE NURSERYMAN.

The Port Arthur Nursery Co., of Port Arthur, Tex., is just completing its range of greenhouses. Concrete has been used for the foundations of the houses and for the walls under the glass. All the walls and the sides of the solid beds are also made of concrete. The houses are all high-light. The materials for the houses and also for the heating plant are from a prominent Chicago firm.

The nursery company has secured the services of George Doner, formerly of Vicksburg, Miss., who will be in charge of the greenhouse department.

John W. Gates, the multimillionaire iron manufacturer, who is doing so much for Texas and especially for Port Arthur, is at the head of the Port Arthur Nursery Co. C. D. O.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

Mrs. John S. Kennedy has the largest of the many fine shore estates in Bar Harbor, and it is kept beautifully, the superintendent, W. T. Burton, being a first-class gardener in every branch. There are quite a number of greenhouses here, containing splendidly grown grapes, figs, peaches, nectarines and melons. In the plant house, tuberous begonias, Allamanda Williamsi, gesneras, achimenes, fuchsias, Lilium speciosum and auratum and gloriosas showed extremely good culture. The Italian garden here is a most charming one. Clematis Jackmani was flowering beautifully along the backs of the side borders. Actinidias are used considerably for pergola effects; in fact, this is the most popular climber at Bar Harbor, never winter-killing, and it stands the salt spray better than any other climber. Along the side borders of the Italian garden, Aconitum Napellus and bicolor, physostegias, phloxes, mostly pure white, various liliums, Astilbe Davidi and Chrysanthemum

A BLUE ROSE

The Greatest Rose Novelty
of the Century

It flowered with us this season and was greatly admired.

The New Rambler (Violet Blue), hailed by the German rose growers as the forerunner of a genuinely cornflower blue rose, is a seedling of Crimson Rambler, very vigorous and hardy, and free blooming.

maximum King Edward VII were fine. Other beds contained pink verbenas, snapdragons, pentstemons, heliotropes and other varieties, all splendidly flowered and growing with a reckless abandon impossible in inland districts or farther south.

A. E. Chilman, at Joseph T. Bowen's, Hull's Cove, always has something good to show to visitors. Fine batches of gloxinias, Francoa ramosa, Campanula pyramidalis, tuberous begonias, achimenes and streptocarpus were noted; also large pots or tubs of blue and white agapanthus and Lilium speciosum. In the flower garden, Verbena Pink Perfection was beautiful, also the pink petunia, Bar Harbor Beauty. Gladioli were certainly fine. We never saw these so well grown as at Bar Harbor. All the estates here grow collections of the best named sorts. Salpiglossis, pentstemons, Gilia coronopifolia, Duke Zeppelin and Lafayette begonias, sweet peas of superb quality, with 12-inch to 15-inch stems and big flowers, hybrid tea roses, Chrysanthemum King Edward, perennial phloxes, Shirley poppies and a host of other summer annuals and perennials were all a complete sheet of bloom. Rarely have we seen tuberous begonias, zonal geraniums and blue lobelias flourishing as here. With the beautiful, verdant lawns, they were strongly reminiscent of Great Britain.

Lisbon, O.—Charles Underwood is building an addition to his greenhouses.

HARDY PERENNIALS

All the plants named below will be supplied in heavy field clumps. We call especial attention to the hardy chrysanthemums and every florist should have a collection of the choice pompon and large-flowering varieties here offered. The strong field roots will be found particularly desirable for winter propagation.

AMPELOPSIS Quinquifolia (Virginia Creeper), 3 years. HARDY ASIERS, blue, pink, red and white; separate, named. CASSIA Marylandica. CLEMATIS PANICULATA, 2-yr., $1.00 doz., $7.00 100; choice, extra heavy, old, $2.00 doz., $15.00 100.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business was generally good last week, funeral work being the special feature. Stock is plentiful and of good quality and prices are normal. It will be two or three weeks yet before the opening of fall business will be noticeable. The weather during the last few days has been decidedly cooler and the work of benching is being pushed rapidly by all the growers.

Various Notes.

W. S. Pino has returned from his vacation.

J. V. Mason, who is experimenting at his place in Auburn, is trying to raise strawberries which will ripen the latter part of August or first of September. His experiments are said to be proving a success and he expects to have fruit next year at this period.

Nathan D. Pierce, of the Norwood Greenhouses, is building a new house, 24x100 feet, in addition to his present range at Norwood.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, has received several first prizes recently at the fairs in Connecticut. At the recent state fair at Hartford he exhibited about 500 dahlias and took firsts on cactus, show, fancy, decorative, vases of show and fancy, collection of peony, and largest bloom, and also captured second on pompons.

F. Deitz has commenced a new house, 16x72 feet, on French street, this city.

The regular monthly meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held Wednesday evening, September 21. The annual September exhibition of fruit, dahlias, asters and other flowers, bees and honey, will be held in Columbia hall, 248 Weybosset street, Thursday and Friday, September 29 and 30.

Visitors: James F. Mulcahy, for N. F. McCarthy, of Boston, and Paul Berkowitz, for Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia. W. H. M.

Lisbon, O.—John Scott is rebuilding three or four of his houses, using all modern improvements.

THE NEW FERN

NEPHROLEPIS DREYERII

(SPORT OF BOSTON)

THIS New Fern, when exhibited at the S. A. F. & O. H. Convention recently, received the following description: "Nephrolepis Dreyerii has many good points which will render it popular. It makes a quick growth, is compact, of good color, and stands considerable rough treatment, adapting itself to almost any condition. It is of the Scottii type, but not as stiff, the fronds drooping gracefully, giving the plant a very attractive appearance."

Ready for delivery after October 1.

Price: 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pots, per 100, \$25.00; per 1000, \$200.00.

MAGGOTS ON ASTERS.

Can you advise me what to do with my aster beds? They were looking fine until last week, but now they are dying off. On cleaning them I find lots of small white maggots on the stems.

R. P.

We cannot tell exactly, from your description, what the maggots are. Owing to the hot, dry weather, pests of various kinds are having every opportunity to propagate and do a lot of damage. Sometimes in dry weather aphids on the roots causes great injury. For this there is no real remedy, although applications of tobacco water may minimize it. A better plan is to pull up and burn the plants. The trouble is undoubtedly at the roots of your asters. Drought may cause some dying off. Outside of watering, persistent stirring of the soil is the best you can do for your plants. The more you stir the soil, the less will the root maggots or aphids like it and the better will the plants grow. It is surprising how much drought asters will stand if they are in good, deep soil, and it is frequently stirred. This may not answer your question, but use the cultivator more freely and see if your plants do not pick up. C. W.

WE offer a grand lot of exceptionally well-grown plants of Nephrolepis, which will be found one of the best selling and most profitable plants for florists to handle. Our stock is in unusually fine shape, and we will guarantee that it will please the most exacting. It is exceptionally good value at the prices quoted.

Elegantissima Improved. The finest of this type, never showing a Boston frond; has not reverted in the last four years. Strong plants, 6-in. pots, 50c each; fine specimens, 8-in. pans, $1.00 each; strong young plants, 2 1/4-in. pots for growing on, $10.00 per 100.

Elegantissima compacta. Bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. Dwarf and compact. Especially fine in the small sizes. Extra fine plants, 4-in. pots, 25c each; 6-in. pots, 50c each; strong young plants, 2 1/4-in. pots for growing on, $10.00 per 100.

Superbissima. Introduced by us in 1908. Very distinct and very popular. 4-in. pots, 25c each; large specimens, 8-in. pans, $1.00 each.

Bostoniensis. Good plants, 6-in. pots, 50c each.

Club Meeting.

After an intermission of two months, the New Jersey Floricultural Society held its regular meeting in Lindsley hall, 240 Main street, September 9. Light refreshments were served to the members and others by the society.

Arrangements for the dahlia show, to be held October 1, were completed. This show has always attracted attention and promises this time to be the largest exhibition of its kind the society ever held.

President Albert F. Larson, Treasurer Walter Gray, Secretary William Reid and John Hayes were appointed a committee to go to New York to select the silver cups which will be awarded in January for the year's competitions at the monthly exhibitions. It was decided to award the large silver cup donated by Mr. Le Count at the last meeting, for the best twenty-four cut chrysanthemums, six varieties, four flowers of each, at the chrysanthemum show, which will be held on the regular meeting night in November.

Lager & Hurrell, of Summit, N. J., had a nice display of rare orchids on exhibition, for which they received 95 points; A. B. Jenkins, Albert F. Larson gardener, roses, 90 points; Thomas Edison, Frank Drew gardener, roses, 80; S. M. & A. Colgate, William Reid gardener, roses, 75, and carnations, 70; Charles A. Hathaway, Max Schneider gardener, carnations, 60; William Reid, flowering plant, 75, and foliage plant, 85.

For the exhibits not in competition for points the following awards were made: Vase of roses, Albert F. Larson, cultural certificate; vase of roses, Frank Drew, cultural certificate; tuberous rooted begonias, William Reid, cultural certificate.

The judges were Charles Ashmead, Edward Eccles and John Hayes.
William Reid, Secretary.

WE TAKE THE LEAD!

IN WHAT?

WHAT A FOOLISH QUESTION!

Don't you know, haven't you heard of GODFREY ASCHMANN, the great importer and Philadelphia grower and shipper of this well-known ever-lasting green decorative plant, the Araucaria Excelsa Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca? We began 25 years ago with only 100 plants. Our 1910 importation is—

LOOK! LOOK!! 10,000

and more will be coming this fall, after I make my selection of the choicest on my trip to Belgium, the growing district of the world for ARAUCARIAS, AZALEAS, PALMS, ETC.

WELL INFORMED. It is well known by the trade that for many years past I have gone personally to Belgium to select for our customers the best of Araucarias, Azaleas, Palms, etc. What bargains can be picked up there for cash!

EMPTY HOUSES WON'T PAY.

Now is your time to fill your empty houses with something that will grow into money for you while you sleep. Araucarias will do it. Please look at our special low prices for superior stock.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 12, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00 to $1.25.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50; 4-in., 30c.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 2½ to 3-in., 10c; 4-in., 25c.

Azaleas, well shaped plants. Deutsche Perle, Niobe, Simon Mardner, Mme. Van der Cruyssen, De Schryveriana, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00.

Rubber Plants, 6-in., 35c and 40c.

Pteris Wilsoni, 6 in. pans, nice and bushy, 25c.

Asparagus Plumosus, 2½-in., 3c; 3-in., 5c; 4-in., 10c.

All plants 25 at 100 rate. Cash with order, please. All plants must travel at risk of purchaser only.

BALTIMORE.
 The Market.

There is a perceptible improvement in trade all around, and the quality of the incoming flowers advances. The usual avenues of activity are filling up, the streets are lively with the returning urban population and on every side there seems a hopeful anticipation of a good season. The outdoor flowers are still too abundant, but good grades moved fairly well Saturday.

A marked improvement is noticeable in all outdoor vegetables, flowering shrubs, etc., as we have been favored with several heavy rains.

Various Notes.

The Maryland state fair, held at Timonium, Md., was a great success, and many gardeners and florists attended. The farmers and private gardeners had a display of their products worthy of note. Isaac H. Moss had one of the best displays of pot plants ever seen at the fair and received first prize. James Hamilton had a display of pot plants and nursery stock, which won second prize. J. J. Perry and Charles S. Seybold were the judges.

C. J. Bolgiano, of J. Bolgiano & Sons, has placed a large contract for potted plants for next spring's sales. Q.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE coal strike is ended, but that doesn't mean that a fuel famine has been averted. Stock up before the car shortage becomes a factor in the situation. Get your sheds full—and keep them full if you can.

THE coal cars now are nearly all in use. The American Railway Association figures that in the latter half of August 8,662 coal cars previously idle went back into service. Practically all the surplus cars then were in the west, where mines still were idle, there being already actually a shortage in the east.

COAL STRIKE ENDED.

The Illinois coal strike is ended.

It is estimated that over 70,000 miners were idle from April 1 to September 9, that 900 mines, great and small, were affected and that close to 20,000,000 tons of coal was cut out of this season's supply.

Although some of the men went back to work the day after the peace pact was signed, it will require several weeks to get all the mines into shape to produce to full capacity—and by then the car shortage will affect deliveries.

Under the terms of the settlement the miners get everything they asked for. Under the new wage scale they get an average increase of pay of 8 cents per ton. Included in this is the payment of shot firers' wages by the operators and raises in days' wages for all classes of mine help. Also, the operators are required to provide certain safety appliances and to observe precautions which it is expected will raise the cost of mining another 2 or 3 cents per ton. The agreement runs to April 1, 1912.

As a result of the settlement it is expected that the market prices of coal will rule about 10 cents per ton higher than under the old agreement, for as in every other case where labor exacts more money, the mine operators will pass the rise on to the consumers.

GAS OR COAL FOR FUEL.

Please tell us whether gas at 27 cents per thousand feet, for use in a hot water boiler, would be much more expensive than soft coal at $3 per ton. Would the gas be injurious to greenhouse plants? We use about eight tons of coal per month. Our place is in the western part of New York state.

G. B.

The relative economy of gas at 27 cents per thousand feet and soft coal at $3 per ton would depend quite largely upon the quality of the two classes of fuel. Ordinarily, however, although the actual expense for the coal might be somewhat less than when gas is used, if even a small allowance is made for the labor of caring for the fire and removing the ashes the gas will be found the cheaper.

Gas is quite injurious to plants and should never be allowed to enter the greenhouse proper. Care should be taken to have the boiler room carefully shut off from the greenhouse.

without cost. Would this extra pressure help the system any? J. T.

The effect of increasing the height of the expansion tank is to raise the temperature at which the water in the heater will boil. This makes it possible to increase the amount of heat which can be obtained for a given amount of radiation, but if there is no trouble from the boiling over of the tank, in its present location, and if the amount of radiation is sufficient to maintain the temperature desired in the severest weather, nothing would be gained by giving the tank a greater elevation.

PIPING IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Please give me some instructions about the piping of my greenhouse. It is 21x72 and eleven feet high. It is built alongside my old house, with an 11-inch gutter between them. On the other side there will be three feet of glass. I intend to use a 3-inch flow and twelve 2-inch returns. Would that be enough or should the flow be larger? The old house has a 3-inch flow and fifteen 1 1/4-inch returns. I want a night temperature of 52 to 55 degrees in zero weather. What radiation should the boiler have for the two houses, each 21x72x11? S. S.

There should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature suitable for carnations with a 3-inch flow and twelve 2-inch returns, but it will be found more satisfactory if three 2 1/2-inch flows and nine 2-inch returns are used. To heat two houses 21x72x11 feet, the boiler should be rated for heating 1,600 square feet of radiating surface.

IN THE CANADIAN NORTHWEST.

Please state the best method of heating the following houses with hot water, in the Canadian northwest. The houses will be used for carnations. The temperature outside is occasionally 45 degrees below zero. There are two houses, on the ridge and furrow plan, running east and west. Each house is 21 1/4 x 100, of King construction, with five feet of glass in the sides and two feet of boards. The height to the gutter is seven feet; to the ridge, thirteen feet. The situation is rather exposed. The floor of the boiler room is six feet below the level of the greenhouse floor. I should like to use 4-inch or 3-inch flows, as we have a quantity of these; 2-inch returns would be preferred. A. M.

While the heating of the house under the conditions outlined will require a large amount of radiation, it is quite certain that by using three 3-inch flow pipes and eighteen 2-inch returns it will be an easy matter to maintain the temperature desired. If the end of the house is exposed, the coils should extend around the end as well as along the side walls.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

NEW YORK BELTING

PACKING CO. LTD
91-93 CHAMBERS ST. NEW YORK

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Last week was the first week of the fall season, but, contrary to the usual run of work at this time, which is generally for wedding decorations and a revival of other social events, we experienced an unusual lot of funeral work, which has kept the retailers busy for some time past. This kept valley well cleaned up and at times the supply was inadequate. Beauties sold best on the first and last days of the week, and the supply of roses was fully up to the demand. Asters and gladioli did not fare so well, especially the former, due, no doubt, to the inferior quality; while any amount of them are coming in daily, it is a rather difficult task to fill many orders calling for really good stock. Smilax is none too plentiful, but there is enough other green goods to help out.

Various Notes.

George Loeffler, a Milwaukee lad who received his training in this city and then spent several years as journeyman, opened a flower store at 1337 Walnut street Wednesday, September 7. He is an active young man and ought to make good.

Charles Menger, who has built up a large retail trade at 526 Twenty-seventh street, found that in order to keep pace he had to add more glass. He is busy these days putting the finishing touches to a house, 20x40 feet, which is to be utilized for decorative stock exclusively.

In talking about the prospects for exhibition and commercial Beauties and other roses for the coming season, H. V. Hunkel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., says it looks as though we will strike it just right.

W. A. Kennedy, of the C. C. Pollworth Co., has returned from an ex-

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

The hot weather is evidently over for the season, and with it has departed the usual summer dullness in the florists' trade. The summer business this year, however, has been comparatively good and the prospects for fall and winter are unusually bright.

Carnation planting is about completed and some flowers of the new crop are being cut. Stock generally is looking healthy and vigorous.

Various Notes.

Houses and heating plants are being overhauled and put in shape for the coming winter. Considerable improvements are in progress and others are contemplated.

W. W. King will soon occupy a fine new store on the site of his old one.

One of the most notable features of the year in Utah is the extensive increase in the planting of roses. The Salt Lake Floral Co., which has been growing fine roses here for a number of years, has nearly doubled its planting this season. Each of the following firms has also added one house of roses: C. E. Cramer, the Rieben Floral Co. and Thomas Hobday, all of this city; Robert Miller, of Farmington; Altman Bros., of Ogden. This shows some faith in the future, considering that many in this vicinity have previously tried to produce the queen of flowers and have failed. To justify this faith, there are now some nice young roses on the market and more coming.

MONTGOMERY on Grafted Roses, sent by The Review for 25 cents.

Money Talks

Our machine can not talk, but it saves money. That is saying a good bit.

Remember the name ADVANCE, for it means the highest quality of material and workmanship that latest type machinery and modern methods of manufacturing can produce.

We make ventilating machinery.

Write for prices and circulars.

The Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.

Chrysanthemum

By Arthur Herrington

Formerly president Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The most complete and comprehensive work on the cultivation of the chrysanthemum that has yet been published in America. Its scope and character may be gleaned from the list of contents, which comprises chapters on composts; planting; benches, boxes or pots; general cultural details; crown and terminal buds; feeding, its object and application; care of the buds; exhibition and judging; specimen plants, plants in pots; raising from seed and hybridizing; sports; hardy chrysanthemums; chrysanthemums for south and west; insect pests and diseases; classification and selection of varieties for special purposes; history of the chrysanthemum, etc. The book will be welcomed for the lucid, comprehensive, as well as the practical character of its contents. Handsomely illustrated. 168 pages, 5x7 inches. Price 50c postpaid.

The discarded tub and paddle method of making putty

The L. & B. machine that mixes and rolls the putty

Putty and Why so Much is Poor

Don't blame it all on the poor materials, because some of the trouble is in the making. Mighty poor bread, you know, is often made from the very best flour. There is much in the knowing how!

Every pound of our putty is put through a machine that not only mixes it and keeps on mixing it till it is thoroughly mixed, but all lumps are ground to powder by a heavy steel roller. The result is, this putty has a smoothness and a sticking power impossible with other putties.

The old tub and paddle mixers used to talk of the number of hundred pounds they made in a year, but our machine men's language is in tons.

If you want this Simon Pure, Stay Put Putty, order a 100 lb. tub as a try out. Your money back if it is not all we say it is.

NOTICE

To all American Nurserymen and Seedsmen desiring to keep in touch with commercial horticulture in England and the continent of Europe: Your best means of doing this is to take in the

Horticultural Advertiser

Our circulation covers the whole trade in Great Britain and the cream of the European firms. Impartial reports of all novelties, etc. Paper free on receipt of 75 cents, covering cost of postage yearly. As the H. A. is a purely trade medium, applicants should, with the subscription, send a copy of their catalogue or other evidence that they belong to the nursery or seed trade.

H & Co. Iron Rafter House

It is a construction about which there is absolutely no doubt of its endurance and lightness. No reason for wondering whether it is worth the money. It has stood staunch and true for years, with never a blow down —never a cave in. It is a record worth considering.

How to Save Money

No. 4

TAKE advice where it is good. The makers of greenhouse material are designing houses every day for all kinds of stock and purposes and they know what the growers in various parts of the country are doing. Everything new in construction and every advantage in building comes to their notice. You can many times save much money by asking for this advice before building. Your houses may not be operating as economically as they should and you may not get all the stock you should from your benches. Before you put up that new house write us for some information about construction.

THE CASKET DESIGN.

The casket cover may be considered as the king of floral designs. It is among funeral flowers what the bride's shower bouquet is among flowers for personal adornment. Not only does it represent an outlay of money greater than can with the best of taste be put into any other form of design, but it makes a call upon the skill of the designer beyond that made by any ordinary funeral piece. Customarily the casket cover is just what its name implies; it is just a blanket of flowers, and nothing more. But in the accompanying illustration a casket cover of unusual character is shown; it combines with the blanket feature all the characteristics of a made-up design, and a society emblem at that. This casket cover was made by Charles P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., for the funeral of Thomas Wentworth Harrison, a thirty-third degree Mason, who at the time of his death was sovereign grand inspector general for the state of Kansas. While the design serves in every way the purposes of a casket cover, it also embodies the Masonic insignia in most pleasing fashion.

AUTOMOBILE DELIVERY.

John V. Laver, who operates the Lakeside Greenhouses, on East Sixth street at Erie, Pa., with a retail store downtown, finds the cost of delivery by automobile to be about equal to the cost of horse delivery, but the auto has the advantage of greater speed and also an advertising value.

The illustration on page 8 shows the three vehicles, two horse-drawn and one auto, Mr. Laver employs in his business, and also his pleasure car. Both the automobiles are Buicks. The delivery car is the regular commercial vehicle turned out by the Buick concern. The regular machine has a paneled box, as shown in the picture, and no top; the top was built on the box specially for Mr. Laver's order. It is a twenty-two horse-power machine, capable of carrying 1,200 to 1,500 pounds. The engine is under the seat and out of the way, giving a good, roomy box. The distance from the back of the seat to the tail gate is seventy-four inches and the box is forty-five inches wide, with a height of fifty-six inches. The cost of the car was $1,400 and Mr. Laver, who has used it since last spring, considers it a good investment.

COST OF AUTO DELIVERY.

One of the principal items of cost in the operation of automobiles is the charge for depreciation; you buy a motor for, say, $2,000 and in three years it is not worth over $500 if you try to turn it into real money. Florists who are thinking of buying motor cars for delivery purposes should take into consideration that the depreciation in value is likely to be exceedingly rapid in the next few years because the trend of the motor business is such that falling prices are looked for. Automobile manufacturers and sellers are predicting decreases in production for 1911. The reasons stated include the fact that indicated production would compare as follows with production during the last fifteen years:

	Cars built.	Value.
1911	177,000	$232,000,000
1910	185,000	242,000,000
1909	82,000	98,400,000
1908	55,400	83,100,000
1904	20,100	40,200,000
1899	600	1,290,000
1895	70	157,500

Of these totals the majority are pleasure cars, but the number used for commercial purposes is constantly growing, and it is here that the future of the automobile industry seems to lie. Most manufacturers apparently realize this and are endeavoring to turn out a serviceable and economical truck at a reasonable price, and say that as far as operating expenses are concerned the auto truck is far cheaper than the horse-drawn dray.

From present indications the coming season will show a curtailment of around 8,000 cars, at an aggregate value of $10,000,000. Taking the average estimate of production for 1910.

A year or two ago if a florist wanted to get a motor for delivery purposes, he had to pay a premium to get some one to build a top on a stock chassis; the manufacturers all were too busy building pleasure vehicles to pay any attention to anything but keeping up with the demand. THE CANNA OF TODAY.

It was the third Saturday afternoon in September, one of those bright, warm days when light and atmosphere favor flowers, bringing out their colors most vividly after the cool night. The Chester valley, always beautiful, was especially lovely that afternoon. A fair division of warmth and moisture had aided the fertile soil in bringing the crops to perfection. On a hillside about a mile outside the town of West Grove there was a gorgeous sight. A field of cannas, rich in coloring, was in full bloom. Beyond, another field with the colors massed and strikingly contrasted, each bringing out the other strongly; away off in the distance still another field, the bright hues of the flowers blending softly with the green beyond. It is doubtful whether there is such another sight anywhere else in the world.

Antoine Wintzer, the dean of canna hybridizers in America, was waiting; it needed but a moment to get the book of pedigrees, and the outside world was forgotten. A dozen pages of field notes fails entirely to give an adequate idea of the beauty of those canna fields. The notes are cold; they merely speak of names, of crosses, of types and not of wondrous size, of vivid color of tints and shades and harmony. With full knowledge of my inability to convey more than a faint impression of the canna of today these lines are written.

Antoine Wintzer has 3,000 canna seeding been carried on that the number of varieties retained as worthy of further trial, retained after a most rigid examination, is large. The aim for the last few years has been chiefly directed toward the whites and pinks. A pure white canna, first-class in every respect, has been Mr. Wintzer's goal. Alsace was the first important step forward. Then came Mont Blanc, with its pure white flowers of finer texture and larger truss. Now Mr. Wintzer has a half dozen or more seedlings from Mont Blanc or from Blanche Wintzer that promise an improvement on their parents. A white canna with large, full flowers that are not buried in the foliage, strong habit and early flowering is Mr. Wintzer's object.

Mrs. Alfred F. Conard, the beautiful pink canna introduced this year, is a distinct improvement on anything Mr. Wintzer has done so far. His aim for years has been to produce a pink canna of the shade of the La France rose, and in Mrs. Conard this has been accomplished. There are a number of pinks in the field of seedlings that bid fair to equal and possibly surpass the standard bearer. Another year will show. Another pink variety, a seedling of two years ago, was of such unusual merit that only a touch of lavender in the pink prevented its selection in place of Mrs. Conard.

The dwarf canna is receiving especial attention. There are a half dozen seedlings or more that are not over twelve or fifteen inches high; perfectly healthy, vigorous, foliage well developed, flowers large and showy. This type Mr. Wintzer is trying to develop, believing that it has a great future for flowering in pots and for borders, or even for solid beds. The seedlings the wild cannas is that the introduction of new blood may produce greater improvements, certainly greater variations.

The improvement of late has been almost entirely confined to the gladiolus-flowered type. The sterility of the orchid-flowering class is a bar to their development. Of the 3,000 seedlings this year, only one is orchid-flowered. Had the results been proportionate to the endeavor, there would have been at least 500 of these orchid-flowering sorts. It is a question whether the world of flowers is a loser thereby, the gladiolus-flowered varieties being so much more desirable in every way than the orchid-flowering class, though perhaps this may be a question of taste. When it is considered that the standard of the gladiolus-flowered type today is a canna that will bear three or four flowers erect on long, stiff stems, each truss to be compact, with flower two inches in diameter, color clear and bright (anything that fades or is washy will not pass), foliage broad, luxuriant, it is pretty hard to get an orchid-flowering variety, with its tall, rather lanky growth, that will compare favorably for nine out of ten positions for which cannas are required.

A list of Mr. Wintzer's productions includes many of the best varieties in all the large collections. Besides the whites and pinks, he has produced some peerless reds. His efforts this season will be to produce a yellow that will distance his standard bearer, Buttercup. The thought that time is the greatest bar to complete success is met by the plan of indoor cultivation in order to secure seed of certain choice breeds each six months rather than each year, with the belief that vigor would not thereby be impaired.

A farewell glance over the long rows of standard varieties, showing their vigor of growth and brilliancy of color unimpaired, showing, too, clearly, the improvement of each five years, sometimes of each year, was a sight that will not fade in memory. Phil.

FREESIAS FOR THE MARKET.

Please give us some information on the growing of freesias for the market, stating how long to grow them from the bulb, how to handle them, the needed temperature and the best variety to force. R. A. W.

The earliest lot of freesias may be had in bloom for Christmas if placed in pans or flats as soon as the bulbs arrive, usually the first week in August. By securing and planting bulbs now, you can have them in flower by the end of January or you can easily hold them back a month later in a cold house. Flats should contain four inches of soil, and one 24x12x4 will hold sixty to seventy-five bulbs, according to their size. They grow finely in pots and pans. An 8-inch pan will hold twelve to fifteen bulbs and a 10-inch one twenty bulbs.

A suitable compost is one-half fibrous loam, one-fourth well rotted and pulverized cow manure and one-fourth leaf-mold, not too much decayed, adding a good dash of sharp sand and a little soot. After putting in the soil, water well, place in a coldframe and cover with board shutters until growths appear; then gradually give full light. The bulbs will start in about two weeks.

lings on trial this season. Of these fully 300 have been marked for further trial. His efforts in securing promising varieties are more than usually successful; the experience of seventeen years, aided by a favorable season, has produced splendid results. A flower that would have been considered an improvement ten years ago was scarcely noticed now; size, substance, color, form, foliage, each and all must be better than in some existing variety or the claimant is discarded. With such wonderful skill has Mr. Wintzer's hybridizing of the dwarf type were some bronze, some green in foliage; one, a pink flower, had an immense truss suggesting great possibilities.

Another interesting feature in the canna trials is the importation of seed from the wild canna from Costa Rica in Central America. These cannas are mostly green-leaved (a few are bronze), with tiny red or yellow flowers. Their foliage was lancelike, in marked contrast to the broad, drooping foliage of our highly cultivated varieties. Mr. Wintzer's idea in experimenting with Iris Germanica Mme. Chereau, One of the Best Varieties in its Class.

Keep in a frame until the end of September; then place on a sunny bench or, in the case of flats, on a shelf. A carnation house temperature is suitable, 50 to 54 degrees being as warm as it is advisable to keep them. A higher temperature will give flowers lacking in substance. Later batches can be grown 10 degrees cooler, and a succession from Christmas until the end of March may be had.

The finest of all freesias is Fischer's Purity. Bulbs of this splendid sort are this season scarce, and almost unpurchasable. The next best variety is re-fracta alba, which, when well grown, almost equals Purity in size, but is not so pure a white. C. W.

IRIS MME. CHEREAU.

There is an extremely large list of the so-called German irises, which are not Iris Germanica at all, but hybrids of various species. Naturally they vary much in height, time of flowering, size of blooms, color, etc. They may be had in almost endless variety, but most of the dealers have cut down their lists to a dozen or two, selecting more or less according to personal tastes. There is, however, one variety which appears in practically every list. This is Mme. Chereau, a hybrid of I. aphylla. This is the tallest grower of all the worth-while sorts and the blooms are among the largest. Standards and falls both are white, elegantly penciled with violet, the edges being quite dark blue, giving the bloom a most striking appearance. The fragrance is no more than slight, and it is the only thing in which this flower lacks.

The use of the so-called German irises is steadily increasing, for they are absolutely hardy, as beautiful in form, texture and coloring as an orchid and many are delightfully fragrant. They are not particular as to soil. It is an old fallacy that irises require a marshy or moist situation; exactly the opposite is true. They will grow anywhere that any plant will thrive, but they do best in well drained situations. The earliest sorts bloom in May, the later ones in June, the flowering, and planting, time being coincident with that of the peony.

GREEN FLY ON VIOLETS.

I am forwarding under separate cover some leaves and a small plant of a double English violet. I never have had any trouble with them until this year, but I think I shall lose one-half of my crop by this disease. I should like to have a remedy, if you can tell me about one. I have plants that would take a 6-inch pot, but the one I send you is among the poorest. Some of them die. C. P. M.

The violet leaves received were covered with green aphids. This, in itself, is sufficient to account for their poor condition. As they are so badly afected, it will pay you to dip the foliage in a pail or tub of tobacco extract before housing them. The nicotine will not damage the leaves if you mix it according to the directions on the cans in which you purchase it. You must also fumigate once a week after planting them inside, in order to keep them clean. You will find some of the nicotine papers safe and inexpensive. Where the foliage dies off entirely and the plants are sickly, it will not pay you to move them. C. W.

GOV. HERRICK VIOLET.

I saw a note in The Review for August 11 on Gov. Herrick violet that does not do the variety justice. The Herrick violet should be planted early and given a night temperature of 50 degrees instead of 40 degrees, with plenty water, as it is a swamp violet by nature. If it is set late and run cold the flowers will be short-stemmed, without fragrance and few in number. I have 2,000 plants in the house and am picking good flowers with 4-inch stems. I expect them to bloom till May, which no other violet will do. I picked last season 150,000 flowers from 1,500 plants. Does that look as though it does not bloom in the winter? V. Rice.

ASTERS FOR FORCING.

What are the best varieties of asters in lavender, pink and white, for forcing? Also, what is the mode of culture for these varieties? When should the seed be sown and when should one expect the main crop to come in bloom? J. H.

The earliest forcing aster is Dawn of

The Herrick violet should be planted early and given a night temperature of 50 degrees instead of 40 degrees, with plenty water, as it is a swamp violet by nature. If it is set late and run cold the flowers will be short stemmed, without fragrance and few in number. I have 2,000 plants in the house and am picking good flowers with 4 inch stems. I expect them to bloom till May, which no other violet will do. I picked last season 150,000 flowers from 1,500 plants. Does that look as though it does not bloom in the winter?

ASTERS FOR FORCING.

What are the best varieties of asters in lavender, pink and white, for forcing? Also, what is the mode of culture for these varieties? When should the seed be sown and when should one expect the main crop to come in bloom?

J. H.

The earliest forcing aster is Dawn of Day; color, pure white. This has been cut under glass late in April, but blooms freely in May and June. Queen of the Market, also called Queen of the Earlies, is valuable for early cutting. The plants have a branching habit, and the flowers are very double and well formed. You can purchase separate shades of this aster, including lavender, pink and white.

For an early indoor crop of asters, sow the seed about January 15. Prick off into flats when of sufficient size.

Later plant out in benches containing four to five inches of rich soil, allowing eight to ten inches between the plants. The plants like abundant ventilation, full sun, and a night winter minimum of 48 to 50 degrees. Keep the surface well stirred, and if you want large flowers, disbud as you do chrysanthemums. As a general rule, however, it pays to allow all the flowers to come. They are quite serviceable, especially for funeral work. The Queen of the Earlies blooms early in June, under glass. C. W.

that the beds are not well drained. I understand there are tiles running through the land every fifty feet, but the beds are cut out of the solid clay and so hold the water. The piece of land is 75x150 feet, with a 4-foot walk all around, one walk through the center lengthwise and three the short way, thus cutting the whole tract into eight squares, with four beds in each square. The walks are well made, containing about one foot of cinders, with two inches of dressing on top.

This does not seem to be a choice place for perennials in its present state. I thought I might run two tiles lengthwise, with a branch arm into each bed, or that I might cut through the sod, which is only eighteen inches wide from the walks to the beds; that is, I might cut a trench about one foot wide through the sod into each bed, put a little cinders there and replace the sod, and so let the walks drain the beds. Do you think either of those plans all right, or can you suggest something better? R. P.

Geraniums

GERANIUM CULTURE.

Will you please give me advice as to when and how to take geranium cuttings? Should I pull all the leaves off, or when potted in the fall let them dry off, or should the leaves be left on? When is the best time to take cuttings for Decoration day? I took my cuttings in October last year, but they got almost too tall by Decoration day. What is the best mixture for potting geraniums? C. U.

October is a good month in which to take cuttings. The loss from damping off will be much less than if they were inserted in August or September, the colder nights helping to harden the wood. All leaves should be cut off, except the small ones at the top of each cutting. If you leave them on, it will simply mean endless trouble picking them off in a decaying condition. Cuttings put in during October will make excellent plants for Memorial day. The reason your plants got so tall was probably because you neglected topping them. About all the cuttings put in at this season should give a good cutting in January or early February, which can be rooted in gentle heat in a 2-inch pot of sandy loam and later shifted to a 3-inch pot, in which it will bloom for Memorial day. The fall cuttings should be flowered in 4-inch pots.

Avoid using much animal manure in the compost for geraniums. Any added to the loam should be thoroughly decayed, so that it will crumble through the hands. A mixture of three-fourths loam, one-fourth old manure and a 4-inch pot of fine bone to each wheelbarrow load of soil makes a suitable potting medium for the final shift. A little sand should also be added. The cuttings will root well either in flats or benches of clean, sharp sand, or in 2-inch pots of sandy loam. Keep moderately moist until rooted, then much drier until potted on. The dryness causes the cuttings to make a mass of fibrous roots. C. W.

JEAN VIAUD GERANIUM.

The accompanying illustration shows Geranium Jean Viaud as grown by the Columbus Floral Co., Columbus, Miss. The cutting was started where the plant now stands, three years ago, and has since yielded an income of fully $150. The plant is seven feet high and four feet in width, although it has been cut back three times on account of close quarters. There have been 275 cuttings propagated and sold from this plant this season and at the time the picture was made there were 125 cuttings in sand. At one time this year the plant carried fifty blooms and many plants have been sold from it at from 5 to 50 cents each. The Review will be glad to hear from any florist who can beat this record with any one geranium plant grown under glass.

DRAINING A GARDEN.

I should like to get your advice with regard to the land where I intend to plant my perennials. This is a new place and the recent rains show me

The roots of about all our common field crops, and also many perennial flowering plants, penetrate much deeper than we have any idea of, if the soil conditions are to their liking. Drainage deepens the available soil. The roots of plants will not live in that part below the water line. If drains are placed two feet deep, the soil to that depth is warmed and has more perfect aëration. If the drains are placed three to four feet deep, it will be even better, as, even when the lower soil is less rich in plant food than the upper portion, roots will penetrate it if it is well drained. In droughty seasons crops thrive better on drained land, as the water level is lowered and the roots can thus reach greater depths and retain moisture more effectually.

In clayey soil such as you have, the drainage afforded by 12-inch paths is quite inadequate. If you want the best results and are willing to go to the necessary expense, you should lay lines of tiles every twenty feet lengthwise or crosswise of the garden, according to how the slope is. These tiles should not be less than three feet below the surface and should have the necessary slope. A depth of four feet would be even better, for the deeper your drains, the greater the depth of warmed, well-aired and sweetened soil you will have for the roots of your plants. If you reduce the depth, it will be impossible for your plants to do so well, especially in dry weather.

Two-inch tiles will answer, and it is better to connect these all in one main. If 4-inch tiles are used for the main, one of this size will carry five times as much water as the 2-inch; a 5-inch main will carry seven and one-half times as much. Avoid all sharp curves. While a fall of three to six inches in 100 feet will answer if the tiles are carefully laid, twelve inches will be better. One main outlet is better than a large number, as it is easily marked and kept free of obstructions.

A good plan would be to lay seven lines of 6-edged or 8-edged 2-inch tiles lengthwise and let them enter a 4-inch main. This would drain your garden thoroughly; but do not lay the tiles nearer the surface than three feet, and a foot deeper will be still better. This may seem like a big job at the outset, but it will pay you in the long run. A popular misconception is that water runs down from above into drains. The exact opposite is the case, as it is forced up from below.

The joints should be laid as closely as possible, in order to keep out dirt. If the tiles are below the reach of frost, damage is unlikely. Use tiles which have been hard-burned. Round ones will answer just as well as 6-sided or 8-sided ones, if carefully laid. C. W.

A NOVEL VIEW.

Standing at the center of the houses of Plant B of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill., one gets the view shown in the accompanying illustration. It probably is without parallel in the greenhouse establishments of this country, for here the view is looking through fifty-three houses, each twenty-seven feet wide, making a distance of 1,431 feet in a straight line, in addition to which the walk goes on through boiler sheds and alleyways another 197 feet, considerably more than a quarter of a mile. The car track is as straight as though laid by railroad engineers and is a great labor-saver. Materials go in that way, and cut blooms come out, reducing the number of steps to the minimum and effecting an important economy of time. One of the things the Poehlmanns learned years ago is that equipment is cheaper than labor, that it costs money to have men walk half a mile or so out of the houses and in again, and that a reduction of the number of trips necessary and an increase in the size of the loads carried effected an important increase in the time actually spent on the stock. The larger the block of houses is, the larger the proportion of time consumed going in and out. The concrete walks and the tracks and the cars have paid for themselves many times over.

There is an interesting perspective in this picture. The distance is so great that the appearance is almost that of a solid wall of asbestos covered pipes. The big steam main overhead is 10-inch pipe. Note the return by its side. In each house there are four benches and a 2-inch flow is taken off the main for each bench, making a total in the picture of 424 pipes, 212 on a side, running from the overhead main to the header beneath a bench. In addition there are 848 pipe supports for tie wires. There are three 1½-inch pipes under each bench, or 1,272 in the fifty-three houses in this block. What a showing it makes of business for the pipe man!

The asbestos covering of all the flow pipes serves a double purpose: it conserves heat, which is a saving, and it keeps the center of the houses from being too warm, which in the aggregate adds considerably to the production of first quality stock.

PRIMULA OBCONICA.

Would Primula obconica from 2½-inch pots be in bloom for Christmas? J. M. J.

Primula obconica now in 2½-inch pots would be rather small for Christmas, but should flower moderately by that date. Move them into a greenhouse kept at 48 to 50 degrees at night about the end of September. Probably they will need a larger sized pot to flower in, or they make up nicely in 5-inch and 6-inch pans, if the same colors are selected for each pan. C. W.

NAME OF PLANT.

What is the name of the plant sent under separate cover and what is it used for? We had a sample sent with our other seeds. A. W.

This is the common sweet basil, Ocimum Basilicum, a favorite herb, the foliage of which is considerably used for flavoring purposes. The shoots should be cut while in flower, tied in bunches and dried for winter use. The seed can be sown any time after May 1. The plant is quite a rapid grower, as you will have noticed. C. W.

FORMULA FOR THRIPS.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Hinsdale, recently stated that he had obtained from Wendland & Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill., a formula for the use of brown sugar and Paris green that was wonderfully effective against thrips. The Review asked Mr. Keimel to give the whole trade the benefit, and he has complied as follows:

"Our formula is: Take five pounds of brown sugar to one pound of Paris green; mix dry; run through a fine screen to take out lumps.

"To apply, take two ounces of the mixture to two gallons of water, in sprayer for 200 feet of bench; apply this in the afternoon late, or after syringing, while the plants are still wet, and if clear the next day syringe off to prevent the leaves burning.

"If used about once a week this will keep the plants clean, except possibly in April and May, while lilacs and snowballs are in bloom. During that time it could be used oftener, but never apply a second time without syringing the first application off, or it will burn the plants. Do not mix lime or any other alkali with this, as it keeps the thrips from eating the sugar and kills the effect of the poison."

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Dutch Bulb Compost.

The Dutch bulbs are now arriving and if the soil for these has not been prepared, get a good pile ready now. Two-thirds well decayed, turfy loam, one-third well decayed cow manure and sufficient sharp sand for porosity will answer well. If no cow manure can be had, old, well rotted hotbed manure may be used to good advantage. It is better not to use any bone or chemical fertilizers in the potting compost. Some growers mix in some leaf-mold and this is a good plan where soils are naturally stiff and heavy. In light soils, however, it is better left out. Chop the loam down thoroughly and after mixing throw it up in a compost heap, where it is much easier to throw off heavy rains than when spread thinly over a larger surface.

Show Pelargoniums.

Pelargoniums, which were rested on their sides for some weeks, pruned back and kept well syringed but rather dry at the root, will now have broken away freely and should be shaken out and repotted, using pots as small as the roots can be conveniently gotten into. The longest roots can be pruned back. Water carefully until the roots find their way around the sides of the pots. It is an easy matter to rot the plants after repotting. They are better kept under glass, at least for a time. If necessary, they can be kept in a cold-frame until November, when the majority of the mums are out of the way.

Cyclamens.

The earliest cyclamen plants now have quantities of flower buds showing; here and there a flower is already open. These should be picked off. The earliest date when cyclamens are salable is Thanksgiving, but sales at Christmas are generally the best. Grow the plants cool and airy, and as the sun's rays are now steadily on the decline, reduce the shading. Where blinds are used, they can now be dispensed with, except for three or four hours in the middle of bright days. Look over the plants every few days. Throw away any sickly ones. Scratch over the surface soil. Remove any bad foliage and weeds. Spray the plants once a day, but do it sufficiently early so that they will be dry before night-fall. Toward the end of the present month place the earliest plants on a bench in a house kept at 48 to 50 degrees at night. A shelf in a carnation house will also do nicely. These plants will be in fine shape for Christmas.

The present is the correct time to make a liberal sowing of seed. Do not purchase anything cheap; the best strains are always the cheapest in the long run. As a general rule, red is the greatest seller at Christmas; pink also moves well. Pure white is indispensable and sells almost any time. The dark maroon and purplish shades no one wants at any price. A compost of one-half well decayed loam and one-half leaf-mold, with plenty of sand added, makes a suitable soil in which to sow cyclamen seed. Pans or flats can be used. These should be well drained. Make the surface soil smooth. Scatter the seeds as evenly over it as possible. Then, with a smooth piece of board, press the soil to make it quite level. Dust a little covering of fine soil over this from a screen and, after watering, place in a warm, moist house, keeping the soil covered with paper until the little seedlings appear.

Brief Reminders.

As tuberous begonias, gloxinias and achimenes pass out of flower, place them in a frame with glass protection and do not discontinue watering at once, nor throw them on their sides under the benches to rest and be eaten by vermin, as is too often done.

Fumigation of all houses once a week will keep aphides in check. Do not wait until you see your plants alive with them.

To thoroughly ripen the wood on the early pot grown rambler roses, reduce the water supply, keeping the plants in the fullest sunshine.

Look over the smilax beds regularly and do not neglect the strings. A few days' delay will cause endless labor disentangling the shoots.

While dahlias are still in good bloom, look over them and see that all are correctly named. Look over collections at your local fairs and make a note of desirable kinds to purchase for another season.

Cinerarias and calceolarias want no fire heat for some time yet. Keep them in a coldframe, shaded from strong sunlight, and do not allow them to become potbound.

Reduce the shading in the houses. Outside of palms, some tropical plants and ferns, the bulk of plants now need full sunshine.

This is a good season to attend to any outside painting and glazing. The work can be more comfortably done now than during the hot summer months.

Keep seedling biennials and perennials weeded and constantly cultivated, to keep them growing well.

The nights are getting a little cool for poinsettias in frames or unheated houses. A little warmth in the pipes at night only is needed. Avoid much heat until the bracts show.

Keep primulas spaced apart frequently, especially the Chinese section. Pick off any flowers showing thus early.

Stake pot chrysanthemums, which have grown in bush form, now that the buds are set. The less conspicuous these supports are, the better.

Lift and pot a batch of Coreopsis grandiflora. These will prove useful in late winter and early spring.

BOSTON.Census Count Is 670,585.

While there is as yet no great activity in cut flower circles, the demand is slowly improving, and the dullness, which has prevailed for some time, is gradually passing, for which growers and salesmen are devoutly grateful. Roses are quite scarce and have advanced in price. Quite a few show considerable mildew on the foliage, but others are of good quality. The summer varieties, Carnot and Kaiserin, are less in evidence. More Killarneys are coming in. Richmond as yet is poor. Bride and Maid are fewer. Such Beauties as arrive meet with a fairly steady sale. Carnations, while more plentiful, do not as yet cut much figure, the flowers being small and the stems short. The chrysanthemums seen are chiefly Golden Glow, which make $1.50 to $2 per dozen. A few single violets have already appeared.

Dahlias are selling well, although the quality leaves much to be desired. Asters are less abundant and no further glut of these is now likely. Gladioli are getting smaller, but make fairly good prices, the best selling at $4 to $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley is scarce and higher in price. There is an adequate supply of lilies. There are plenty of cornflowers at 50 cents per hundred; also cosmos and other outdoor subjects.

Gardenias are not plentiful, but the demand is light. Cattleyas are much more plentiful, especially Cattleya labiata. Vanda cærulea, Dendrobium Phalæopsis and other sorts are also seen. A slight improvement is noticeable in sales of asparagus and adiantum. The demand for ferns, palms and other foliage plants is picking up. All the stores are stocking them heavily at present.

New England Dahlia Society.

The third annual exhibition of the New England Dahlia Society was held in Horticultural hall, September 16 to 18, and proved a fine one, the exhibits entirely filling the main hall and loggia. The show was surprisingly good, in view of the fact that no money prizes whatever were awarded, blue, red and white ribbons taking their place. The quality of flowers shown has never been surpassed here, and their arrangement was excellent. It was pleasing to see so many entries in the class for vases of eighteen blooms in distinct shades of colors on long stems, of all the various types, the cactus, decorative and pompon showing up particularly well. The cactus varieties, as usual, brought out fine entries. The awards were as follows:

Forty-eight blooms in distinct varieties, J. P. Bodge, first; W. D. Hathaway, second; Lindvall & Delury, third.

Twenty-four varieties, W. D. Hathaway, first; J. P. Bodge, second; N. A. Lindsay, third.

Twelve varieties, W. D. Hathaway, first; E. W. Ela, second; N. A. Lindsay, third.

One hundred cactus, for which the Newport Horticultural Society offered a silver medal. George H. Walker won with a beautiful lot of blooms. Particularly noticeable in his collection were: Snow Queen, California Beauty, Mercury, Variabilis, Furst Puckler, Clara, Diavolo, Reine Amella, Master Carl, Golden Glory, Mr. Keith, Marguerite Bouchon, Rev. A. Bridge and Elsie.

Twenty-four varieties decorative, A. E. Johnson, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twelve decorative, J. P. Bodge, first; W. F. Hall, second; E. W. Ela, third.

Forty-eight varieties show, W. D. Hathaway, first.

Twenty-four varieties show, E. W. Ela, first.

Twelve varieties show, E. W. Ela, first.

Pompons were finely shown by J. K.

Alexander, E. W. Ela, N. A. Lindsay, Mrs. L. M. Towle and others. There were also excellent entries in the classes for singles and peony-flowered varieties. J. K. Alexander showed strongly in the classes for eighteen cactus in separate colors, taking first for yellow, white and pink, and second for red. He had an extensive table finely arranged with all types, many being on long stems. Lindvall & Delury, of Dorchester, were also successful contestants in these classes, capturing, among other prizes, first for eighteen show, eighteen white show, eighteen white decorative, eighteen pink decorative, six peony-flowered, and second for eighteen pink cactus. George B. Gill, of Medford, showed some of the finest blooms in the hall, his vase of mammoth Souvenir de Gustave Doazon being the best ever staged in Boston. Mr. Gill, who is a son of the veteran, Mrs. E. M. Gill, captured first for eighteen red cactus with a fine seedling named in honor of his mother, a variety which will be heard from; also first for eighteen red decorative, eighteen all types mixed, and second for the largest bloom of a show dahlia, A. E. Johnson taking first in the latter class. Mr. Johnson's new pink seedling, Mrs. Alice Longworth, took everyone's eye.

Edgar W. Ela, in the loggia, had a large exhibit in 150 varieties to show the decorative value of dahlias, a number of designs being well worked out. A mound of the soft rose Jeanne Charmet and another of Souvenir de Gustave Doazon were taking. The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. had an extensive exhibit from its Marblehead farm. The single flowers were displayed on white collars. While this shows up the individual flower well, its formality is too severe to warrant its extended use at shows. One large table was devoted to decorative. Among these we noted as being particularly fine Snowden, Wolfgang von Goethe, Marblehead, Dorothy, of a pleasing lavender pink color, Snowstorm, Beloit, Cortez, Directeur Quince and Marguerite Perroneau. On another table the varieties Yellow Colosse, Papa Charmet, Governor Guild, Souvenir de Gustave Doazon, W. W. Rawson, Dreer's White, Mont Blanc and Bertha von Suttner were noteworthy.

Mrs. E. M. Gill filled a table with an excellent assortment tastefully arranged, tall vases being freely used down the center. Other prominent exhibitors, besides those already named, included S. V. Walters, Alvin A. Bassett, W. D. Moon and H. W. Kendal. There were in all seventy-one classes, inclusive of specials, of which twenty-seven were allotted to amateurs. Some fine new seedlings were shown and practically every class had competition. There was a large attendance on each day of the exhibition. Admission was free and everything indicated that interest in dahlias was on the increase.

The New England Dahlia Society now numbers 420 members, in all parts of the United States, as well as Canada, England, Germany, France and other foreign countries. The society issues a monthly publication entitled the Dahlia News. Its officers for 1909-10 are: President, H. W. Kendal, Newton, Mass.; vice-president, George B. Gill, Medford, Mass.; secretary, L. The dahlia show in connection with the show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, opening September 23, promises to be a large one, almost equal in size to that held by the New England Dahlia Society.

Club Meeting.

The opening meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club after the summer vacation attracted a rousing attendance to Horticultural hall, September 20. The report of the picnic committee was read and accepted and prize donors thanked. There was some discussion over the proposed banquet and entertainment of visitors to the coming S. A. F. national show, W. H. Elliott, William Sim, K. Finlayson and D. Finlayson being added to the committee. There was discussion of the Rochester convention, which all who were there pronounced the best ever. Vacation experiences were given by Messrs. Fisher, Cameron, Craig, Patten, Elliott, Roger, Grey and others. The question of offering extremely large premiums was discussed by Messrs. Finlayson, Elliott, Cameron, Craig, Kennedy and others. Nine new members were elected.

On the exhibition table were Buddleia variabilis, from L. G. Van Leeuwen; hybrid tea roses, from Gerhard Bleicken; Dendrobium Pearei and pentstemons, from D. Finlayson.

Various Notes.

Sidney Hoffman has added still one more store to his already large establishment, and now has the largest and most imposing frontage of any Boston store. Mr. Hoffman picked up quantities of new things while in Europe, especially in the pot plant line, and fall business is starting in with him finely.

Mr. Quint, the Roxbury Crossing florist, will open a new store about October 15, on Boylston street, almost directly opposite F. H. Houghton. This street is now getting thick with florists' stores.

Mrs. J. W. Rogers, on Summer street, has added a fine new office and made a number of floor improvements. A window containing a large display of the autumn crocus, Colchicum autumnale, in bloom, and bulbs in large variety, is an attraction at present. Business here shows a steady increase.

William E. Turner, of Woburn, is already picking nice Princess of Wales violets, which he sells at the Boston Flower Exchange.

B. J. McGinty, at 2 Park street, is handling a nice grade of roses from W. R. Morris, Wellesley Hills.

William R. Nicholson is again in evidence at C Park street with some of his high-grade carnations. The stock at Framingham looks unusually well. Chrysanthemums, including some splendid earlies, are a feature, as well as carnations.

Willow Hill Greenhouses, West Roxbury, are sending in fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums to Thomas Pegler at C Park street.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, has this season some 10,000 carnations and is already cutting some excellent flowers. Last season he made quite a specialty with sweet peas, which he grew splendidly.

William Sim is getting his houses ready for his big batch of single violets, of which he will plant about 100,000 this fall. His tomatoes produced a better crop than ever last season.

Thomas Roland, the Nahant plant wizard, is sending in fine Dracæna Sanderiana and D. Massangeana, among other plants, to the Boston Flower Exchange.

At Thomas F. Galvin's Back Bay store more space is being added to make room for his ever increasing business.

The Boston Flower Exchange is making some improvements in its cold storage department. A neat new sign has just been hung over the entrance to the market.

From the Waban Rose Conservatories Killarney and White Killarney roses are of good quality at present. They will have a nice lot of Mrs. Aaron Ward shortly. W. N. Craig.

CINCINNATI.

Census Count Is 364,463.

Business was fair last week. Large amounts of stock were sold, but there was more than enough on hand to fill orders in some lines. Roses are now arriving in great shape. The stems and foliage are good and the blooms are fine. Practically all kinds, including Beauties, Killarney, White Killarney, Taft, Bride and Maid, can be obtained in quantities, and find a good market.

Many consignments of asters are coming in, chiefly from New York. The automobile floral parade last Wednesday was expected to create a demand for these flowers and some extra shipments were arranged for accordingly. This demand, however, did not materialize and many asters were left over.

Carnations are increasing in volume and find a fair request. The best bring good prices. Lilies also have a good market. Cosmos and dahlias are good and many are used, especially of the former, which cleans up every day.

In decorative greens, smilax is not overplentiful. Good Asparagus Sprengeri is arriving daily from the south and is offered by most of the wholesalers. Southern smilax also is here.

Various Notes.

The automobile floral parade, Wednesday, September 14, was more or less of a disappointment. Only two cars were decorated with natural flowers, paper ones being used for the remainder. Of the former, one, which took the second prize in its class, was decorated by Miss Edith Kyrk and L. H. Kyrk. The decorations were neat and simple and consisted of southern smilax and purple asters. The other car was H. B. McCullough's large fifty-four horse-power Stevens-Duryea touring car. The tonneau was in pink and white asters, to represent a sea shell. In this part were Mr. McCullough, his little son, and five girls with pink parasols. This was drawn by two white swans placed over the front fenders. The whole floated on a sea of southern smilax and blue asters. This car received a special mention from the judges. The cars decorated with paper represented all kinds of flowers, even blue chrysanthemums, and showed all colors of the rainbow. A few were pretty and artistic, but the remainder were mediocre.

C. E. Critchell now has southern smilax on hand at all times.

SEASONABLE

SUGGESTIONS

Dutch Bulb Compost.

The Dutch bulbs are now arriving and if the soil for these has not been prepared, get a good pile ready now. Two-thirds well decayed, turfy loam, one-third well decayed cow manure and sufficient sharp sand for porosity will answer well. If no cow manure can be had, old, well rotted hotbed manure may be used to good advantage. It is better not to use any bone or chemical fertilizers in the potting compost. Some growers mix in some leaf-mold and this is a good plan where soils are naturally stiff and heavy. In light soils, however, it is better left out. Chop the loam down thoroughly and after mixing throw it up in a compost heap, where it is much easier to throw off heavy rains than when spread thinly over a larger surface.

Show Pelargoniums.

Pelargoniums, which were rested on their sides for some weeks, pruned back and kept well syringed but rather dry at the root, will now have broken away freely and should be shaken out and repotted, using pots as small as the roots can be conveniently gotten into. The longest roots can be pruned back. Water carefully until the roots find their way around the sides of the pots. It is an easy matter to rot the plants after repotting. They are better kept under glass, at least for a time. If necessary, they can be kept in a cold-frame until November, when the majority of the mums are out of the way.

Cyclamens.

The earliest cyclamen plants now have quantities of flower buds showing; here and there a flower is already open. These should be picked off. The earliest date when cyclamens are salable is Thanksgiving, but sales at Christmas are generally the best. Grow the plants cool and airy, and as the sun's rays are now steadily on the decline, reduce the shading. Where blinds are used, they can now be dispensed with, except for three or four hours in the middle of bright days. Look over the plants every few days. Throw away any sickly ones. Scratch over the surface soil. Remove any bad foliage and weeds. Spray the plants once a day, but do it sufficiently early so that they will be dry before night-fall. Toward the end of the present month place the earliest plants on a bench in a house kept at 48 to 50 degrees at night. A shelf in a carnation house will also do nicely. These plants will be in fine shape for Christmas.

The present is the correct time to make a liberal sowing of seed. Do not purchase anything cheap; the best strains are always the cheapest in the long run. As a general rule, red is the greatest seller at Christmas; pink also moves well. Pure white is indispensable and sells almost any time. The dark maroon and purplish shades no one wants at any price. A compost of one-half well decayed loam and one-half leaf-mold, with plenty of sand added, makes a suitable soil in which to sow cyclamen seed. Pans or flats can be used. These should be well drained. Make the surface soil smooth. Scatter the seeds as evenly over it as possible. Then, with a smooth piece of board, press the soil to make it quite level. Dust a little covering of fine soil over this from a screen and, after watering, place in a warm, moist house, keeping the soil covered with paper until the little seedlings appear.

Brief Reminders.

As tuberous begonias, gloxinias and achimenes pass out of flower, place them in a frame with glass protection and do not discontinue watering at once, nor throw them on their sides under the benches to rest and be eaten by vermin, as is too often done.

Fumigation of all houses once a week will keep aphides in check. Do not wait until you see your plants alive with them.

To thoroughly ripen the wood on the early pot grown rambler roses, reduce the water supply, keeping the plants in the fullest sunshine.

Look over the smilax beds regularly and do not neglect the strings. A few days' delay will cause endless labor disentangling the shoots.

While dahlias are still in good bloom, look over them and see that all are correctly named. Look over collections at your local fairs and make a note of desirable kinds to purchase for another season.

Cinerarias and calceolarias want no fire heat for some time yet. Keep them in a coldframe, shaded from strong sunlight, and do not allow them to become potbound.

Reduce the shading in the houses. Outside of palms, some tropical plants and ferns, the bulk of plants now need full sunshine.

This is a good season to attend to any outside painting and glazing. The work can be more comfortably done now than during the hot summer months.

Keep seedling biennials and perennials weeded and constantly cultivated, to keep them growing well.

The nights are getting a little cool for poinsettias in frames or unheated houses. A little warmth in the pipes at night only is needed. Avoid much heat until the bracts show.

Keep primulas spaced apart frequently, especially the Chinese section. Pick off any flowers showing thus early.

Stake pot chrysanthemums, which have grown in bush form, now that the buds are set. The less conspicuous these supports are, the better.

Lift and pot a batch of Coreopsis grandiflora. These will prove useful in late winter and early spring.

BOSTON.

Census Count Is 670,585.

While there is as yet no great activity in cut flower circles, the demand is slowly improving, and the dullness, which has prevailed for some time, is gradually passing, for which growers and salesmen are devoutly grateful. Roses are quite scarce and have advanced in price. Quite a few show considerable mildew on the foliage, but others are of good quality. The summer varieties, Carnot and Kaiserin, are less in evidence. More Killarneys are coming in. Richmond as yet is poor. Bride and Maid are fewer. Such Beauties as arrive meet with a fairly steady sale. Carnations, while more plentiful, do not as yet cut much figure, the flowers being small and the stems short. The chrysanthemums seen are chiefly Golden Glow, which make $1.50 to $2 per dozen. A few single violets have already appeared.

Dahlias are selling well, although the quality leaves much to be desired. Asters are less abundant and no further glut of these is now likely. Gladioli are getting smaller, but make fairly good prices, the best selling at $4 to $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley is scarce and higher in price. There is an adequate supply of lilies. There are plenty of cornflowers at 50 cents per hundred; also cosmos and other outdoor subjects.

Gardenias are not plentiful, but the demand is light. Cattleyas are much more plentiful, especially Cattleya labiata. Vanda cærulea, Dendrobium Phalæopsis and other sorts are also seen. A slight improvement is noticeable in sales of asparagus and adiantum. The demand for ferns, palms and other foliage plants is picking up. All the stores are stocking them heavily at present.

New England Dahlia Society.

The third annual exhibition of the New England Dahlia Society was held in Horticultural hall, September 16 to 18, and proved a fine one, the exhibits entirely filling the main hall and loggia. The show was surprisingly good, in view of the fact that no money prizes whatever were awarded, blue, red and white ribbons taking their place. The quality of flowers shown has never been surpassed here, and their arrangement was excellent. It was pleasing to see so many entries in the class for vases of eighteen blooms in distinct shades of colors on long stems, of all the various types, the cactus, decorative and pompon showing up particularly well. The cactus varieties, as usual, brought out fine entries. The awards were as follows:

Forty-eight blooms in distinct varieties, J. P. Bodge, first; W. D. Hathaway, second; Lindvall & Delury, third.

Twenty-four varieties, W. D. Hathaway, first; J. P. Bodge, second; N. A. Lindsay, third.

Twelve varieties, W. D. Hathaway, first; E. W. Ela, second; N. A. Lindsay, third.

One hundred cactus, for which the Newport Horticultural Society offered a silver medal, George H. Walker won with a beautiful lot of blooms. Particularly noticeable in his collection were: Snow Queen, California Beauty, Mercury, Variabilis, Furst Puckler, Clara, Diavolo, Reine Amelia, Master Carl, Golden Glory, Mr. Keith, Marguerite Bouchon, Rev. A. Bridge and Elsie.

Twenty-four varieties decorative, A. E. Johnson, first; W. D. Hathaway, second.

Twelve decorative, J. P. Bodge, first; W. F. Hall, second; E. W. Ela, third.

Forty-eight varieties show, W. D. Hathaway, first.

Twenty-four varieties show, E. W. Ela, first.

Twelve varieties show, E. W. Ela, first.

Pompons were finely shown by J. K.

Alexander, E. W. Ela, N. A. Lindsay, Mrs. L. M. Towle and others. There were also excellent entries in the classes for singles and peony-flowered varieties. J. K. Alexander showed strongly in the classes for eighteen cactus in separate colors, taking first for yellow, white and pink, and second for red. He had an extensive table finely arranged with all types, many being on long stems. Lindvall & Delury, of Dorchester, were also successful contestants in these classes, capturing, among other prizes, first for eighteen show, eighteen white show, eighteen white decorative, eighteen pink decorative, six peony-flowered, and second for eighteen pink cactus. George B. Gill, of Medford, showed some of the finest blooms in the hall, his vase of mammoth Souvenir de Gustave Doazon being the best ever staged in Boston. Mr. Gill, who is a son of the veteran, Mrs. E. M. Cooke in charge of the installation.

Various Notes.

September 16, Mr. and Mrs. J. Louis Loose celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. They were the recipients of many congratulations from friends both in and out of the city.

Mrs. J. A. Phillips is making preparations to open her Fourteenth street store for the season.

The Pennock-Meehan Co. is receiving some fine Easter lilies from the north, which find ready sale.

Stanley Holland, formerly of the Washington Florists Co., will go into business for himself. He expects to be ready by October 1, locating at Park road and Fourteenth street. He has the best wishes of the craft in his undertaking.

W. R. Gray, of Oakton, Va., is supplying the Florists' Exchange with valley. One of his novelties is a red double dahlia which averages seven inches in diameter.

All are looking forward to the appearance of Z. D. Blackistone's new automobile, which is to be the finest in the city. It is to be an electric, finished in gold and maroon. F. W. G.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Trade has been rather brisk here for the last week or so and stock has been scarce. Asters are about over and certainly will be missed. Roses are coming in more plentifully, but are far from being enough to fill orders. Carnations are coming on nicely, but only a few are blooming at this writing. The month of September is one of the worst months in the year for stock on this market, as few of the growers plant early enough to have much inside stock at this time. Chrysanthemums are looking exceedingly well and some few of the Golden Glow variety are to be had.

Various Notes.

Dahlias are scarce among the growers, and if it were not for the ones shipped to the city from the dahlia farm of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., none could be had at any price. They have over forty acres planted, which are excellent and will make a fine display at their dahlia show.

James Hamilton, of Mt. Washington, Md., is erecting two more houses, with concrete sides and concrete raised benches, and is installing a 100 horsepower steam boiler, made by the Johnston Heating Co., of New York city.

The severe drought experienced this summer has so far had a beneficial effect on the flower trade. Outdoor flowers have been scarce and that has created an increased demand for greenhouse flowers.

Some of the local growers have planted their houses to good advantage to asters. These are now in their prime and sell readily at good figures. Golden Glow mums have been on this market for two months and have met with ready sale. Gladioli and fancy dahlias are also in favor with the buyers. The Conservation Congress created a demand for decorative work. The visits of Cardinal Vanutelli, the pope's special envoy, called for an artistic design, which was executed by O. J. Olson, of Holm & Olson.

Fall openings of several large stores created the usual demand for palms and flowers.

The State Fair.

The increased premiums and extra display space allotted to the florists at the State Fair called forth keener competition and a better display than ever before. The following is a complete list of premiums awarded:

Fifty decorative plants, Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; A. S. Swanson, third; John Vasatka, fourth.

Specimen kentia, Holm & Olson, first; A. S. Swanson, second; John Vasatka, third; Minneapolis Floral Co., fourth.

Specimen latania, A. S. Swanson, first; Holm & Olson, second.

Specimen Phoenix Canariensis, Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Specimen phoenix, any other variety, Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

As to the business done last week, we might say it was good, although the weather is not just right for the opening of the fall trade. There were a number of large plant decorations in downtown stores that also called for some design work, which kept some of us busy. Funeral work also was heavy at some of the stores, but what is needed to start the business right is a steady run of cool weather.

There is plenty of stock at the wholesale houses at present, but a little greater demand would consume it daily. In all the best grades of roses and carnations there is a good demand, but these grades of stock are as yet scarce. The daily consignments, however, are showing improved blooms and length of stem. Asters are not as plentiful as they were. Gladioli and tuberose stalks are also shortening up. Some good valley is now coming in. In greens there is enough of everything and the demand is good.

Various Notes.

The Ladies' Home Circle had a splendid time at its meeting and outing at Romona park Thursday afternoon, September 15. Mrs. F. C. Weber, Jr., was elected to membership and Mrs. John L. Koenig read an interesting paper. Mrs. John Steidle, president of the circle, was unable to be present, owing to sickness.

The Metropolitan Floral Co., at Grand avenue and Olive street, had the decorations for the opening of the new Princess theater Monday, September 12, when 2,000 Richmond roses were given away. There was also a number of fine, large designs sent and a number of the trade were kept quite busy for the occasion.

It has been reported that Alex. Siegel will have charge of the flower department at the new department store of Schafer Bros., which will open early in November at Eighth and Washington avenue.

The Frank Ryan Floral Co., at Fourteenth and St. Louis avenue, will start soon to enlarge their showhouse. Mr. Ryan says they have worked up a splendid trade.

The Riessen Floral Co., on South Broadway, had some attractive displays of plants and cut flowers last week. Mrs. Buechel says that funeral work was quite heavy last week.

C. A. Kuehn received a shipment of white chrysanthemums Saturday, September 17. The yellow sorts have been coming in off and on for the last two weeks.

George S. Walters, the wire man, has returned from a visit to his parents at St. Paul, Minn. He also visited Chicago before returning home.

The Brix Floral Co., on St. Louis avenue, is cutting some excellent carnations and everything is in shape for the winter season.

George H. Angermueller has leased the entire building at his present location, which gives him the three upper floors. He contemplates a grand opening to the trade in the near future.

Weber & Sons Nursery Co. and Woerner Bros. are consigning to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. a nice lot of roses, especially Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond.

The florists centered at Grand avenue and Olive street have all completed their new furnishings and are in good shape to handle their large trade this season.

All the Kirkwood growers have completed housing their stock. Their carnation and violet plants are looking fine. Consignments from there are coming in better daily. A great cut of California violets is expected this season.

Charles E. Schoenle left Friday, September 16, with the Million Club for a few days' trip to Indianapolis, Ind., in the interest of the balloon races. He took with him a big balloon made of flowers for a presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Weber visited Mrs. Weber's parents at Pocahontas, Ill., Saturday and Sunday. They went by train, the roads being too rough for the auto.

H. G. Berning is receiving Heller Bros.' consignments of Beauties and other roses, which have a good demand.

Ostertag Bros. report a large number of big decorations to be arranged for fall openings for downtown stores. The carload of plants purchased recently by Henry Ostertag, while east, has arrived and will be used for these occasions.

C. C. Sanders visited French Lick Springs recently and has returned much improved in health and ready for the busy season to open.

E. W. Guy, chairman of the Florists' Club's trustees, says he will assign a number of discussions to competent members for the fall and winter meetings, and will have cigars to burn at each meeting.

The Retail Florists' Association at its meeting Monday, September 12, had a good attendance.

The executive board of the St. Louis Horticultural Society at its meeting Tuesday afternoon, September 13, had a full attendance and acted on the resignation of F. H. Weber from the board. All other matters brought up pertained to the fall show.

President John M. Cannon, of the Florists' Club, says he hopes that the members of the club will attend the October meeting in goodly numbers, if for nothing else than to encourage the new officers.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, is calling on the trade here this week. J. J. B.

Glens Falls, N. Y.—A. J. Binley is busy filling orders booked at the convention for his patent cut flower holder.

PROVIDENCE.

Census Count Is 224,326.

The last week brought a steadiness to the market that gives promise of an early return of normal conditions. The opening of the schools, theaters and dancing academies and the commencement of sociables will soon restore activities in the flower trade. Asters hold sway and are abundant and of grand quality, although the rain of last week, followed by cold nights, has spoiled a good many flowers. Prices are a trifle firmer than a week ago. Requests for potted palms and ferns are daily becoming more numerous, as the householders prepare for settling for the winter.

Dahlia Exhibitions.

Some beautiful new varieties of seedling dahlias were shown at the exhibition by the Newport Horticultural Society Tuesday evening, September 13. A first-class certificate of merit was awarded to William H. Arnold, of Jamestown, for a cactus variety called the Grace Arnold, from Aurora. The same award went to George C. Stoddard, of Newport, for a number of new seedlings, special mention being made of W. S. Sisson and Japonica. The Sisson is a beautiful specimen, but the Japonica attracted especial attention. It is apricot in color, but its attraction is the novelty of the form, as it is an entirely new break, not represented in any other class. Honorable mention was given to three other varieties, shown under the names of the Indiana, North Carolina and Ida W. Marble.

William H. Tarbox, of East Greenwich, has been making successful exhibitions at many of the larger fairs and horticultural shows in Connecticut and Massachusetts. He has been shipping, on contract with a New York firm, 2,000 dahlias daily for over a fortnight, and on two days last week he shipped 4,600 asters to that firm.

Various Notes.

J. Kopelman, on Washington street, has rearranged the entire interior of his store and has just received a large invoice of palms and ferns for the wholesale trade.

Thomas Curley, on Harkness street, who announced last spring the building of a new office building during the fall, has abandoned his purpose until next year, on account of the press of work.

Gabriel C. Berker has taken the greenhouses at 187 Harrison street, recently occupied by John M. Greene, who has purchased a farm near Auburn, where he is putting up new houses.

Charles Philpott has succeeded John D. Daly as gardener for Mrs. F. W. Andrews, near Newport.

Peter S. Byrnes is now settled at his new greenhouses on his own farm on West Main street, Wickford.

John T. Allan, gardener for John R. Drexell, at Newport, has the sympathy of the entire trade in the death of his wife, Mrs. A. E. Allan. Her funeral occurred Wednesday, September 14, and the flower pieces were numerous and fine, practically every gardener in the summer colony sending tributes, while the piece from the Newport Horticultural Society, of which Mr. Allan has long been a prominent member, was especially handsome. Mrs. Allan had been ill for several weeks, but her death was unexpected. She was 49 years of age. W. H. M.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Census Count Is 137,249.

The florists of central New York are always interested in the display of cut flowers and plants at the New York state fair, and considerable rivalry exists between Syracuse florists and growers and those from nearby places. Two strikingly beautiful set pieces were exhibited by P. R. Quinlan, of Syracuse, one an open book set in an archway, the other a vase of roses in a frame of white and purple asters. The first prize for general collection of cut flowers exhibited by professional florists was awarded to P. R. Quinlan; second prize to C. H. Beckstedt, Oswego, N. Y. In the open class, P. R. Quinlan received first award for general collection of greenhouse plants, as well as for best display for funeral purposes.

In the same class James Norris, of Minetto, received first for best general collection of cut flowers. For greenhouse plants, Hugh Meneilly, of Syracuse, was given first and James Meneilly received second.

In an exceptionally large number of entries in the amateur class the first prize for the best general collection of cut flowers was awarded to David Meneilly, of Syracuse.

David Campbell, of Syracuse, has for a number of years been the superintendent of the floral department, with John F. Dunn as assistant, and to their energetic efforts is due in a great measure the success that always attends the display.

William C. Hewson and Fred W. Vick served as judges.

The special prizes offered by James Vick's Sons, of Rochester, N. Y., for the best specimens of six varieties of asters, excited a great deal of interest among amateur growers. Over a hundred entries were received and many of the specimens would do credit to the most successful aster experts. Without doubt the aster is one of the most popular flowers with amateur growers, and that the range of its popularity is unlimited is shown by the fact that entries were received from Oregon, Alabama and New Hampshire, and that several prizes went to Canada.

Wm. C. Hewson and John Hall, official fair judges, made the awards. The prizes offered were for twelve blooms each of Vick's Mikado Pink Rochester, Vick's Mikado White, Early Upright White, Early Branching Rose, Vick's Violet King, and Imperial Daybreak. A special prize was also offered for twelve blooms of each variety in one collection. E. F. R.

Census Count Is 185,548.

Jessie Watts, of the Livingston Seed Co., cut flower department, is away on a three weeks' vacation.

James McKellar, of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., has been confined to his home for over two weeks with pneumonia, but now is improving rapidly and expects to be out in a few days. J. M.

Beaverdam, O.—Peter Augsburger has gone out of business.

DETROIT.Census Count Is 465,766.

Business not only remains good, but is getting better as the season advances. Stock is improving with the advent of cooler weather. Carnations, especially, are showing considerable improvement. Stems are longer and color better.

Fall openings in the large stores are creating no little extra demand for stock. This week thousands of asters will be sold at the fair grounds for a charitable benefit, these flowers being purchased by society ladies and donated for that purpose. This will keep the aster supply well in hand and naturally cause a demand for other flowers.

Various Notes.

The program and essay committee of the Detroit Florists' Club held a special meeting September 17 and outlined a program for the ensuing year. Many most interesting subjects pertaining to various branches in our business will come up for discussion.

The Michigan State Fair opened September 19. The exhibits in Horticultural hall are by no means the most extensive displays on the grounds; in fact, sorry to say the florists of Detroit seem to be losing interest. Exhibits this year are by W. B. Brown, Frank Holznagle and Mrs. Bogola. Mr. Brown dening committee of the Twentieth Century Club. This good work is being carried on more extensively each year; liberal cash prizes are given as an inducement to the little gardeners. Awards were also made this year by the Detroit Florists' Club, J. F. Sullivan, E. A. Scribner, J. Breitmeyer's Sons, Gus Taepke and B. Schroeter. The judges this year were Walter Taepke, Robert Unger, J. T. Sullivan, E. A. Scribner and Frank Danzer. Guests of the committee were George E. Browne and Hugo Schroeter.

Chas. Huffard has opened a flower store at 51 Gratiot avenue. Mr. Huffard for some years has conducted a flower stand in a local drug store.

Breitmeyer's staff will be busy decorating J. L. Hudson's store with cornstalks, etc., for the fall opening. They also have the contract for decorating Mr. Hudson's store at Toledo.

W. B. Brown entered his delivery outfit in the horse show at the state fair. H. S.

OBITUARY.John H. Sievers.

John H. Sievers, one of the best known and oldest florists on the Pacific coast, died at his home on Buchanan street, San Francisco, September 7. Mr. Sievers was a native of Bremen, Gercess with carnations was phenomenal and among his creations in this line probably Hannah Hobart is the best known. Always keenly interested in hybridizing, many new and valuable varieties were disseminated from his greenhouses and the showing, during the proper season, of tuberous begonias, pelargoniums and stove plants was an education in itself, which was taken advantage of by thousands of plant lovers from all parts of California.

Always an enthusiast in his lifelong work, Mr. Sievers, probably more than any other single grower, helped with his presence and his magnificent stock to make the California State Floral Society's exhibitions a success and the recently started and struggling new flower shows could always depend on him to give financial aid as well as a handsome exhibit. For many years before the fire he conducted a retail store on Post street with the late J. B. Boland. This store was noted for carrying one of the finest stocks of cut flowers in the town.

Mr. Sievers is survived by a son, John R., well known to all the horticultural fraternity, and by four married daughters, his wife having died several years ago. The funeral was held from his late residence and interment was at Woodlawn cemetery. There were several hundred people present and the trade was well represented.

Mrs. Charles Dickinson.

Mrs. Charles Dickinson, wife of the vice-president of the Albert Dickinson Co., died at her residence, 1531 Dearborn avenue, Chicago, September 17, after an illness of about three weeks. Mrs. Dickinson was taken ill while at Easthampton, L. I., after having spent the summer in the east. Her daughters, Mrs. E. McK. Whiting and Mrs. Leonard E. Whiting, both of New York, were with her and accompanied her to Chicago, remaining with her until her death. Three sons also survive her. Mrs. Dickinson was 58 years old. She had been a resident of Chicago for eighteen years.

Max Leichtlin.

Max Leichtlin, the well-known German botanist, died September 3, in the seventy-ninth year of his age. The funeral took place at Baden-Baden.

Katherine Sherman.

Miss Katherine Sherman, daughter of E. M. Sherman, president of the Sherman Nursery Co., died at the family home at Charles City, Ia., Monday, September 12. She was nineteen years of age.

James M. Kennedy.

At his home at Dansville, N. Y., James M. Kennedy died September 8, aged 49. Mr. Kennedy had a stroke of paralysis fourteen months ago and never recovered his health. He was one of Dansville's prominent nurserymen, having followed the nursery business since 1876. He was a member of the Dansville Nurserymen's Association, also of the American Association of Nurserymen, and belonged to several local lodges. He had served as vestryman of the Episcopal church for many years. Mr. Kennedy is survived by his wife, one son, James Edward Kennedy, and daughter, Miss Helen Kennedy; also by his aged mother, Mrs. Thomas Kennedy, and sister, Miss Mary Kennedy, all of showed a large floral arch with an open Bible. Mr. Holznagle had a very pretty wreath and Mrs. Bogola also had a wreath. A vase of fine gladioli was also exhibited by Mr. Brown. Palms, ferns, etc., were shown by Messrs. Holznagle and Brown. Many fine asters were shown by amateurs.

The annual exhibition of flowers and vegetables at the public schools was held September 15 and 16, under the direction of the home and school gar-many, and had been in business in San Francisco for over forty years. With F. A. Miller he first established the Exotic Gardens on Mission street and later dissolved the partnership and built one of the largest ranges of glass in this section, at the present location on Van Ness avenue. Here Mr. Sievers made a specialty of carnation, orchid, begonia and palm growing and his conservatories have for years been one of the show places of the town. His suc-

George Wittbold.

Once more the craft in Chicago has been called on to pay the last tribute of respect to its oldest member. When the summons came, September 19, to venerable, kindly George Wittbold, it removed not only the oldest man then actively engaged in the trade in Cook county, but the founder of the oldest business in this line in the city, and the one man who has seen the florists' industry grow from small beginning of his early day to the great proportions of the present.

George Wittbold was born April 25, 1832, at Hanover, Germany, and as a young man obtained that thorough knowledge of plant growing which is characteristic of the gardeners educated in the Royal Botanic Garden at that place. Coming to America in 1857, he was not the first commercial florist of Chicago by some years. First of all was Samuel Brooks, and then came Edgar Sanders. The third establishment was that of Williams & Wittbold, but has long outlived its predecessors. Williams & Wittbold had two places, Mr. Williams conducting one on what is now Fullerton avenue, while Mr. Wittbold's first glass was about where North avenue intersects Clark street. It was then some distance outside the city, but Mr. Sanders was still farther out, at what is now the corner of Belmont and Evanston avenues. The Brooks establishment was far out on the south side. At the close of the Civil war the partnership of Williams & Wittbold was dissolved and in 1869 Mr. Wittbold acquired the land on which he has lived and conducted his business for the last forty-one years. At the time of his purchase this was marsh ground, far outside the settled city districts. His contemporaries told him it was not worth the $2,000 he agreed to pay for four acres, but by the time Mr. Wittbold had his marsh filled in he had many opportunities to turn his investment profitably. In later years he often has referred to an opportunity for an exchange of his property for a 7-acre tract nearer town, but still in an unreclaimed condition. After the city had grown, first to him and then many miles beyond, he regretfully said he wished he had made the trade, but in the earth 70s he thought that four acres was as much as ever would be required by a florist and that it would be all his greenhouses could earn the taxes on. When it came to putting in the public improvements, he did, in fact, find he had more than he could handle and sold a part of the Buckingham place frontage. Today his three remaining acres are in a solidly built up section, where real estate values are measured by the front foot and the property represents independence for its owner.

All the time that Chicago was growing the Wittbold business grew with it. Where in the beginning only a little local trade was handled, in the course of time a big range of glass backed up two retail stores and a large wholesale business was done, both in the city and throughout the west. Mr. Wittbold brought up a family of five sons, each of whom possessed the father's aptitude for the business and all of whom at length became associated with it, assisting in its extension and eventually taking over the entire responsibility. A few years ago the George Wittbold Co. was incorporated, the founder occupying the presidency, but each of the sons holding an interest, with Louis Wittbold as secretary and treasurer. Since that date the progress has been more rapid than at any time in the history of the business. A large nursery and greenhouse plant has been established at Edgebrook, Ill., and many new lines have been successfully added. When the sons took over the burden of active management, Mr. Wittbold was permitted to indulge his preference and devote his time to the friends of his youth, the palms and ferns which were his specialty from the time the business became large enough to admit of specializing. Until quite recently he has enjoyed excellent health and was invariably to be found at the potting bench, where many visitors stopped for a moment's chat with this kindly, sweet tempered old lover of nature.

Mr. Wittbold was survived by his widow, Mrs. Emma Wittbold, and by four sons and three daughters. The sons are Fred, Louis, Henry and Otto. The fifth son, Gustave, died January 24, 1908. The daughters are Mrs. Mary James, wife of the florist at Des Plaines; Mrs. Sophie Neve and Miss Helen Wittbold.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, September 21, from the late residence at 3319 North Halsted street.

There was a large attendance of those in the trade, while two wagon loads of floral pieces showed the esteem in which Mr. Wittbold and his family are held. Interment was at Graceland. The pall bearers were George M. Garland, Frank Garland, Warren Garland, Otto Herman, Oscar Margraff and Dr. G. H. Fricke.

John Donn.

John Donn, a veteran florist and landscape gardener of Baltimore, Md., died September 13 at his residence, 1319 North Caroline street. He was 66 years old and was born in Ayr, Scotland, but came to America about thirty-five years ago. He was at one time in charge of the flower department of Peter Henderson & Co., in New York city. After removing to Baltimore he conducted a large establishment on Erdman avenue for many years. He had the reputation of being an expert landscape gardener and was a prominent member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, September 16, and the interment was in London Park cemetery. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Eva Ripple Donn, and by two nieces, Miss Susie McFarlane and Mrs. G. E. De Muth. Q.

South Bend, Ind.—C. E. Campbell, receiver for the South Bend Floral Co., has paid a dividend of one and one-half per cent and his notice says it is all the creditors will receive.

After removing to Baltimore he conducted a large establishment on Erdman avenue for many years. He had the reputation of being an expert landscape gardener and was a prominent member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, September 16, and the interment was in London Park cemetery. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Eva Ripple Donn, and by two nieces, Miss Susie McFarlane and Mrs. G. E. De Muth. Q.

THE trade reports collections as having improved considerably within the month.

THE waterproof chiffon is not only a money-maker for the supply houses but is a boon to the retailer.

THE Florists' Club at Springfield, Ohio, the home of several great mail order plant houses, has contributed $25 to the funds of the Postal Progress League.

THE Want Ad pages of The Review are worth watching every week. Many fine opportunities are shown there—not merely a few, but a hundred or more each week.

INQUIRIES must be signed with full name, and address must be given, to receive reply. Signatures are not used for publication in The Review, but anonymous inquiries are not answered.

J. W. Ross, Centralia, Ill., sends The Review specimen blooms of the new dahlia, Wm. Ross, deep scarlet, large flower, of the show type; also foliage of a new seedling coleus of striking colors.

WHEN you send photographs to an editor, write the title on the back. The Review frequently receives pictures with no clue by which the sender can be identified, not even a postmark. Among the unmarked pictures recently received was the portrait of a lady and two views in a flower store.

THE United States government always has classed as nursery stock all imports of bulbs and all imports of certain plants handled only by florists, such as palms, azaleas and orchids; but the Department of Commerce and Labor in 1909 separated “orchids, palms, dracaenas, crotons, azaleas, tulip and other bulbs, bulbous roots or corms cultivated for their flowers” from “other plants, trees, shrubs or vines,” and found that the imports of the former aggregated an invoice value of $954,399, or almost half the total of “all nursery stock,” in which these seed trade and florists' items still are included. The completed figures by countries from which the imports came will be found on page 52 of this copy of The Review.

“MONEY GOOD ENOUGH”—GUDE.

As readers of the daily papers know, a Chicago gentleman who occupies for the moment the office of Secretary of the Treasury has conceived the bright idea of leaving his mark upon the finances of the United States by reducing the size of the paper money. The average person is too deeply concerned with the decreasing purchasing power of the dollar to regard a decrease in the size of the bill itself either as important or inappropriate, but commercial bodies are opposing the change. William F. Gude, who, besides conducting a flower store, is president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce and director in a bank, is quoted in a New York paper as saying:

“If the United States government is reduced to the necessity of instituting an economy by cutting down the size of our bank notes it is in pretty bad shape, it seems to me. It looks to me like a case of saving at the spigot and wasting at the bung hole. The economy resulting would be so infinitesimal compared with the annoyance and additional labor and expense that would be imposed upon the banks and the business people that it would not be worth while talking about.

“I believe in economy in government, but it appears to me that this proposition would not be an economy. The present size of our notes is all right. The people are used to it, and I can see no good reason for making a change. It surely would take ten years to retire the present circulation, and in that time the expense to the people would be far greater than the saving to the government. I do not like it. I am satisfied with the currency as it is.”

SELL YOUR SURPLUS.

No matter what your surplus is, somewhere there are pretty sure to be buyers who need just that stock. And The Review reaches the whole trade:

The little ad in The Review brought us too many results with the first insertion, but they came a little too late to head off the second insertion.—L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., September 12, 1910.

The success with which they moved surpluses by advertising in The Review has caused many a florist to work up stock and get into the wholesale line. No need to be content with a limited local trade.

CHICAGO.

Census Count Is 2,185,283.

If the Chicago market had been compelled to rely for its business in the last week on the 2,185,283 people that Uncle Sam found within the city limits, business would have been a great deal worse than it really was; the week has been a quiet one, the bulk of the stock going to the many additional millions of people who contribute the shipping orders that are the dependence of this market. The local retailers are doing a little more each week, but the city business is not yet large enough to cut much figure as compared to the shipping demand. There was a decrease following September 12, but weather conditions at the end of the week served to cut down the supply. The same was apparently the case throughout a wide stretch of country, for September 19 there was a nice increase in shipping demand, but since then nothing exceptional has been stirring. Business is not bad, but it is not good; the market might easily become oversupplied.

After having been in the background for some little time, roses again occupy a conspicuous place. The supply or quality of other stock is such that whatever business there is stirring is reflected in the demand for roses. Beauties once more are in abundant supply; many growers are on the upgrade with their crops and quality is excellent. A considerable proportion of the cut is on long stems, whereas a good part of the demand is for medium-stemmed stock. The fall openings also are making a special call for short Beauties, and the short to medium grades are

FIRST-CLASS BEAUTIES

We are on with an Excellent Crop

For years our house has been recognized by Beauty buyers as one of the largest and most dependable sources of supply in the entire United States—we ship Beauties all over the country—and this season we have the cut of a larger number of plants than ever before. Now in excellent crop. All lengths. Fine large heads, splendid color and substance, strong stem and heavy foliage. Order here and come again.

KILLARNEY

PINK AND WHITE

Killarney and White Killarney are the big sellers this season and it is to your interest to prove for yourself our claim that our Killarneys are in a class by themselves. You will recognize the fact if you try a few shipments. We are just getting into another heavy crop of both Killarney and White Killarney. Plenty of the select grade and a fair proportion of specials.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Mums are ready and we can supply any needs. Write us. As the season advances we shall have large supplies of the best varieties. You can be sure that we shall, as in other years, be headquarters on fancy Mums.

CARNATIONS

The quality of the carnations is improving rapidly and every day brings an addition to the supply. You can order here with the certainty that you are calling on the largest lot of high grade carnations in this market.

Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies in quantity every day in the year. Plenty of them NOW. Let your orders come.

Asters

The asters are passing, but we still ship some pretty fair stock. Call on us for anything you need.

Violets

The violet season has opened. As usual, we have the cream of the Hudson river doubles.

Greens

Headquarters for Asparagus bunches, Smilax, Farleyense, Adiantum, Mexican Ivy and the best Fancy Ferns in the country.

Fancy Valley Always on Hand

Elegant stock—the Chicago Market Brand—a single bunch or thousand lots, it's here.

commanding relatively better prices than the long stems.

There has been a marked improvement in the quality of the Killarney and White Killarney. These are now available on stems which entitle them to grade as specials. Whereas a short time ago a large part of the crop was short roses, now the bulk of the receipts grade in the select class. The color of Killarney is excellent. Such Maid as are received are good and quite a quantity of Bride now comes in. Occasionally these two varieties are seen of length of stem and size of bud that give them first choice when set beside the Killarneys. A few Jardine meet with good sale. Mrs. Field again is in fine shape and in position to compete with the other sorts. Maryland is not an important factor, though a few growers still are cutting it in considerable quantity and of excellent quality. Richmond is less abundant than in the last fortnight.

The carnation growers are beginning to be heard from. Stems are lengthening and the number and size of shipments is increasing. Prices are on the upgrade, keeping pace with quality, or even leading it, for usable asters now are hard to obtain, though there are thousands of the kind that indicate the fag end of the crop. Gladioli are on the wane, though a moderate quantity of first-class stock still is seen. The demand for these is distinctly less than it was earlier in the season.

Chrysanthemums are in rather heavier supply than ever before at this date. The stock is earlier than in any recent year. The bulk of the yellows still are Golden Glow, but some growers have cut most or their Monrovia and October Frost. Some of the stock is strictly first-class, but much of it is as distinctly low grade. The price for the best goods has moved up perhaps twenty-five per cent, but is still below what corresponding quality has brought in other years.

Violets have arrived in moderate quantity.

Easter lilies are in only moderate supply and are bringing better prices than for some months. Valley is moving quite well because of the increasing number of weddings. Cattleyas continue short of the demand, with a variety of other orchids available in their stead.

The fall openings are making a demand for asparagus strings and smilax. Other greens are plentiful. Wild smilax is selling in moderate quantities.

Flower Show at Coliseum.

Good fortune and good management have combined to make the Coliseum after all available for this year's flower show.

It had been thought impossible to secure this best of all locations, and arrangements had virtually been completed for holding the show in the First Regiment Armory, but the postponement of the land show to November 19 opened the way for the flower show to secure the building for its usual dates. At a meeting of the executive committee of the Horticultural Society, held September 16, all the arrangements were completed, the date to be November 7 to 12. The land show people have November 13, Sunday, as one of their dates for installation work, but it is thought likely arrangements can be made to carry the flower show through that day also.

George Asmus has been appointed manager.

Weekly meetings will now be held with the intention of making this year's show the largest yet held in Chicago.

Jumps from Moving Train.

The local daily papers September 20 contained the following item:

Charles Nelson, a florist, 1605 North Leavitt street, became insane yesterday, it is said, while making a trip in the west and jumped from a moving railroad train. Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Peters received a telegram from the sheriff at Grand Junction, Colo., to this effect. It is said that Nelson has a brother-in-law named Nordland in Chicago. The florist is not married, living at the home of Charles R. Low. As the train on which he was traveling neared Grand Junction, Nelson is said to have jumped out of a window.

Its merits have been conclusively proven through Public Demonstrations.

Aphine will not injure the tenderest flower or foliage—in fact it invigorates plant life.

It possesses excellent cleansing qualities.

Various Notes.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is clearing the ground in preparation for putting up thirteen more houses, each 27x350, at Plant A.

Joseph Mendel, who operates two flower stores on the west side, was successful at the primaries September 15, securing nomination as one of the democratic candidates for county commissioner. He received 19,509 votes, being nearly 4,000 more than the next man. This appears to be a democratic year and he thinks his prospects for election are good.

It is reported that Joseph Klimmer, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, now shows a little improvement and there is hope for his ultimate recovery.

J. G. Mastin & Co., manufacturers of the Mastin spraying machine and various other devices, are now preparing to market an improved hose coupling. It requires only a simple twist of the wrist—in fact, amounting to a one-quarter turn of the ends—to lock or unlock the coupling, thus doing away with the old screw coupling, with its consequent kinking of the hose.

George Asmus, the manager, busily at work on a funeral design. He said that although there had been nothing special, nevertheless business was much better all summer than it was last year.

The Ernst Wienhoeber Co. recently added a two-story brick building, about 25x30 feet, extending from the rear of the former workroom to the alley. The first floor is used as a receiving room for cut flowers. Here they are sorted, then sent forward to the old workroom for arrangement in vases, then into the display room. The new building is arranged so that wagons can come in under cover while unloading. The second

own greenhouses and will soon be fully installed in business on North Francisco street between Belmont and Lee avenues. Mr. Weissgerber makes a specialty of ferns and has several houses of these that are making fine growth. He has also experimented with a few orchid plants and says he has obtained some good blooms.

John Lang, whose specialty is ferns and bedding plants for the wholesale market, is busy taking geranium cuttings. He also has about 20,000 pansy plants started for spring sales. Two houses of White Enchantress and Enchantress are beginning to show some nice blooms. Mr. Lang's greenhouses cover about an acre of ground at the northeast corner of Melrose avenue and North Robey street and every foot of space is utilized to the best advantage. There are three or four houses of Boston ferns that show expert care and attention.

C. Frauenfelder & Co., 3343 West Madison street, say that business is quite satisfactory and they would like to spread out, but they say they cannot spread sideways or endways, which leaves only up and down, and they fear that one greenhouse on top of another, although novel, would scarcely produce results.

The flower show at Lake Forest was featured in the daily papers, but, of course, the millionaires' wives got all the credit for the quality of the blooms. A number of them employ gardeners of exceptional skill.

There is a report in the market that the parties operating the saloon and restaurant on the first floor of the building at 58 and 60 Wabash avenue expect to secure the second floor when the lease of the Flower Growers' Market expires next May.

E. C. Amling received the first violets of the season September 19, and John Michelsen says the quality was excellent compared to the first shipment of other years.

Julius Zschau has moved his retail store from 11144 Michigan avenue two doors north, to 11140, where he has better facilities than before.

September 20 was the anniversary of Kyle & Foerster's opening for business and many friends dropped in to congratulate them on the progress they have made. Hoerber Bros. also completed their first year in business this week and express themselves as well satisfied with results to date.

John C. Mulder's daughter has an exhibition of her drawings on view at John Kruchten's; while her orders are being put up she decorates the bulletin board. Nearly every visitor remarks on the excellence of the sketches.

says that the Mrs. Field now being cut are taken in preference to either Killarney or Maryland.

At Winterson's Seed Store, L. H. Winterson reports wholesale business as running heavy, with the retail department showing some little signs of the rush that is to come. Robert Newcomb, who has been in the west for some months, is assisting.

Richard Prescott, at Charles Northrup's place in La Grange, is still sending in some excellent asters.

C. W. McKellar says that Dendrobium

Phalaenopsis is selling well as a substitute for cattleyas. He still is receiving some quite fair asters from New York growers.

George Perdikas has enclosed his stand at the corner of Jackson boulevard and Dearborn street, and will continue it through the winter in conjunction with his store on Wabash avenue.

N. J. Wietor is one of the active members of the Kenmore Improvement Association and plays on its baseball team. September 18 he saved the day and the game against the Kenmore Athletic Club. Wietor Bros. report some exceptionally large orders for field-grown carnation plants. This week they are shipping 12,000 plants to Will Bros. Co., Minneapolis.

The removal of the National City Bank to new quarters September 19 brought some extra business to many of the downtown retailers. Beauties principally were sent.

John Mangel makes good use, in his window and in decorations, of cut fronds of Polypodium Mandaianum, obtained from W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J. They are said to be notably enduring.

L. R. Bohannon, in the University Club, reports business as quite fair. He has a large telephone trade.

Ed Enders, right-hand man for C. A. Samuelson, is again on duty after an automobile trip to the Indianapolis motor races. He has made nearly 4,000 miles with a friend this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Schoepfle are enjoying a European trip. When last heard from they were climbing the Jungfrau and sent picture postcards showing their descent on sleds through the snow of August. Martin Schoepfle is looking after the store on Belmont avenue during their absence.

Vaughan & Sperry say they think the fall season is opening earlier or stronger than usual with all the trade in the Chicago shipping territory, but that business seems to be especially good in the northwest.

Phil Schupp points out that it still is 92 degrees in the shade at Fort Worth, Tex., as he submits for inspection letters written the same day by two of J. A. Budlong's customers there, expressing satisfaction with the way the stock is arriving.

Albert Lies, at Niles Center, is sending Zech & Mann a sport of Killarney which closely resembles the old Mme. Carnot. He has 1,500 plants that are now in good crop.

The Illinois Heater & Mfg. Co. reports that the sales of its self-watering flower boxes for the first eight months of this year show an average increase of 400 per cent each month over the corresponding time one year ago. They point this out as an indication of the prosperity in the florists' trade.

Recent visitors: D. C. Garrett, of the Cottage Floral Co., Little Rock, Ark.; O. Will, Minneapolis; E. J. Fancourt, of Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia; H. M. Burt, of Burt & Coggan, Battle Creek, Mich.; Louis Turner, Kenosha, Wis.; J. A. Carbone, Berkeley, Cal., on his way to New York; F. M. Smith, of Smith & Feters Co., Cleveland, O.; Theo. Miller, St. Louis.

Phil Breitmeyer and Hugo Schroeter, of Detroit, have written that they will be here later in the week.

PHILADELPHIA.

Census Count Is 1,549,008.

The volume of business for the week ending with equal day and night, September 21, is decidedly larger than that of a week ago. There are more flowers coming into town in nearly all the staples, and the percentage of waste is smaller. It cannot be said, however, that prices have advanced, although listed quotations are better maintained than earlier in the season.

The dahlia is the flower of the month. High-water mark in quality has not yet been reached. Shipments are heavy, but the growers assure the wholesalers that with a proper amount of rain and of sunshine both quality and quantity will improve. The demand kept pace with the supply, except on Monday, when the two days' cut was a little more than the market could absorb at fair prices. The bulk of good stock brings from $10 to $15 per thousand, and it must be understood that it takes good flowers to reach these prices. Sylvia is much in demand at from $15 to $20 per thousand, with Lyndhurst as a good second. A few fine blooms of Jack Rose have brought from $2 to $3 per hundred; one or two of the other fancies, likewise. The singles have not generally sold so well as the doubles, but there are notable exceptions to this rule.

Asters are still an important factor, though many growers are cut out. As is always the case toward the close of the season, the advertising received by the aster has created a strong demand, and all really good stock sells readily at $2 per hundred. Much more could be used.

The gladiolus is still with us, but it is gradually retiring to the background. Cosmos is an important factor in decorations. Autumn foliage, notably oak leaves, has arrived. Wild smilax is in demand.

The greenhouse grown section of the cut flowers is becoming more important. Beauties are selling well. The average price is better than a week ago, though there is no advance. The smaller hybrid teas have been strengthened by the advent of more good Richmond; pink sells better than white; red comes last. Carnations are slowly improving. The two Wards from at least one grower have made a hit, bidding fair to occupy first places on the list. The bulk of the stock is still pretty short-stemmed. Cattleyas are a little more plentiful. Gardenias have assumed that waxy white appearance essential to their popularity. Valley is in heavy supply and shares with Beauties the attention of the bonton buyers. The first violets have made their appearance, with them pansies, yellow daisies and snapdragon. Several growers are sending in Golden Glow chrysanthemums. Easter lilies are firmer, probably in anticipation of the October weddings; the supply is limited.

Smilax and plumosus sprays are in fair demand, but Sprengeri and adiantum are not. Shipping is improving.

Various Notes.

The dahlia show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in Horticultural hall, Broad street below Locust, on Tuesday, September 20, from 3 to 10 p. m. Some good stock was contributed.

M. Henry Lynch, vice-president of Dingee & Conard Co., reports their immense rose range in exceptionally fine condition.

Charles Gray commenced work September 19 with J. J. Habermehl's Sons, as buyer for the Bellevue-Stratford store. It is rumored that Henry Bauer and Raymond Kester will give him a dinner.

Lloyd G. Blick, of Norfolk, Va., with his daughter and two friends, were guests of Edward Reid last week. Mr. Blick's party were on a motoring trip that includes Atlantic City, New York and New England. They expect to return to Norfolk from Buffalo.

The Henry F. Michell Co. will hold a dahlia show at "Ten-eighteen" September 27 and the following day. Prizes will be offered for the private gardeners. Entries of choice stock are desired.

William Swayne, of Kennett, Pa., is sending the first pansies, yellow daisies and snaps seen this season to William J. Baker.

Warren Engard commenced work at the Century Flower Shop September 19.

Samuel F. Lilley is receiving early shipments of single violets.

Stem-rot has played serious havoc with the carnations in many sections of the country; the cause is generally believed to be excessive heat and moisture at the critical stage preceding transplanting into the houses. The losses are so serious as to create a noticeable demand for sweet pea seed to fill space.

M. Rice & Co. report the following visitors: B. Hobbs and Mrs. Hobbs, on their honeymoon from Richmond, Va.; John Ratcliffe, of Ratcliffe & Tanner, Richmond, Va.; G. P. Weahlen, of G. P. Weahlen & Co. and formerly of Randolph & McClements, East Liberty, Pa.; L. G. Blick, Norfolk, Va.; Mooney & Weir, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Walter Yates has returned from abroad.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report heavy receipts of beech sprays, statice, magnolia wreaths and red ruscus. Isaac Bayersdorfer has returned from the west. Many Pittsburg visitors have called at the house.

The Robert Craig Co. has its new sash house completed and filled with specimen cyclamens. The 8-inch stock bears unmistakable evidence of high culture. Phil.

The tide is turning and another week will see the long anticipated change for the better. Society is fast returning to the city from the summer resorts, and there are many weddings now, and many more booked for October. So the day of the optimist has arrived, even if the wholesale rates have not yet shown much evidence of strength. This is dahlia week in New York, and the three days' exhibition at the American Institute will be the finest the dahlia has ever shown. The entries are numerous, and the balance of the exhibit, in plant grouping and novelties, fruit and flowers, will draw a good crowd. All the retail windows are resplendent in dahlia decoration and the best varieties are now in evidence everywhere. Some of the wholesalers are making the dahlia this week their specialty.

Gladioli have retired from competition; what few arrive sell readily at 2 cents, when perfect, because of their scarcity, but the big shippers are through. Asters, too, are shortening fast, and the market is getting ready for the inflow of the chrysanthemum. Roses are improving and lengthening rapidly, and prices will soon follow suit. Carnations are rapidly coming into favor and in length of stem and size of flower begin to look quite natural again.

The first violets arrived September 16, and every day now will add to the shipments. Quality was better than expected, and the few that arrived were snapped up by the big stores that are striving for the record—on Fifth avenue and Broadway.

The best valley sold at 4 cents at the beginning of the week, and lilies are holding their own. Orchids are increasing, as also are gardenias, both having larger sources of supply than ever before, and growing in popularity.

The demand for green goods is light; only the best smilax commands a paying figure. Wild smilax is arriving regularly, and is of excellent quality.

American Institute Exhibition.

The seventy-ninth fair of the American Institute opened at the Berkeley Lyceum building September 20 for a three days' run. There were over 400 entries and Manager Will Rickards was an exceedingly busy man on the opening date. The dahlias were the principal cut flower. The judges were John McNichol, William Turner, Edward Reagan and Peter Duff. The awards were as follows:

Fifty varieties of dahlias, W. P. Lothrop, East Bridgewater, Mass., first; W. D. Hathaway, New Bedford, Mass., second.

avenue, to Mr. Nicholas, formerly with the Siegel & Cooper flower department.

Another wholesale cut flower store has been opened at 356 Fulton street, Brooklyn, under the name of the Brooklyn Wholesale Cut Flower Market, Inc.

Maurice Glass, of A. Moltz & Co., celebrated his twenty-third birthday September 12.

The auction sales are again in full blast, but the openings were rather early, because of the summer temperature. However, the usual crowds of buyers are expected as the season progresses. The Fruit Auction Co. has decided to continue its sales, with John P. Cleary at the helm as usual. Mr. MacNiff feels encouraged by his first week's business. W. J. Elliott is in good voice and full of enthusiasm.

Secretary Siebrecht seems quite hopeful as to the early opening of the plant market at Fifty-ninth street. Some official antagonism is responsible for the delay, but he says the consummation of the plan is assured.

Mrs. E. A. Scott, of Navasota, Tex., will be in New York next week visiting the growers and retailers.

Alof Bearth, 29 years old, in the employ of Richard Lange, a violet grower of Harrison, N. Y., committed suicide by shooting last week.

E. W. Fenger, of Irvington, N. J., is sending some grand Golden Glow mums to the New York market. His new house, containing over 10,000 square feet, built by the King Construction Co., is modern in every sense, and completes one of the finest glass ranges in New Jersey.

August Millang and family have returned from their summer in the mountains.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. will introduce a novelty in the cut flower district by the addition of a ribbon and supply department to their cut flower business.

W. E. Marshall is visiting his trade in Pittsburgh and the west and reports a cheerful outlook all through the section he has visited.

A. L. Don has returned from his honeymoon trip through New England.

Mrs. H. H. Berger and Miss Berger are back from a summer in Europe.

Kessler Bros. say the new fern, Dreyerii, is already in demand. Young plants will be sent out early in October.

Charles E. Dards, with Mrs. Dards, has returned from a pleasant three months' outing in Europe.

Jonathan Nash, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, with his family, is back from a month's holiday in the mountains.

M. A. Bowe moves to 60 West Thirty-third street October 1.

INDIANAPOLIS.

Census Count Is 233,650.

Business last week was about the same as the previous week. Flowers are becoming more scarce. Asters and gladioli are slow in coming in, but quantities of good dahlias are to be had. Short stemmed carnations are plentiful, while Beauties and roses remain about the same.

The State Fair.

The state fair at Indianapolis attracted a number of florists this year and a creditable display was seen. Fred Dorner, of La Fayette, acted in the capacity of judge and Herman Junge was superintendent of exhibits. The premiums were awarded as follows:

mobilitist to face the police judge. It cost Mr. Brandt $20 for speeding his auto thirty miles an hour on North Meridian street.

E. T. Barnes, of Spencer, brought down a fine lot of dahlias to exhibit at the state fair. In some manner Mr. Barnes got his dates mixed, as he arrived a day late. He disposed of his stock to the city florists.

Richmond was well represented at the fair this year. Among the visitors from there were George Gause, Frank Weidley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knopf, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lemon and E. G. Hill.

Mr. Seligman, with Wertheimer Bros., was a visitor last week. He reports business satisfactory.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been quiet and funeral work is about the only thing doing. Outdoor stock is in better shape than it has been all summer, but is not up to the standard. Roses are of fine quality. Carnations are poor and scarce. Mums are fine and quite plentiful.

The Conservation Congress boosted business during State Fair week, as both President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt were guests.

Various Notes.

L. S. Donaldson Co. furnished decorations for both Taft and Roosevelt, the banquets being held at the Radisson hotel. A patriotic decoration was furnished for President Taft, and a jungle effect for Roosevelt.

Chapman, the grocer, has added a cut flower department.

H. S. Will, of Will Bros., returned from Chicago and Milwaukee, bringing 40,000 carnation plants to be used at their range. A scarcity of carnation plants prevails in this section.

R. A. Latham is busy making preparations for a large wedding job this week.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Kranz, of Great Falls, Mont., are the guests of S. Kusik & Co., for a few days, en route to the east for an extended trip.

The date for the Minneapolis flower show has been definitely set as November 9 to 13. C. R. F.

NEW ORLEANS.

Census Count Is 339,075.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held a well attended and interesting meeting at its hall, Kolb's German Tavern, 127 St. Charles street, September 15. The president, Richard Eichling, was in the chair and the secretary, C. R. Panter, at his desk. The society intends to take out a charter, and a committee, previously appointed, reported that the charter will be ready in the near future.

The feature of the evening was a most interesting lecture by E. Baker, superintendent of the local parking commission. He is starting a nursery to supply the city with the necessary trees and shrubs for the different streets and parks, excepting Audubon and City park, all to be planted in a systematic, harmonious way. About three squares of cypress swamp land will be in cultivation in a short while and the several thousand seedlings first planted are doing finely. Mr. Baker commented upon the richness and suitability of the soil found for the proposed nursery and predicted great results for the future.

J. A. Newsham exhibited several fine types of Cattleya Bowringiana, in about six different shades. He stated that at present he cuts several hundred stems daily for shipping purposes, and invited the members to visit his establishment.

Hermann Doescher reported that his mums and other flowering stock for fall and winter are in good shape.

C. R. Panter, secretary, urged the members to try to induce every florist in the city to join the society, so as to give the S. A. F. a rousing reception in case it should make the logical point the convention city in 1915. He will leave for the west next month for a several weeks' trip, visiting many places of interest, and at the same time booming the interests of the Crescent City for 1915.

The winter meetings of the society will be exceedingly interesting. Many lectures on different departments of horticulture will be given, and everything will be done to make each meeting interesting to the attendants.

Various Notes.

A visit to the Metairie Ridge Nursery by the writer proved to be a great pleasure. The president, Harry Papworth, had just returned from his visit to the convention city and other places of interest, and expressed himself highly pleased, both from a business and pleasure standpoint. In company with Mr. Papworth, Secretary Simon and Harry Dressel, the efficient rose grower, the writer looked over the large plant and found everything in fine shape. About 50,000 mums, in 150 varieties, are planted, most of them under glass. They are all healthy and strong and will soon show buds. Several houses of roses of the best standard and newer varieties, especially Beauties, are look-

Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ONION is one of the few items about which the trade is doing no worrying. It looks as though there will be enough to go around.

EUROPEAN journals report the death, August 27, of Wm. Leighton, a Glasgow seedsman who is well known on that side of the Atlantic.

THE obituary column this week contains notice of the death of Mrs. Charles Dickinson, wife of the vice-president of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago.

THE weather is not favorable to corn, which, generally speaking, is late. Good, warm, Indian summer will add materially to the supply of sweet corn of good quality for seed.

JAMES VICK'S SONS, Rochester, offered several hundreds of dollars in prizes for stock grown from their seeds and exhibited at the New York State Fair at Syracuse last week. Much satisfaction with the outcome is expressed.

IN the primary September 15, J. C. Vaughan secured the democratic nomination for congress in the second Illinois district, defeating by 296 votes the candidate who had the organization backing. It is said he now will make an active campaign to cut down the plurality of the republican incumbent, James R. Mann, of pure seed bill fame, whose party at the same primary polled 13,318 votes as compared with 3,634 for the democratic candidates.

THE United States government always has classed as nursery stock all imports of bulbs and all imports of certain plants handled only by florists, such as palms, azaleas and orchids; but the Department of Commerce and Labor in 1909 separated "orchids, palms, dracaenas, crotons, azaleas, tulip and other bulbs, bulbous roots or corms cultivated for their flowers" from "other plants, trees, shrubs or vines," and found that the imports of the former aggregated an invoice value of $954,399, or almost half the total of "all nursery stock," in which these seed trade and florists' items still are included. The completed figures by countries from which the imports came will be found on page 52 of this copy of The Review.

THE canning industry is beginning to wake up to a realization of the shortage of peas, sweet corn and tomatoes.

SECRETARY KENDEL has mailed to members the printed report of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, held at Atlantic City in June. It is a volume of 142 pages, full of matter the knowledge of which means money to any man engaged in the seed trade.

WORD comes from Holland that the export houses had their shipments practically all out two weeks earlier than last year, due to early lifting and favorable conditions for curing. The tulips not required for advance orders are said to be going slowly, though many fill-in or repeat orders are expected later, but the late-flowering and Darwin varieties are in request and selling at better prices than last year. Narcissi were a good crop. Double Von Sion are in demand and worth high prices for good sized bulbs.

"QUALITY" CHRISTMAS SWEET PEAS

At the Exhibition and Convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, July 12th and 13th, 1910, we again won the C. C. Morse & Co.'s Silver Cup for the finest and best collection of Sweet Peas open to the trade only.

The right time to sow Sweet Peas for Christmas flower-ing is in Aug. and Sept.

All our Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas are true to name and grown from originator's stock (secured by us) by one of the most reliable seed growers and Sweet Pea specialists in California, and we can make immediate delivery. Our output last year was nearly 6000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

BODDINGTON'S EXTRA-EARLY CHRISTMAS WHITE SNOWBIRD. An exceptionally early Sweet Pea for indoor flowering—will bloom six weeks after sowing. Color clear white, upon long stems; habit fairly dwarf and of exceptionally free-flowering qualities. Without doubt, the finest early white for indoor planting. We sell one grower in Pennsylvania 35 lbs. of this variety every year, name on application. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS PINK. This is the earliest and most profitable and useful Sweet Pea in cultivation, as by sowing the seed under glass in latter part of August, flowers can be cut from Thanksgiving on during the winter months. Oz. 10 cts., ¼ lb. 40 cts., ½ lb. 60 cts., lb. $1.00.

BODDINGTON'S CHRISTMAS WHITE. A companion to our Christmas Pink. Just as free and profuse a bloomer. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

CANARY. Similar to the above, but flowers of an exceptionally good yellow. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

FLAMINGO. Color scarlet; free-flowering and early. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.50, lb. $2.50.

Christmas Meteor. Scarlet; fine open red flower. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Christmas Captain. Blue and purple. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Florence Denzer. Pure white. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

Greenbrook. White standard, slightly touched with lavender. Large orchid flowering variety. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Le Marquis. This is the same color as Princess of Wales violet; has very large flowers. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Miss Helen M. Gould. White, open flower; standard lilac, marbled. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Miss Josey Reilly. Lilac; very large flowers. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Mrs. E. Wild. Carmine or dark pink. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

Mrs. Alex. Wallace. Lavender. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Mrs. Geo. Lewis. Large, pure white wavy flower. Oz. 15 cts., ¼ lb. 50 cts., ½ lb. 85 cts., lb. $1.50.

Mrs. W. W. Smalley. Satiny pink. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Mrs. Hannan. Deep rose-pink of a very pleasing shade; medium flower. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Mrs. F. J. Dolansky. Daybreak pink. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Mrs. Chas. H. Totty. Sky-blue; late. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

Mrs. Zvolanek. Blue, variegated; good for variety. Oz. 50 cts., ¼ lb. $1.50, ½ lb. $2.75, lb. $5.00.

Wallacea. Very fine lavender, a grand florists' variety. Oz. 50 cts., ¼ lb. $1.50, ½ lb. $2.75, lb. $5.00.

Watchung. Pure white. Oz. 20 cts., ¼ lb. 60 cts., ½ lb. $1.00, lb. $1.75.

Wm. J. Stewart. Blue self. Oz. 25 cts., ¼ lb. 75 cts., ½ lb. $1.25, lb. $2.00.

All other varieties of winter and summer flowering Sweet Peas supplied. Write for quotations upon large or small quantities.

Our 1910 Fall Catalogue, now ready, contains a full list of Quality Bulbs and Seeds for Fall sowing. If not received, send postcard and one will be sent by return mail.

was visited by the most disastrous rain storm in the history of the state. Some three or four inches of rain fell throughout the lima bean territory, coming at a time when not over five per cent of the crop had been harvested. If dry winds follow, the loss will not be great, but at this time the weather is damp and foggy and the loss to the bean crop may run as high as twenty-five per cent. The rain was not nearly so heavy at Lompoc, however, where nearly all of the garden varieties of beans are grown, and the loss will not be serious there."

STATE CORRESPONDENTS.

The American Seed Trade Association now has an officially designated correspondent in each state. This is as the result of the recommendation made at the Atlantic City convention by President J. C. Robinson, who reported that in handling the association's business, especially as relates to seed legislation, a handicap was imposed last year by there being no recognized association representative in the various states, a man who could be called upon for quick action. By resolution the association authorized Presi-

Dreer's Giant Cyclamen

New Crop Seed Now Ready

WE have for years carefully noted the various strains of Cyclamen from the world's foremost specialists and feel sure that the strain here offered is by far the best, regardless of price.

Our grower has made the Cyclamen a life study, and the strain is now practically perfect; the habit of the plants, purity of colors, size and substance of the flowers leaving nothing to be desired.

Many of the leading growers are now using this strain exclusively. We offer as follows:

	100 Seeds	1000 Seeds
Dreer's Giant Pure White.	$.75	$ 6.00
Dreer's Giant White with Carmine Eye,	.75	6.00

GRAND RAPIDS CONVENTION.

It is easy and safe to predict that the third annual convention of the Greenhouse Vegetable Growers' and Market Gardeners' Association, to be held in Grand Rapids, Mich., September 27 to 29, will be of more than ordinary interest and value, owing to the thorough preparations that have been made for the event, and owing to the special suitability of the meeting place.

It is stated that more than half of the sixty greenhouse plants in and about Grand Rapids are devoted exclusively to the growing of vegetables. The list of establishments to be visited includes, of course, that of Eugene Davis, originator of the Grand Rapids lettuce, the Davis Perfect cucumber and the Grand Rapids Forcing tomato. A visit will also be made to the office and warehouse of the local association of growers, organized for the purpose of improving and systematizing the marketing of their products.

SEFTON CORRUGATED SHIPPING CASES

STRONG, LIGHT AND CONVENIENT

WHY use heavy wooden Boxes for Shipments of Flowers and Plants when you can get a box better adapted to your needs, weighing about one-half as much?

Our Boxes are made to fold flat; thus insuring economy in storage space and enables the commission merchant to knock them down and return them in bundles, reducing return charges—they can be used over and over.

Our Patented K. D. Tin Corner is the only satisfactory K.D. corner ever adapted to a Corrugated Shipping Case. It gives you a perfectly flat box. Costs no more than set up corners.

LEXINGTON, KY.

The Market.

Business is picking up gradually, after the usual summer dullness. The principal call is for funeral work, of which there has been a great deal during the last ten days. Stock is coming in more plentifully and is of better quality, especially roses and carnations. Asters and gladioli are about cut out for the season.

Outdoor bedding has been somewhat of a failure this season, due to constant rains early in the summer, which had an effect on stock from which it never recovered.

Various Notes.

Honaker is sending in fine cuts of roses and lilies every day. His Kaiserin, My Maryland and Killarney command fancy prices. He reports several large orders for funeral work of late, for out-of-town customers.

Miss Emma Bell, daughter of W. S. Bell, the florist, has opened a flower counter in the O. L. Steele Ladies' Outfitters' Emporium. A beautiful white ice-box shows stock to advantage. Miss Bell should do well, as she is well known, being connected in business with her father for some years.

Richard Tacke, superintendent of city parks here, is rapidly recovering from an attack of malarial fever.

Stock of all kinds looks well at the establishment of John A. Keller, especially roses, carnations and mums. This firm has just placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for a house 26x200 feet, to be used for young carnation and rose stock. A Detroit steam trap, No. 13, has just been installed to take care of their plant. A

To the Trade:

I am still doing business at the old stand, 1601 Ranstead Street, which is conceded to be the flower center of this city. My prestige is increasing from year to year. It is not necessary for me to open branch stores in other cities to look for new victims. My policy always has been a square deal to everyone. This is the secret of my success.

house of Primula obconica gigantea, in 4-inch to 6-inch pans, is a beautiful sight.

The Michler Bros. Co. reports orders coming in rapidly for fall planting. This firm does an extensive business in landscape work, hedging and ornamental planting. They have recently purchased several acres of land, to take care of their ever increasing stock.

The grounds of the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum are especially attractive just now. Some design bedding here is certainly well done.

W. S. Bell, who has been in business here for over twenty-five years, has disposed of his downtown store. He has been a sufferer from rheumatism during the last three years and, being unable to give his business the proper attention, decided to sell out the stock and fixtures, and they were sold at auction. He still retains his greenhouses, opposite the City cemetery. He is undecided yet as to his future course.

NURSERY NEWS.AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June 1911.

THE death of James M. Kennedy, one of the best known nurserymen at Dansville, N. Y., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

W. E. WELLINGTON, well known as a florist and nurseryman at Toronto, Can., died suddenly at his home in that city about two weeks ago.

IMPORTS OF NURSERY STOCK.

A new feature of the government's statistical work is the compilation of separate figures covering imports of orchids, palms, dracaenas, crotons, azaleas, tulips and other bulbs, bulbous roots or corms cultivated for their flowers. Previous to 1909 these items had been included with the general heading of nursery stock, although in a trade sense they are none of them to be so classed. The figures on imports for 1909 have just become available, as follows:

A BLUE ROSE

The Greatest Rose Novelty
of the Century

It flowered with us this season and was greatly admired.

The New Rambler (Violet Blue), hailed by the German rose growers as the forerunner of a genuinely cornflower blue rose, is a seedling of Crimson Rambler, very vigorous and hardy, and free blooming.

SUCH good prices have been realized this season for all kinds of fruits that the nurserymen are sure to feel the increased call from planters.

ON the whole this has not been so bad a growing season. Some sections, and these include important nursery centers, have had too dry a summer, but in other localities it has been too wet, so the average, perhaps, is normal.

NOT one department of the nursery business is lagging behind. The call for ornamentals is scarcely less than for fruit trees; there are plenty of orders for the men who grow the small fruits, and for the ones who specialize on hardy perennials, while the landscape departments are steadily expanding.

PEONY business is reported as breaking no records this year. The big orders of other seasons are missed by those who have handled them and who now have to face the competition of their former customers. The peony has, however, lost none of its merits or popularity with the public and retail orders are more numerous than ever.

ELECTION of officers was the main thing on the program at the meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association at Waco, Tex., September 13 and 14, and the result was: President, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie; vice-president, J. L. Downing, Wichita Falls; secretary and treasurer, J. S. Kerr, Sherman. A resolution was passed, asking congress to provide a duty on foreign citrus products.

HARDY PERENNIALS

All the plants named below will be supplied in heavy field clumps. We call especial attention to the hardy chrysanthemums and every florist should have a collection of the choice pompon and large-flowering varieties here offered. The strong field roots will be found particularly desirable for winter propagation.

AMPELOPSIS Quinquifolia (Virginia Creeper), 3 years. HARDY ASTERS, blue, pink, red and white; separate, named. CASSIA Marylandica. CLEMATIS PANICULATA, 2-yr., $1.00 doz., $7.00 100; choice, extra heavy, old, $2.00 doz., $15.00 100.

HARDY CHRYSANTHEMUMS (Oct. delivery). Anna Mary, pom., salmon-pink; Ashbury, lg.-fl. sulphur white; Blushing Bride, pom., clear pink; Brown Bessie (Button), brown; Dawn, pom., daybreak pink; Dundee, pom., maroon, shaded scarlet; Gladys, lg.-fl. pearl pink; Golden Pheasant (Button), yellow; Jerry, pretty lg.-fl. lilac rose; L'Ami Conderchet, pom., dainty sulphur white; Model of Perfection (Button), white; Mrs. Snyder, lg.-fl. clear yellow; Patterson, lg.-fl. old gold, shaded darker, extra fine; President, lg.-fl., rich bright purple crimson; Princess of Wales, lg.-fl. white; Regulus, lg.-fl. bright terra cotta bronze; Rosinante, pom., blush rose, distinct and beautiful; Salem, lg.-fl. silvery rose; St. Alamo, lg.-fl. white, extra; Sunshine, pom., golden yellow; Tiber, pom., light bronze; Trojan, maroon, very free; Willie, lg.-fl. lilac and white.

Delphiniums. Formosum, blue; Gold Medal Hyb. and Kelway's Giant Hyb., mixed in many rare and dainty colors. FUNKIA Coerulea and Subcordata Grandiflora. HELIANTHUS, many single vars. HIBISCUS, mixed. PENTSTEMON Digitalis. PHALARIS Arund. Varieg. (Variegated Ribbon Grass). PHLOX, choice white vars. Mrs. Jenkins and Independence, early, and Stellas choice late, 1-yr. roots, 75c doz., $5.00 per 100; ex. heavy, 2-year, $1.00 doz., $7.00 per 100.

PHLOX Subulata, pink, red, white and varieg., named. PHYSOSTEGIA Virginica, pink, and Alba, white. RUDEBECKIA Gol. Glow. SEDUM Spectabilis and Acre. VERONICA Longifolia Subsessilis. YUCCA filamentosa, heavy 3-yr., $1.00 doz.; $7.00 per 100.

Any of above plants, except as noted, 75c per doz., $5.00 per 100.

The Market.

With the coming of September, business took on a new life and the future looks bright. Several large decorations have kept us pretty busy for the last ten days and with other large jobs in sight there is no reason for a lull until the heavy season is over with. Asters and sweet peas, with quantities of cactus dahlias, seemed to be the leading flowers. Chrysanthemums put in an appearance early in the month and we can comment highly on the stock for so early in the season.

Various Notes.

One of the main events of the month was the opening of the new store of the Hollywood Gardens. This is one of the most up-to-date stores in Seattle, and William Gibson, the manager, is to be congratulated on its artistic appearance as well as its usefulness.

The Auburn Greenhouse Co. will be ready for business again soon, as the moving of their plant is practically completed.

The Kent Greenhouse Co. has taken over the plant of the Seattle Carnation Co., and intends to make some improvements and add more stock.

Mr. Burdett, of the Burdett Floral Co., recently expressed his opinion that his nursery business this fall and in the spring will be far better than in previous years.

Lee Walz, of the Walz Flower Shop, has had many attractive window displays during the last few weeks, made entirely of his own cutting of Brunner and Maman Cochet roses.

Gus Bjorkman has been discharged from his obligations as receiver for Graff's Flower Shop and may take charge of the Hollywood Gardens' greenhouses.

The first shipment of roses from Portland was received August 25, from the Sibson Rose Nurseries. From the quality displayed in the first shipment, the crop undoubtedly will be large and good this fall.

Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and W. C. Johnson, representing E. H. Hunt, called on the trade last week.

Mr. Chisholm, of the Decorative Plant Co., reports that he holds high expectations in regard to business this fall. T. B. P.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business is up to the standard of the month of September, but that is not saying much in its favor, and with the exception of funeral work there is little doing. We were treated to slight showers of rain September 14 and 15, which is something extraordinary for this climate. It was not a heavy downpour and has done no damage as far as reported, and it did lay the dust on the city streets. Flowers are not overplentiful, but are in sufficient quantity to fill all requirements. There is a slight exception to this statement as regards roses. Owing to the warm weather and the changing of the rose houses by the growers, we have not had any really good stock for some time and are not liable to have any for a few weeks in the future. This is not so noticeable with carnations, as the asters have been so abundant and of such good quality that the scarcity of carnations has hardly been noticed. They are daily becoming more in evidence and by October 1 should be in full swing.

Violets are in the market, but they are of poor quality and until we have a continued rainy spell they will not be in great abundance. Mums are not yet in as full crop as they were one year ago and it will be a couple of weeks before they are cheap. Other kinds of outside stock move as usual. The early amaryllis are over and the same can be said for the Japanese lilies, although there are a few late patches of the latter yet to be heard from.

Various Notes.

The local dealers are commencing to make a showing of fall flowering bulbs. The early varieties of daffodils and nar-

Get Ready NOW to Sell Palms for Use Indoors this Winter

There's this beauty about selling well-grown Palms: the demand is steady. Palms are just as good for indoors as for porch and lawn decoration—and now that your customers are commencing to "live inside" more, you have a splendid opportunity to handle our Palms and make money with them.

They are grown right here in our own houses, from the seed, by men who know how; they are clean, healthy, vigorous plants, and will give the best of satisfaction—both to you and your customers. Let us fill your order for some of them; we have an excellent stock and will ship promptly, and if you order at once, we can still forward by freight, saving you the heavy express charges that you'll have to pay if you wait till frost. Here are our prices—may we not hear from you NOW?

The Wisconsin State Fair, which took place last week, September 12 to 16, was a great success, surpassing any held in previous years. The attendance was larger, there were more exhibits and the quality throughout was better. This show also held true to the flower line. All the exhibiting florists and seedsmen, having taken larger space than in former years, made a showing which was a credit to the fair. Even the flower beds, which had a rather trying time of it during the dry, hot spell, looked better than ever before.

Prizes were awarded to the following:

THE NEW FERN

NEPHROLEPIS DREYERII

(SPORT OF BOSTON)

THIS New Fern, when exhibited at the S. A. F. & O. H. Convention recently, received the following description: "Nephrolepis Dreyerii has many good points which will render it popular. It makes a quick growth, is compact, of good color, and stands considerable rough treatment, adapting itself to almost any condition. It is of the Scottii type, but not as stiff, the fronds drooping gracefully, giving the plant a very attractive appearance."

Ready for delivery after October 1.

Price: 2 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pots, per 100, \$25.00; per 1000, \$200.00.

DENVER.

Census Count Is 213,381.

There was a perceptible improvement in the market last week, but nothing to boast of. There has been plenty of some kinds of stock, particularly roses, and some good stock is now seen, but the weather has been warm and they open quickly. Beauties are also plentiful and of good color and quality, both long and short. A few fair carnations for this season are seen, but they are not much of a factor in the market and will not be until cooler weather comes in.

A few chrysanthemums are already seen, but they have not cut much of a figure as yet—not seasonable, perhaps, or natural. The outdoor flowers are about at an end. Asters have been far from good all season. Dahlias are yet to be had, but not in large quantities, and the quality is not such as to attract much attention.

Various Notes.

Among the recent visitors was Miss Breuninger, bookkeeper for Gude Bros., of Washington. She and her sister were spending their vacations in Colorado.

J. A. Valentine and N. A. Benson have been spending a few weeks on the western slope.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cooper have returned from their honeymoon trip and are keeping house on Lincoln avenue.

The Columbine Floral Co. is about to open its new store at the corner of Stout street and Fifteenth street.

The Colorado Florists' Club will resume its regular monthly meetings the third Thursday in October, when the election of officers will take place.

W. C. Johnson, representative of E. H. Hunt, is in town, calling on the trade. E. S. K.

Charleroi, Pa.—Joseph Haube & Bro. are rebuilding greenhouses at Speers, Pa., on a farm of twenty acres. This firm also conducts a branch store at Monessen, Pa., in addition to the greenhouses and headquarters on Fallowfield avenue, in this city.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

PITTSBURG, PA.

Census Count Is 533,905.

There is not much change in trade conditions since last week. Asters and gladioli are dropping out of sight and the few that do come in have not been good for the last week. However, there has been no scarcity of stock up to this time, as roses, lilies, carnations and dahlias are quite plentiful.

Various Notes.

The McRae-Jenkinson Co. has purchased the old Chas. Eisner store, on Penn avenue, and will put in a good line of plants and cut flowers, with Frank Stafford as manager.

Wm. F. Lauch, of New Galilee, Pa., is adding one small house for propagating purposes.

The Allegheny Floral Co. is the name of the new flower store opened at 1 Federal street, N. S.

The first frost was Wednesday, September 15, but did no harm, as there was not much to injure.

E. C. Ludwig rounded out his half century Tuesday, September 20, and after the day's business, the employees surprised him by reminding him of the occasion and presenting him with a smoking outfit. The presentation speech was made by T. P. Langhans.

The visitors last week were Wm. F. Lauch, New Galilee, Pa., and Israel Rosnosky and Wm. Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa. Hoo-Hoo.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

Election of officers was the chief item of business before the meeting of the Springfield Florists' Club, Monday evening, September 12, resulting in the choice of the following for the ensuing year: President, Charles W. Schmidt; vice-president, Christian Binning; secretary, C. Pearl Bethard; treasurer, Harry C. Reeser.

In line with the recent action of the S. A. F., John M. Good and George H. Mellen were appointed a committee to formulate and circulate among local florists a petition favoring the adoption of a parcels post system by congress. The club voted a contribution of $25 to the publicity department of the Postal Progress League of New York city. Ge Dale.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

Census Count Is 69,647.

Business was excellent last week, with indications of its continuing so for a while, at least. Roses and carnations are improving, as the weather is cooler, firing being necessary for a few nights recently. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are now in the market.

Various Notes.

At Julius Niednagel & Sons' establishment business is good. They are cutting several hundred carnations a day and have ready sale for them. The rose section is in fine shape. Richmond, Killarney, My Maryland and American Beauties are looking extra good and give promise of heavy cuts in a short time. John Murphy and Frank Woelz leaving about the same time on short notice left them in a bad way for help. They have obtained a new rose man who was with Poehlmann Bros. for some time, but since has visited his home in Europe. A carnation grower and plant man will arrive this week. Mr. Niednagel came out of his controversy with the city over the opening up of Bell street, with flying colors. Last year the city informed him that they expected to open up this street this year and Mr. Niednagel asked to be advised of the fact early in the spring, so he would have plenty of time to move his greenhouses which were in the line of the proposed street. The city did not notify him till July and Mr. Niednagel said that it was then too late to move, as the houses had been planted, and he would fight the case. Mr. Niednagel won, as it was proven that he owned the land and not the city, as was supposed.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. had two large wedding decorations last week which called for some artistic work, especially the one at Rockport, Ind. George Blackman stated that these were the kind of decorations they like to handle, as they are always prepared for them. They are cutting large quantities of roses, carnations and greens. The Beauties are extra good. They had a new window display last week which attracted a good deal of attention. The new feature was several cages of parrots and they seemed well satisfied with the attention received.

At Ben Kramer's store business is on the increase. Mrs. Kramer is back from her vacation trip, much improved in health.

Henry Seymour is cutting lots of carnations and has sale for all of them.

Karl Ziedler reports a good business.

Austin Wallace is cutting some Golden Glow mums, and disposes of most of them to Mr. Kramer.

Royston & Fenton's roses are improving right along. They began firing last week. E. L. F.

Barrington Center, B. I.—James Crawshaw, formerly of 403 Plainfield street, Providence, has acquired a place here on Depot avenue and will erect two greenhouses which he has moved from his old location. He will do a general florist and nursery business.

Greenhouse Heating.

If you do not have sheds for a large supply of fuel, dump the coal in the open and cover the pile with slack; the deterioration will be slight.

THOSE interested in greenhouse heating should note the view down the center walk of Plant B of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill., printed on another page of this issue.

OVERHAUL THE SYSTEM.

This is the time to overhaul the heating system. Even in the great establishments where men are employed for the special purpose of operating the heating apparatus, summer idleness and other causes make necessary that the heating system be thoroughly gone over at this time of year. Further delay will bring the changes at a date when fires are likely to be called for any night.

In these days of wonderfully ingenious devices for the management of the heating medium there is no need for ineffective or inefficient systems. Hardly ever is there a system so seriously "sick" that it is not possible to make it work efficiently by the aid of one or more of the devices which control or force circulation.

No one will dispute that the best system is the simplest system—the one which is so installed that it works naturally, without any other aid than the forces generated with the boiler. But it unfortunately is the fact that by far the larger number of greenhouse establishments have grown from small beginnings. They are, in fact, a patchwork. When the first house or houses were erected, foresight was not keen enough to discern the annual need for additional glass. Year by year houses have been added to the first ones built, until some of the establishments are almost like little cities built on the circle plan, with houses of almost every aspect. With new branches grafted upon the heating system, and the system itself not originally planned for additions, it is little wonder that the makers of devices to aid or compel or control circulation find this field a flourishing one for them.

It often pays to overhaul a heating plant from the beginning and thus reduce operating expenses, but usually slight changes made in summer will serve to make old systems fairly efficient.

Now is the time to get busy on such work.

thousand cubic feet. Do you think it will be all right to heat my greenhouse with it? Will it be cheap and safe to use? Some people say it may stop during exceptionally cold weather. I should like to have your advice about it. E. C.

When gas can be obtained for 25 cents per thousand cubic feet, it will make a cheaper fuel than soft coal of the usual quality and price, considering the saving in the work of firing, etc. The question of whether it will be safe to rely upon the gas can be settled better by a person on the spot. It is true that in cold weather the pressure is considerably reduced and often drops so low that the fire goes out, which, of course, is a dangerous thing for the plants in a greenhouse, especially as it is most likely to occur on the coldest nights. As a rule, however, this does not occur with gas from new wells, but only in those where the pressure has been gradually lessening.

TWO MICHIGAN HOUSES.

We have built two additional houses, running east and west. House No. 1 is $21\frac{3}{4} \times 125$ and about fifteen feet four inches to the ridge. This house is for roses and has three 5-foot benches. House No. 2 is $27\frac{3}{4} \times 125$ and about sixteen feet to the ridge. It is for carnations and contains four benches—three of them five feet wide and the other four feet wide. Will you kindly tell us how many flows and returns will be needed in each house? We will heat with steam and are planning to use 2-inch pipe for the flows and $1\frac{1}{4}$ -inch for the returns. Which is the better way to run the flows, overhead or under the benches? The boiler house will be at the west end. The outside temperature occasionally goes as low as 30 degrees below zero. R. L.

For house No. 1, which is $21\frac{3}{4} \times 125$, a temperature suitable for roses can be secured by the use of two 2-inch flows and ten $1\frac{1}{4}$ -inch returns. The flows and four of the returns could be divided between the two side walls and the other returns could be under the benches. The same piping would suffice for carnations in house No. 2, which is $27\frac{3}{4} \times 125$, when the outside temperature is 30 degrees below zero. If the ends of the houses are much exposed it would be well to run the flows either under the ridge or along the purlins, and start the return coils so that they will run at least partly across the ends of the houses.

What is the Most Vital Point in Grate Construction?

Grate makers and users agree that the most important point is to keep the air spaces open as long as possible under all conditions.

We guarantee to keep the air spaces of the open longer under any conditions than can be done by any other grate in existence.

The hottest fire you can build will not warp a "Martin," and it can be installed without disturbing the brick work.

We refer to Peter Reinberg, Emil Buettner, Bassett & Washburn, Wietor Bros., Adam Zender, Sinner Bros., Albert Dickinson Co., and many others.

Mr. Florist, if you were shown:

That by the installation of a good tilting steam trap you would effect a saving in fuel sufficient to pay for the trap in from three to six months.

That you would increase the efficiency of your steam lines by draining them of all condensation.

That this pure hot condensation could be returned to the boilers as feed water by means of this trap without the assistance of pump or injector.

Would it not be a matter of considerable import to you?

91-93 CHAMBERS ST. NEW YORK

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet.
An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The State Fair.

Last week was State Fair week and a good many strangers were in town. The local florists showed a little more interest. C. L. Brunson, of Paducah, the superintendent of the department of plants and flowers, worked hard and brought one of the best displays ever seen at the state fair. The facilities for a display of this kind are poor, and for that reason a good many would-be exhibitors keep out. But another year may find things different, as the flower hall will be the next permanent building to be put up.

The class for the best floral design, for a large silver cup offered by the Louisville florists, brought out five of the best designs seen here at any show. It took the judges about two hours to select the winner. Nanz & Neuner's design, a beautiful broken column of ivy leaves with a garland of White Killarney roses and white bouvardias on a large base of maidenhair ferns and Asparagus plumosus, with a big bunch of White Killarney roses on one corner and a bunch of white bouvardias on the opposite side, was finally selected as the winner. Following is the complete list of prize winners:
